CHATTANOOGA DAILY REBEL.

VOLUME I. FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 24, 1863. NUMBER 302

THE DAILY REBEL.

PUBLISHED BY

FRANK M. PAUL.

Subscription and Advertising Schedule.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year $10
Six Months 6
Three Months 3
One Month 1

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square (10 lines) one insertion $1 00
Each subsequent insertion 50
Contracts for Advertising will be made on the following terms:
One Square one month $5 00
Two Squares one month 8 00
Three Squares one month 10 00
Four Squares one month 12 00
One column one month 40 00
One column three months 100 00
One column six months 175 00
One column twelve months 300 00
Business Cards, not exceeding eight lines, per annum 20 00
Professional Cards, per annum 10 00
Auctioneers and Druggists, per annum 20 00
Auctioneers and Druggists, per annum 20 00
Auctioneers and Druggists, per annum 20 00

FRIDAY EVENING JULY 24, 1863.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

The Great Battle of Rome.

[illegible] amusable history of the Battle [illegible] from a month ago [illegible] We reproduce it [illegible] of the admirers of [illegible] again in [illegible]

[illegible] respectable persons will be circulated [illegible] of the "Grand round" [illegible] in these Rome-antic times, that I think it highly proper you should get the start of it from one who seed it with his eyes and heard it with his years and [illegible] it fell on us big one.

More than 300 years ago, General D. Soto had a big plight with the Injuns on or about this [illegible] Since that time a uninterrupted peace has reigned around these [illegible] hills and hollers. Flowers have bloomed, sweet birds have skipped about, dog fennel has [illegible] the ground, and the Coosa river, which wer then but a little spring branch, have [illegible] both wide and deep, until now the majestic [illegible] at our phlint upon its bosom and the fish and cat gobble up the yearth [illegible] what chance to fall into its waters.

For rollen years will change a program! [illegible] will tell. Jest afore the broke day on Sunday the 3d of May, Eighteen hundred and 63 the city [illegible] of the eternal city [illegible] crowed from their slumbers with the cheer of the Stars and Stripes [illegible] peep in away the [illegible] to Rome on a raid. [illegible] time to [illegible] for their [illegible] cannon to be silent [illegible] and [illegible] the premises. Hogs were sent [illegible] Horses hitch in the cane brake. Cows milked incommon dry. Cashiers and Bank presidents carryed off their funds in a pair of [illegible] which very much exposed their [illegible] and the small compass of their resorts. It was however a satisfactory solushin of their refusion to the Konf for the last 3 months. Scouts wer sent out on every road to snuff the tainted breeze. Rotten bags wer piled up [illegible] every high way and low way. Shot guns and cannon and powder and ball were brought to the front. The yomanry and the cavalry joined a regiment of Confederate troops and formed in line of battle. They war marched across the Oustanawly river and then the planks of the bridge wer tore up so that they couldn't retreat. This wer done however, at their own valyunt request, because of the natural weakness of the flesh. They determined justly and severally ta do sumthin.

Two cracked cannon, what hed holes in the [illegible] and two or three on the side, wer propped up between the kotton bags, and pinted down the road to the Alabama. They wer then loaded with buck shot and tacks, and a [illegible] hail raised on top. The balance [illegible] to take the road in the front, and the [illegible] and tacks to take on in the phlank. These [illegible] wer supposed would go through the [illegible] like a sieve, and shoot round generally, [illegible] everything determined to do [illegible] do sumthin. The steamboats [illegible] down the river got out of the [illegible] The sharp shooters got on [illegible] with their repeaters [illegible] The valiettes dashed well [illegible] Comanche couriers rode un [illegible] and yes, like a fiddlers elbow [illegible] to reconnoiter as skouts [illegible] first in the road then outin the [illegible] skouts—some mounted and [illegible] on foot. All wer resolved to do sumthin [illegible] and previous [illegible] reports wer brought into those [illegible] quarters, and all other quarters, to the [illegible] that Gen. Forrest was kummin, and [illegible] 9 and 1000 and any other number; that they were ten miles from town, and six miles, and 2 miles and any other number of miles, that they were on the Alabama road and the Cave Spring road and the river road, and any other road; that they wer crossin the river at Quinn's Ferry, and Williamson's Ferry, and Bell's Ferry, and any other Ferry; that they had tuk the steamboat "Laura Moore," and the "Chiokee," and "Atlaratta," and any other steamboat; that they had shot at a Cammanchy courier and hit him in the coat tail or his horses tail or any other tail, that they had seezed Sis Morris, or Bill Morris, or Jep Morris, or any other Morris. In tak a man kould hear anything by gwine about, and more too.

