The act of the legislature of Michigan, permitting women to vote has been declared by the supreme court to be unconstitutional.

Sam Jones and Sam Small are to stump Verginia for the populists. There is a democratic ex-parson up in Virginia who is said to be a match for both the Sams and he is being held in readiness to meet them. He is ex-parson, ex-Lieutenant-Governor Massey and is a hummer.

Recently an editor was fined by a California court for publishing a report of testimony taken in a divorce case, after the court had made an order forbidding such a publication. The editor appealed, and the supreme court has sustained his appeal, holding that the lower court had attempted an abridgment of a constitutional right.

The total amount of admissions to the Chicago Exposition from first to last was 27,494,996. This number is three times as great as the attendance at the Centennial, and only about 1,000,000 behind that of the Paris Exposition. The Exposition Company paid out $30,558,849 01, or three times the amount the managers expected to spend when it began. The stockholders will receive $1 for every five paid in.

We have been requested to publish some samples of the more objectionable utterances of Rev. Joseph Jones, delivered at the camp meeting here. We must decline. If a verbatim report of some things Jones said in the camp meeting pulpit at this place was published in the Watchman, the paper would be subject to the ban of the government against obscene literature and be denied transmission in the mails. —Southern Watchman, Clinton, La.

Says a man who has been wearing russet shoes: "I used to pay ten cents to have them polished, but I don't do it any more. I saw that paragraph about rubbing them with the inside of a banana skin. I tried it and it worked first rate. One day I had no banana peel by me, so I tried a small tomato, and that worked first rate, too. Since then I've tried all kinds of stuff—potato parings, apples, carrots, turnips—I don't know what all—and I find that they all work as well as the banana or as the polish that you pay for.

A Kansas editor and a rich widow were engaged to be married when the neighbors began to talk about it, charging that he was marrying her farther riches. The young editor was vexed at this course, and in order to show up its untruthfulness persuaded his finance to turn all her worldy pelf over to her grown daughter that he could prove to the world the sincerity of his affections. The trusting widow did so, and the first night after, the editor and the girl eloped, and in the morning the widow pied the forms of the office and would have pied the editor could she have found him.

OFF FOR CHINCHUBA.

The following was recently published in the Times-Democrat:

The Rev. Father Mignot, one of the most energetic and charitable of the Catholic clergy of this diocese, who has the management of the celebrated Chinchuba Institute for the deaf and dumb unfortunates, will leave to-day for Mandeville, by way of the Pontchartrain Railroad and Mineburg. Father Mignot will be accompanied by a number of recruits for the parishes, whom he will take to Chinchuba for the purpose of instruction and moral training. This is one of the few institutions of the country at which the dumb, paradoxical, as it may seem, are taught to speak, a number of the inmates who are now domiciled there, and who have never heard a sound, owing to defects in their hearing, being able to speak plainly and intelligently.

REPEAL BILL PASSED.

The Voorhees bill repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman act passed the Senate at 7:20 p. m. last Monday, by a vote of 43 yeas to 32 nays.

The bill differs with the Wilson bill in having a clause declaring bimetalism the policy of this government. The contest has been the most remarkable that the country has ever seen.

The bill was then sent to the House, and was adopted by that body on Wednesday, by a vote of nearly 2 to 1, the vote being 191 yeas to 94 nays. It was then sent to the President, who promptly signed it.

The Louisiana delegation voted as follows:

Yeas—Meyer, Davey and Price.

Nays—Blanchard, Boatner and Robertson.

Congress adjourned yesterday afternoon.

MAYOR HARRISON MURDERED.

The country was shocked last Saturday night by the news that Hon. Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, had been shot to death by a crank named Prendergast. The murderer gained admission into the residence of Mayor Harrison at about 8:30 o'clock p. m., and being met by the latter fired four shots, three of which took effect. Mayor Harrison died a few minutes after being shot. Prendergast made an exit from the Mayor's house and gave himself up at a police station. He gave as a reason for the deed, the failure of the Mayor to appoint him a city attorney. The event cast a deep gloom over Chicago and general regret through the country. Mayor Harrison was 68 years old, had served in Congress and been twice before Mayor of Chicago. He was to have married Miss Annie Howard, of New Orleans, in a few days, and the intended bride is prostrated with grief. The funeral of Mayor Harrison took place last Wednesday, and was the largest ever seen in Chicago. Over 100,000 people viewed the remains.

HEAVY RECEIPTS OF COTTON.

