Lizards as Pets and Playmates.

Professor Delboeuf has contributed an interesting article on the psychology of lizards to The Revue Scientifique. He is the happy possessor of a band of lizards, including a Spanish and a French one, which he has introduced to fame. The Spaniard is bold, snappish, stupid and suspicious; the Frenchman, timid, gentle, confiding and straightforward. Nevertheless they became great friends, and when the Frenchman was lost for 26 days the Spaniard took no food all the time, but he began to catch flies again as soon as his companion returned. One curious fact brought out is that lizards do not hibernate organically, as plants do, but by reason of the cold weather killing the insects on which they feed, and if they are kept in a warm house and regularly fed they will remain active all the year.

M. Delboeuf's lizards live in freedom. During summer they occupy a room in his country house, having latticed windows and sunshine on three sides. They have stones and boxes and a scaffolding furnished, with rags to play among and climb over. At Liege in winter they live in his office and frequently scramble over his books and papers as he writes. One day he went to his class and did not know that both of them were on his back until he had been some time at the lecture stand. Many distinguished visitors have come to see them, and they are playful with every one who encourages their familiarities.—London Globe.

Saved by a Buffalo.

A herd of buffaloes was grazing on the outskirts of the forest at Scopah, with the herder on guard a short distance away. A tiger came out of the forest and tried by roaring to stampede the herd.

The herdsman manifested great bravery. He shouted, beat his heavy quarter staff on the ground and tried to scare the brute off, not thinking of his own danger, but of that of his herd. Suddenly the tiger rushed forward, sprang upon the man, knocked him down and stood over him, growling.

The bull of the herd, a pugnacious creature, now charged savagely upon the tiger and rolled him over and over. The bull was so quick in his motions that the tiger, taken unawares, was at a disadvantage. He neither hit nor scratched the bull, but gathered himself up and galloped off into the forest. The bull shook himself, bellowed, pursued his enemy a few yards and then went quietly to feeding as if vanquishing the tiger were an everyday occurrence.

The herdsman was not injured by the tiger, but received a wound in the leg from the bull's sharp horn, inflicted when the buffalo knocked over the tiger.—Youth's Companion.

Regeneration.

To secure a normal and regular tissue change throughout the body use Brandreth's Pills. This tissue metamorphosis consists in constantly proceeding waste of tissue and its regeneration. Brandreth's Pills are the best solvent of the products of disintegration of the tissues and impart their elasticity. They are an alterative and eliminative remedy, which allay irritation, and remove obstruction by sliding natural and are of great benefit in cases of temporary and habitual constipation, torpid liver, biliousness, headache, indigestion, rheumatism and diseases arising from an impure state of blood.

Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable, unquestionably harmless and safe to take at any time.

Artemus Ward's Protector.

While in the show business in Pennsylvania Artemus Ward was put to sleep in an attic where the sash had been taken out for ventilation. In the night it turned cold. Artemus got up and was busy at the window. "What are you doing, Artemus?" his companion asked. "I'm so cold," he chattered. "I was hanging up some of these hoopskirts. I thought they'd keep the coarsest of the cold out."—San Francisco Argonaut.

It is probably not the coldest weather you ever knew in your life; but that is how you feel just now, because past sufferings are soon forgotten and because your blood needs the enriching, invigorating influence of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the Superior Medicine.

The first aerial voyage was made Sept. 19, 1783, by a sheep, a cock and a duck to a height of 1,500 feet. The first human traveler through the air was M. Francois Pilatre de Rozier, who mounted the following month in a free balloon.