About emul however, the important crisis which wer to hav arrived did akculy arrive about 10 o'klock in the mornin, A. M., on May the 3d, 1863. I am thus pertikler, Mr. Editor, because it are to be entored on next year's almynak as a remarkable event. The head of the Raid did actuly arrive at the suburban villa of Mr. Myers, and thar it stopped to rekonnoiter. Thar they learned as how we had 600 head of artillery, and 6000 kotton bags, and a permiscuous number of infantry taktix, and we wer only war'in to see the whites of their eyes.—Also that the history of Gen. Jackson at New Orleans war read in panik, and that every body wer inspired to do sumthin; whereupon the head of the raid turned pale and sent forward a picket. At this auspicious moment a foot skout let fly a whistlen bullet, which tuk effuk gum whar in these rejuns. It wer reasonably supposed that one Yankee wer killed, and perhaps two, for even to this time, sumthin del can be smelt in those parts, tho the beryal squad had not bin abul to find it up to a late hour yesterday. After right smart skirmishin, the hed of the raid fell bak down the road to the Alabama, and wer pursued by our mounted yomanry at a respektable distance.

Now, Mr. Adcer and Smith: while all those valyant feets were goin on here abouts, Gen. Forrest had been fitin the body and tail of the kood away down at the Alabam line. Finally he proposed to the kood to stop phitin, and play a game or two of pokor, under a cessation, which they akceptod. But the General wer out in luk, and had a poor hand, and kood smashed pins last nolls. The Yankees had a [illegible] which would have tuk Forrest and [illegible] down [illegible] I would see him in Hades [illegible] fore. The kood looked at him, and he looked at the kood, and never blinked. The Raid trembled all over in its roots, and gin it up. The General stalled on, and ever since that game was played, the little town close by has been called "Cedar Bluff." It wer kush times in the Alabam, that day, shore.

Well, Mr. Editurs, you know the seequit. The General bag'd 'em and brought 'em on. The planks were put back on the bridge. The river bank infantry countermarched and fired a permiscuous volley in token of jewbiles. One of the side-wipin cannon went off on its own hook, and the ball went ded through a house and tore a buro all to flinders. Sum sed it wer a Niter buro, but a potash man who examined sed he reckon not, for ther wern't no ashes in the drawers, nor nary ash hopper on the premises.

By and by the Cammanchy skouts and pickets all kum in, and shuck ther ambrosial locks and received the congratulations of ther friends. Then begun the ovashun of fair women and brave men to Gen. Forrest and his gallant boys. Bokays and tears were all mixed up permiskuous. Big hunks o' cake and gratitude were distributed generally and frequent. Strawberries and cream, eggs and inguns, pies and pankakes, all flew round amazin, for every body was determined to do sumthin. Gen. Forrest subsided, and Gen. Jewbilee tuk command, and Rome wer herself agin. The 4 pronged forks and silver spoons rose from the dead, and even the old hen what one of our city aldermen had burried with her head out, was disinterred and sakrificed immediately for the good of the country.

Thus hev ended the Raid, and no loss on our side. However, I suppose that Mr. Linkhorn will kep "peggin away."

Yours, truly and immensely,

THE ORTHOR,

Adjective General of Yomanary.