Yesterday New Orleans broke the cotton record, with the largest receipts of the staple in a single day ever known in this or any other port. There reached here from all sources, river and rail, 54,433 bales. The largest receipts up to yesterday were on Nov. 17, 1891, the year of the big cotton crop, when there were 47,906 bales. It will be seen that it was later in the season. To break this record during October was a feat altogether unexpected.

It seems that the country also broke the cotton record for the day, this being largely due to the heavy receipts here. The biggest day in the past was Monday, Oct. 31, 1892, when 84,943 bales were received. Yesterday the number of bales reaching the ports was 88,572, and it was not Monday either, when there is usually heavier receipts than on other days of the week, a great deal of cotton being held over.

It is quite evident from these figures that the advice of the Alliance to the farmers to hold back their cotton, and the threats of the gin burners to burn any gins that handle the staple until it reaches ten cents a pound, are not having much effect.—Times-Democrat, Wednesday.

The World's Fair correspondent of the Times-Democrat says:

"Just across the way from the exhibits of the butchered pine trees is an upright show case, which contains some carpets and rugs of excellent appearance. The visitor is surprised to hear that they are made of the pine needles. The needles of the long leaf pine are very rich in fibrous matter, and textures made from them have a delicious fragrance of the forest. It is claimed from them that they do not decay with nearly the same rapidity of other tapestries and that they are never attacked by vermin. This manufacture of pine needle carpets has come to somewhat of an industry in North Carolina, and there is no reason why it should not be one of the standard industries of the great pine forest countries of the South."

The farmer who realizes enough from the sale of his cotton to buy bacon at the present prices is doing exceedingly well.—Ex.

Talisheek.

Oct. 23, 1893.

EDITOR ST TAMMANY FARMER:

The year is on the wane, and harvest time is almost over. Crops were fine in this vicinity, and the farmers' cribs are filled to almost running over with the beautiful golden grain.

The cotton fields are almost stripped of their snowy whiteness. Just a few more days of this lovely weather, and all will be gathered in and harvest will be over.

The writer attended services conducted by Rev. D. C. Rawls at the St. Tammany Camp Ground on Sunday evening, Oct 22d. Quite a number were present, among them the lovely and accomplished Miss Mary Abney, of Covington, who presided over the music.

We have some good church-going people in our country, and there are others who, rather than spend their Sabbaths at Church or Sunday School with their children, send them out hickory-nut gathering, or allow them to do anything else that is weak and sinful on the Lord's day.

On Sunday evening, the 22d, Biving's Creek ford was completely filled with green timber. A few hundred yards further, around the foot of Williams' Hill, the road was again blocked, so that it is impossible for any one to pass, the timber being cut so that it is lapped and piled in all directions, making it appear as though a miniature cyclone had passed along.

The same night, in some mysterious way, Biving's Creek schoolhouse caught fire and burned to the ground. Readers, if you chance to see a cart-wheel, with matches and a bundle of kindling, look sharp, for you may be sure they are off to burn some school-house. This is the second school-house burned in this ward, but the good patrons have not yet despaired. They are going to build another.

Mrs. A. M. Bowman opened a private school in the Williams settlement on Monday, Oct. 23.

Prof. W. M. Alford is suffering from a severe illness at the home of Mr. Otto Strattman. We hope soon to hear of his recovery.

REMEDY FOR BLIND STAGGERS.

W. C. Parish, a Texas horseman, gives the following remedy for blind staggers in the Texas Farm and Ranch: Take a piece of paper say eighteen inches long, twist it the size of your thumb and wet three inches at one end in ammonia or hartshorn, put it up in the horse's nostril as far as it will go. Let it remain a minute or two then put it in the other nostril. Hold the head up, nose down, for a few minutes. It will cure in fifteen minutes.

MCKINLEY ACT AND SUGAR BOUNTY.—The results of the system of sugar bounties created by the McKinley Act are gratifying to the friends of home industry. The gross product of sugar, under the stimulation of the bounties, increased in the fiscal year 1893 considerably more than one hundred million pounds over the product of the proceeding year. The most interesting facts connected with the business is that the production of beet sugar was doubled. It amounted to 13 million pounds in 1892, and to 27 million pounds in 1893. This growth appears to prove that the industry is capable of practically infinite development if it shall have sufficient encouragement. No reason appears why we should not produce from our own soil enough cane sugar and beet sugar to supply fully the domestic demand. The beet sugar business was created in Europe by protective systems, and to-day it is the chief source of sugar supply for the world. Had it not been called into existence by protection, quite likely the price of sugar would be three or four times what it is now. The value of production to a new industry can never be better illustrated than by reference to the sugar beet, and the experience of Europe with its culture completely answers those persons who object to use of public money for bounties, as being unfair. The independence of this country in the matter of sugar will be worth all the money it is likely to cost.—The Manufacturer.