To the Qualified Voters of the State of Tennessee.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—I discover that my worthy opponent for Congressional honors has, with a commendable zeal and industry, within the last ten days, sent forth a [illegible] address in support of his claims to your good hands in consideration of which, I trust to be pardoned for offering, in this form, a few words that suggestions in addition to those heretofore [illegible] forwarded to most of you at [illegible] since, I write in no controversial spirit, and shall endeavor to avoid all allusions calculated to provoke irritation, or to awaken undue excitement in any quarter.

The late convention at Winchester, on its assemblage, found me a candidate for re election to Congress, and thought proper (as I have presumed to think, in the exercise of a sound discretion), to make me one of its nominees. The honor was wholly unsolicited by me, though, as it was voluntarily conferred, by a large, intelligent and eminently patriotic assemblage, in reference to whose coming together I chanced never to be even at all consulted, I could not feel otherwise than grateful for this renewed mark of public confidence and respect. I must do the convention the justice to say that I have not regarded their action as designed in the least degree to dictate to the free and independent voters of the State who should or should not be chosen to represent them in Congress; on the contrary, I have considered their proceedings as in all respects simply advisory, and not legitimately subject to the objections so justly urged by many to what has been known as the caucus nomination system, and from the operation of which such a host of varied mischiefs have formerly resulted. The Winchester convention seemed to me to be an experiment, set on foot by a large number of worthy individuals, mainly belonging to the army, with a view to the attainment of concord, and the suppression of unkind excitement in the coming election. One fact is certain: I desire no votes merely on the ground of my having been nominated by the convention for Congress; upon my own merit and qualifications, such as they chance to be, do I exclusively rely for re-election at the hands of my honored countrymen.

Having thus far heard of no specific charges of official delinquency, and having good reason to know that my Congressional acts stand, in the main, approved by those to whom I am indebted for being now in the performance of legislative duties, I am very far from apprehending that you will be inclined to refuse me your support for any reasons of a character wholly alien to my own official conduct. I have no particular promises to make in reference to my future action as your representative, should I have the good fortune to receive your suffrages in sufficient number to elect me. I can only engage to be as diligent and faithful in all things hereafter as I feel that I have been heretofore; to exceed this measure I hold to be impossible.

I have no charges to prefer, or insinuendoes to fulminate against my respectable opponent; and I would scorn to relinquish the hope of being re-elected to Congress than utter one syllable in derogation of his just claims to your kindly regard.

It is, perhaps, an instance of personal ill fortune on my part not to be able to congratulate myself, as my opponent would seem to do, upon having first seen the light of day in the State of Tennessee, within whose limits sacredly repose the ashes of a Jackson, a Polk, a White and a Grundy; but my consolation, in this respect, is that some years ago I voluntarily selected the State of Tennessee as my place of permanent abode; and, affiliated with this noble commonwealth by the tenderest domestic ties, as well as by multiplied friendly regards; and in relation to the accident of nativity, had the good fortune to be born in the bosom of that venerated commonwealth which gave birth, in former days, to a Washington, a Jefferson, a Madison, and a Marshall; to now re-duplicated in glory by the achievements of a Lee, a Johnston, a Stonewall Jackson, and a Ewell, and is safely preserved in the venerating regard of an enlightened world by the consummate statesmanship and unmatched eloquence of a Haven.

However much I may regret, in common with the sympathizing friends of my gallant opponent, the failure of President Davis, thus far, to reward his distinguished military services with that official rank which is so justly his due, I confidently appeal, both to yourselves and to him, whether it would be either fair or generous in you to brand me with the odium of political discredit because of the shortcomings of another, for whom I am in no way whatever responsible.

As to the merits or demerits of our present Governor, I do not feel called upon to say more than this: I have not been able, amidst my engrossing duties, to entertain and cherish, with this distinguished gentleman, not can I claim to be upon the list of his confidential friends and advisers; but I have been a close observer of his public course during the progress of this fierce and bloody war for Southern Independence—both as a civic statesman and as a heroic struggler in arms—and I have no such opinions or sentiments concerning him that his friends, either in Tennessee or elsewhere, need, in the least degree, to fear that if restored to Congress, I will do aught to discredit his public or private character, or to bring down upon him, now when on the eve of official retirement, undeserved disparagement and dishonor.

In conclusion, I will say, that it would have been heretofore highly gratifying to me, to have had it in my power to mingle somewhat more freely with our humble fellow citizens in the army; to whose unsullied valor, and good conduct, we owe so much more than we can ever adequately requite. I desired this because I wished to learn from their own lips, all their wants, and all their wishes, in order that our legislation at Richmond might do full justice to those who have so freely suffered, and so heroically toiled for our deliverence as a Nation. But I did not feel willing to exhibit the appearance of canvassing in what is known as political electioneering, at a moment of so much peril and difficulty; and I have therefore, for nearly two months past, remained quietly at my place of temporary sojourn, in the village whence this address emanates. After next Thursday week, I shall feel relieved from all embarrassment on this subject, and hope then to take by the hand every patriot soldier which our glorious army contains. Meanwhile, I have the honor to be, your friend and fellow-citizen,

H. S. FOOTE.

For the Rebel.

James McCallum, Esq.

The Winchester Convention, in presenting to the people of this district a ticket upon which true men of all the old political parties can safely rely, at this time that literally "trees men's souls," suggested the name of James McCallum, of Pulaski, to represent, in the national legislature, the people of the 7th Congressional District, composed of the counties of Lincoln, Giles, Marshall, Maury, Lewis, Lawrence and Wayne. As it appears from a publication which is extensively circulated that he is to have opposition, the writer hereof deems it not improper that he should, without consultation with Esquire McCallum, place before the public a statement of his knowledge of this gentleman, which none who know him will gainsay.

To know James McCallum is to love him. His name comes not before the voters of the State, heralded by achievements upon the hotly contested battle-field. His age, now about fifty five years, indicates that the period in which he has lived has been such that but small opportunity has been afforded him to seek reputation at the "cannon's mouth." As a school master, and a clerk and master in chancery, the greater part of his life has been spent. His achievements have been a fair name and an exalted reputation for energy, industry, purity of life, justice to his fellow man, kindness to the poor, patriotic performances of every duty, public and private, in an unobtrusive manner, in the spirit of that "charity which vaunteth not itself—is not puffed up"—and in obedience to a faith which may, and if "persevered in to the end," will "remove mountains," conquer prejudices, and command respect from all. Where James McCallum is known, he is respected as unambitious—he has never sought place. Though an old line Whig, (when party lines were recognized,) his integrity, his good sense, his patriotic adherence to truth—to the cause of his beloved South—pointed him out as the man to represent a district which, in former times, was overwhelmingly democratic. This nomination came unsought by him, when gladly it would have been accepted by a dozen men who figured largely as politicians when coons and chicken cocks were the figure heads of our political newspapers.

If Esquire McCallum has not been upon the battle field during this war, he has, in every stage of it, been its supporter. He aided in arousing the young men to fly to arms; he has given largely of his limited means to arm and equip our soldiers; he has been the guardian of the wives and families of the absent soldiers in his county—Giles, and has labored without ceasing for their comfort and welfare. Ask Giles county soldiers if these assertions are not true. When Donaldson fell, and our brave boys had to retreat south of their homes, the writer hereof heard him, in a public speech, urge the people of Giles county to rally to the standard of the country, and strike for their altars and firesides—whenever and wherever our leaders might deem it meet.

James McCallum represented the county of Giles in the last Legislature of Tennessee, voted for the interests of the people of the private soldier.

He has made no compromise with the enemy, has taken no parole oaths, and throughout this struggle has been unswerving in his allegiance and unstinting friend of the South. Every son and every kinsman of his, capable of bearing arms, has added to swell the ranks of our army. Young men who know him love him; for he emphatically is and ever has been, the young mans friend. When he takes a stand, his force of will is such that, sustained by reason, and stimulated by a conscience highly cultivated, he is immovable, unchangeable and undaunted, amid the varying fortunes and vicissitudes of war. His in council, he is the man for the times; patriotic in his instincts, he will never betray his country; sympathetic in his moral organization, he will never be other than the soldier's friend; just by habit, he can never forget the debt of gratitude due to his country's defenders; unambitious, he will never stoop to the wiles of the demagogue to secure place at the expense of principle.

It has been urged that Esq. McCallum is an obscure, unknown man; that by some trick—some! he as points of the politicians, through the machinery of a convention he has been thrust before the public, to answer some bad end,—that others, better known to fame, should have been put forward in this crisis. We grant you that his characteristics have not been exhibited in partizan conventions of former days—that prior to the present crisis, he has not figured in the halls of legislation. But like the humble private, who bares his bosom to the iron rain, and receives no mention in the report of the battle, he has been none the less useful in his own sphere, because his deeds have not been proclaimed to the world.

The truth is, the nomination of Mr. McCallum by the Winchester convention, is a spontaneous tribute to the merit of a private citizen who has never sought office; but whose prudence, firmness, boldness, and unfaltering patriotism, have marked him as a man for the crisis.

Thus much, without the knowledge of the subject of this article, we have deemed it just and proper to say, we refer to every soldier and citizen, every man and woman, who has known James McCallum, before or since the war, with the assurance that our statements will be confirmed. His opponent cannot, gainsay them unless at the risk of a sacrifice of truth.

In conclusion we would suggest that in these trying times we need old men to counsel, and young men for war.

TENNESSEAN

A Card from Col. B. J. Hill.

To the Freemen of Tennessee:

I have been repeatedly urged by my fellow-soldiers of the Army of Tennessee, before and since the late convention at Winchester, to become a candidate for Congress in the 4th district.

I was reluctant to yield my consent to these friendly manifestations in the first place, because I may safely declare a preference for my present position, (as Col. commanding the 25th (old 5th) Tennessee regiment,) with whose gallant members I have been allied since its organization, and upon whose banner I have been five honorable battles successively inscribed.

But the nomination of Col. John P. Murray, seems to have provoked a singular want of unanimity, for reasons which will be hereafter explained, and the renewed entreaties of my comrades in arms, induce me to submit myself to their wishes, and declare myself a candidate.

I do this with proper forethought, and in a spirit of honest patriotism. I believe that my affiliation with the private soldier, and my acquaintance with his needs enables me to be of some practical advantage at a time when his comfort is most to be observed. Without being much of a politician, I profess to be something of a soldier, in my own humble way, and I do believe I have the good of the soldier at heart, the more so, since I have shared his marches, his fare, and his perils, hand in hand, and shoulder to shoulder.

The next Congress does not convene until late in February. Until that time, if I am honored by an election, I shall be found, where I have been since the war began, among the men of my regiment. I entertain the sanguine hope that hostilities will cease with the fall campaign; which will leave officer and soldier alike footloose, to go to Congress, or home, or elsewhere.

I make no claim to election on account of my poor services of mine, and if I receive but two votes, I shall be proud of them. My aim is to serve my country. I believe I can serve it efficiently at Richmond. But if a majority of the freemen of Tennessee think otherwise, I shall feel no ill will to any one, but shall continue to struggle for the rights of the South, for her independence forever and ever of the North, and all the world, and for the disfranchisement of all her cherished institutions from aggression and misrepresentation.

Very respectfully, your ob't servant,

B. J. HILL.

New Advertisements.

WANTED—A [illegible] woman as cook for a small family. Apply at this office immediately. jy24-tf

$150 REWARD—STOLEN.—From the camps of Brig. Gen. Bate's brigade, a blue cloth Lieut. Colonels Uniform. The Cushions were fully trimmed, and the stars were plain gold. Two pair of pants were taken at the same time. One a dark blue, no stripe down the leg; one a light blue, with a small blue stripe down the legs. Any information given, will be rewarded at this office. jy24-tf*

FOR SALE.—I have for sale two very fine Sorrel Horses, which will be sold separately if desired. If not sold privately by 10 o'clock Saturday they will be sold at auction, at the Government Stable, on Market st. For particulars enquire of the owner, at the office of Capt. E. W. Kennedy, A. Q. M. jy23-3t*

TAKEN UP and committed to Jail in Chattanooga, on the 22d of July, 1863, a negro girl who calls her name Jinnie, says she belongs to Dr. Leaton, of Kingston, Ga. Said girl is black, low, and well built, about 13 years old. The master is requested to come forward, prove the slave, pay charges and take her away.

J. H. SWAIM, Jailor Chattanooga.

jy24 tf

NOTICE TO CONSCRIPTS.

OFFICE COMD'T CAMP OF INSTRUCTION, Cleveland, Tenn., July 22d, 1863.

SPECIAL ORDERS No. 2.

I. In pursuance of general order No. 39, Adjutant and Inspector General's office, 23d, 1863, all persons in the county of Bradley, State of Tennessee, are hereby ordered to report at Cleveland, (county seat of Bradley county) on the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th days of August next, for re-examination and re-enrollment. The first four districts will report on the 4th, the second four on the 5th, and so on.

II. This notice includes every man between the ages specified—those who have been examined and discharged by State or Confederate Surgeons. Those who have at any time been discharged from the Army. Those who have furnished substitutes—and all persons who may claim exemption on any ground whatever. No persons discharge, exemption or detail, will excuse them from attendance at the place appointed.

III. Any person or persons unable to attend, must send by their enrolling officer, the affidavit of a responsible Physician stating the cause of disability, and the probable duration of such disability.

IV. All the laws and Regulations applicable to deserters, will be applied to such conscripts, as fail to repair to the place of rendezvous, or who shall desert after enrollment.

☞ Conscripts will come with three days rations prepared.

G. W. GRAY, Surgeon, P. A. C. S. President of Examining Board.

By Command of R. M. Cox, Maj and Comd't Camp of Instruction.

CHAS. F. MARTIN, 1st Lt. and Adjt. jy24-3t

GENERAL ORDERS, CHATTANOOGA, TENN., July 4th, 1863.

General Orders No. 4.

I. Maj R. M. Cox, P. A. C. S., will proceed to Knoxville and take charge of the Conscript Department of East Tennessee until relieved by Maj. L. Butler, when he will remove to Cleveland, and establish there a Camp of Instruction.

(Signed) E. D. BLAKE, Lt. Col. C. S. A. Comd't of Conscripts.

OFFICE OF COMD'T OF CAMP OF INS., Cleveland, Tenn., July 20th, 1863.

General Order No. 1.

I. In accordance with the above order, Maj R. M. Cox, has this day assumed command of the Camp of Instruction, at Cleveland, Tennessee.

II. All Enrolling officers in the following counties, to-wit: Roane, McMinn, Bradley, Bledsoe and Hamilton, will report at this office on the 25th of this month for instructions.

III. All Enrolling officers of Middle Tennessee will report to this office as soon as practicable, the exact status of every enrolled man in their respective districts. Blanks will be furnished upon application, and all men enrolled, will be arrested, and brought to this camp for disposal.

IV. All commanders of non-conscript companies of this Department, south of Loudon, will report at this office for instructions.

By command of R. M. COX, Maj. P. A. C. S., and Comd't of Camp of Instruction.

C. F. MARTIN, 1st Lt. & Adjt. jy25-7t

AUCTION SALE,

ON SATURDAY JULY 25th, AT 10 O'CLOCK.

BY J. H. WILLY

1 Two Horse Wagon,
1 Buggy with top,
1 Mare,
1 lot Cooking Utensils,
1 lot Farming Implements,
1 lot Grind Stones,
With many other articles.

jy22-3t

CAPT. E. REYNOLDS, is associated with me in raising a Company of Scouts, for Gen'l Forrest, any one wishing to join, can report to him at Chattanooga, Tenn., or to Maj. John L. Hopkins, or myself.

jy23-3t MILLER TURNEY.

W. F. HERRING & CO.,

MERCHANT TAILORS,

AND

DEALERS IN

GENTS FURNISHING GOODS &c.,

ATLANTA, GA.

SWORDS AND BELTS, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co. Atlanta, Ga.

HICKORY SHIRTS, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

HICKORY STRIPES, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co. Atlanta, Ga.

GOLD LACE, fine quality, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

WOOL JEANS, which we are prepared to make up, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

STAFF BUTTONS, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

COTTON YARNS, all numbers assorted in Bales, On hand and for sale by W. F. Herring & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

BEAC[illegible] AND BLUE HEDAD CLOTH, FIN[illegible] and many other articles, [illegible] for sale by W. F. HERRING & CO., Atlanta, Ga. jy10 1[illegible]

$1,140 REWARD.—The above reward will be paid for the apprehension and delivery at Chattanooga, of the following named deserters from the 1st and 27th Tennessee regiments, or $10 for either one of them. The attention of commanders of scouting companies, is called to their names, as it is believed that some of them have deserted, in order to join cavalry commands.

1ST. TENNESSEE.

J H Cannon, Capt Kelly's Co. A. R M Ewin, Capt Steele's Co B. F J Louseau, Capt Wheeler's Co C. J R Brown, J H Sweeney, Henry Smith, J J. Church, Capt Atkelson's Co D. C Schwarz, Capt Leacher's Co E. J M Smith, Capt Irwin's Co G. M E Booker, J R Irwin, A B Hughes, J T Sellars, Capt Webster's co H. Corpl J R Poindexter, M P McFarlin, J W Jackson, Capt Lefetter's co I. M Dormedy, Wm Hall, H E Finn, P H Johnson, Jno Appleton, Hiram Clarke, Hy Manley, J N M Parson, Thos Davis, T S Shadden, Capt Flournoy's co K. Jno Colthurp, W F Hallett, Capt Fulcher's co L.

27TH TENNESSEE.

J J Goss, Capt Lawler's co A. J G Betts, W H Park, Corpl [illegible] Lossomb's co D. H J Ross, Capt Carroll's co I.

By order of H. R. FEILD, Col. Comd'g 1st & 27th Tenn. Regt.

Thos. H. McKINNEY, Adjt. jy23-3t

AUCTION.

ON SATURDAY, 25th JULY, 1863.

I WILL SELL at public auction, at the E. T. & G. R. R. Depot, in Chattanooga, FIVE SETTS OF DERRICK GEARING, and all the Iron Work belonging to said Derricks; also, a large lot of Double and Single TACLE BLOCKS, and 2500 lbs. MANILLA ROPE.

Also, a lot of Stone Cutter's Cast Steel Tools, Drills and Hammers, and one half dozen Ames' best Shovels, new.

Three Kegs Blasting Powder:

A lot of Safety Fuses, one Ox Wagon, one set of new Car Wheels, 2½ feet guage, with boxes complete. Also, one sett of Blacksmiths Tools, in good order, the Vice has a solid box, and weighs 150 pounds.

FIFTY GRINDSTONES varying from 2 to 6 feet in diameter, and from 2 to 9 inches in thickness.

Sale to commence at 10 o'clock A. M.

jy22-2t* I. A. VAUGHN, City Auctioneer.

STOLEN from the subscriber on the 14th inst., a sorrel Horse. Discription as follows: his color is unusually red, small size, is about 13 hands high, a little white above the hoof upon one of his hind patters, upon the rite if not mistaken, and perhaps few white hairs in his face, tolerable close made, and being petted, he is apt to show some sign of notice when his name is called if not jaded, to-wit, Jim. Thirty-five dollars is offered for the same, and as the thief is worth less money I will give thirty dollars for him age of the horse, four last spring.

jy23-2t* SARAH LARD

OFFICE E. TENN. & GA. R. R. CO., Knoxville, July 20th, 1863.

All requisition for the transportation of troops, and freights must be made in writing to me, and in accordance with Gen'l Cooper's order No. 2, dated at Richmond, January 3d, 1863. Verbal orders will not be heeded. In my absence prompt attention will be given to all requisitions by C. B. Wallace, Gen'l Freight Agent.

jy23-tf R. C. JACKSON, Gen'l Sup't.

DISTRICT EAST TENNESSEE, OFFICE CONTROLLING QUARTERMASTER, Knoxville, July 10, 1863.

Capt. W. D. Tappe A. Q. M., is assigned to duty at Cleveland, for the collection of the tax in kind, in the 3d Congressional District, composed of the counties, Monroe, McMinn, Meigs, Rhea, Polk, Bradley, Hamilton, Marion, Sequatchie, Bledsoe, Grundy and Franklin. He will appoint suitable agents in each of the counties in which it is practicable to collect the tax, to whom farmers will deliver the Governments portion of the products of their farms, taking their receipts in duplicate, one of these to be sent to Capt. Tappe, to be taken up with his official receipt.

As it is all important that the army should be supplied, farmers are urged to bring forward their produce as rapidly as possible.

JAS. GLOVER, Maj. and Controlling Q. M.

jy12-1m

☞ Cleveland Banner copy 1 month and forward bill.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS REWARD.—Runaway from the subscriber, at the mouth of Battle Creek, his negro boy Simp. Said boy is eighteen years old, five feet five or six inches high, copper color, and will weigh about 140 or 150 pounds; had on when last seen a grey jacket and grey pants. Said boy is supposed to be in the army somewhere, around Chattanooga.

I will give the above reward to any one delivering said boy at the camp of the 44th (Blythe's) Mississippi regiment, Anderson's brigade, Withers' division, on picket at Taylor's store, Alabama.

JOHN R. WILKS, Co. F, 44th Miss. Reg't.

jy19-4t*

PAPER AND ENVELOPES.—A superior article can be had by wholesale or retail, at Acton's Army News Depot. jy22-tf

AN HOUR of "[illegible] dig," and an extra dinner at Col. R. W. Corbins, makes us at peace "with all the world and the rest of mankind." To all others we would say, go and do likewise. GET A GOOD DINNER—a better dinner—yes the best dinner to be had in Chattanooga. Get it at Col. Corbin's.

jy22-1m* TEXAS, PER RANKIN

$50 REWARD—LOST.—During the recent retreat from Tullahoma my negro boy Will, who was last seen a few miles north of the Tennessee River. Said boy is six feet high, 24 years of age, very black, whites of his eyes very large and conspicuous, and has a swaggering walk. Any information in reference to him will be left at this office.

W. B. WIGGINS, Lt. Co. F, 36th Ala., Clayton's Brig.

jy22-14t*

$100 REWARD.—Stolen at Tullahoma, Tenn., on the night of the 29th of June, my bay Mare, 14 or 14½ hands high, head rather under medium size, and nose straight, the mane close to the shoulder short and curling, with white hairs intermingled, a white spot on the left of the throat caused apparently by the rubbing of throat latch, one hind foot white, spotted with black, a bare spot on the left rump, as much or more in diameter, caused by a splotch of tar. The above reward will be paid for her delivery to Maj. A. L. Landis, Quartermaster Cleburn's Division, or to me at Chattanooga.

C. F. VANDERFORD, Capt. at Hope's Hill's (late Hardee's) Corps.

jy22-5t*

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD.—Will be paid for the apprehension of my boy Tom—a mulatto, about 20 years old, 5 feet 7 inches high, weighs 145 to 150 pounds, speaks slowly, is slightly pock-marked and wears a beard. He left me at Bryanesse, wearing a blue checked shirt, gray homespun jeans pants, heels reinforced, and will try to reach Charleston, or Mobile, if he did not go to the yankees. He has been occupied as a cooper and house servant, and will probably seek employment with some cooper. I will pay [illegible] if taken in the county of the A. A. M. of the 16th Ala., Clayton's Brigade, Stewart's Division, Hardee's Corps, or delivered to me at Bryanesse, Ala.

L. T. WOODRUFF.

THE COUNTY SEAT ABSCISSA.—The decent citizens of Bradley, Hamilton by the Chattanooga way, will remember Brown, McClung, Jaquess & Co., manufacturers under contract with the Governor, to supply the counties of that Department with an indefinite quantity of Jeans, Tweeds, etc., in payment for the same, the proceeds of the sale of the goods, the Governor,