WOMEN'S MOST ATTRACTIVE AGE.

The physical beauty of women should last until they are past fifty. Nor does beauty reach its zenith under the age of thirty-five or forty. Helen of Troy comes upon the stage at the age of forty. Aspasia was thirty-six when married to Pericles, and she was a brilliant figure thirty years thereafter. Cleopatra was past thirty-six when she met Antony. Diane de Poictiers was thirty-six when she won the heart of Henry II. The King was half her age, but his devotion never changed. Anne of Austria was thirty-eight when described as the most beautiful women in Europe. Mme. de Maintenon was forty-three when united to Louis, and Catherine of Russia was thirty-three, when she seized the throne which she occupied for thirty-five years, and M'lle Mar was most beautiful at forty-five, and Mme. Recamier between the ages of thirty-five and fifty-five. The most lasting and intense passion is not inspired by two-decade beauties. The old saying about sweet sixteen is exploded by the truer knowledge that the highest beauty does not dwell in immaturity. For beauty does not mean alone the fashion of form and coloring, as found in the waxen doll. The dew of youth and complexion of roses sometimes combine in a face that is unmoving and unresponsive, as though lacking utterly the life spark. A woman's best and richest years are from twenty-six to forty. It is an arrant error for any woman to regard herself as passee at an earlier day.

In the course of years, however, a time arrives when the coming of age must be recognized, when the muscles begin to relax, the skin to lose its polish, and roundness and softness give place to angles. Contentment and good humor will still outrival all medical inventions as a preservative of youth. A woman, beautiful in all else, but wanting mirth, will grow old, thin and sallow, while the merry, fun-loving woman will be fresh and sweet, despite life's happenings and sorrows.—New York Times.

A DOG WORTH HAVING.

C. M. McCloud, a shoe drummer of Portsmouth, Ohio, returned from Kentucky the other evening and related to a St. Louis Republic man a thrilling story of adventure. For two days he was the guest of Harry Biggs, son of the proprietor of the Biggs House, at his Kentucky home, near Tygart creek. He took with him his gun and fine thoroughbred Irish setter Frank. It was a fortunate suggestion which caused him to take the dog, for to that noble animal he owes his life. One afternoon McCloud and Biggs strolled over to the woods near Tygart Creek for a shot at a squirrel. The dog was tied up at the house. They had been in the woods some time when young Biggs had occasion to return to the house for something. McCloud went up the ravine to a shady nook, where he lay down to sleep. How long he slept he can't say, but the terror of his awaking was beyond description. He awakened with the consciousness of a heavy weight upon his breast, and before he saw what it was, his nostrils were assailed by a peculiar odor. Glancing down (he was lying on his back) the sight which met his eyes well nigh petrified him. There, coiled on his breast was a full-grown rattlesnake. It was sleeping peaceably, and for some time, which seemed ages to the horrified man, he was almost afraid to breath lest he should awake it.

Presently Biggs returned and his footsteps awakened the reptile, which was instantly head and tail erect awaiting the attack. Biggs at once saw the horror of the situation but was at a loss what to do. He feared to fire lest he might shoot his companion, and he also feared that if he did not kill the snake instantly it would dash its fangs into the prostrate man. While both men were thus stupified with fear the bushes again parted and another actor was on the scene. It was the dog. He at once saw his master's peril, and, crouching with his belly almost on the ground, he slowly crept toward the snake. The latter watched every move of the dog, as if he knew the duel was to the death. On came the dog, creeping slowly as a snail, then, within five feet, with one leap of almost lightning rapidity, he was on the snake. The bound was so sudden that the snake had no time to strike, and before the two men could realize what had happened the reptile was torn to shreds. The two men took the dog to the creek and thoroughly washed his mouth, and, to their joy, found no scratches. After the excitement McCloud sank into a faint and was just able to get home. The dog in his eagerness to follow his master, had broken his fastenings. It can be easily guessed that no money could buy the dog now.

RICE.

A moderately active market prevails for both rough and clean rice. Higher prices are looked for by holders, both here and in the country, and offerings are made but sparingly at current quotations.

It is reported that the rice committee of the Board of Trade have decided to quote rice in the future by grades, four grades being adopted, known as Nos. 1. 2. 3 and 4. Rice that has been burnt in the stack, or is otherwise off grade, will be sold on its merits as at present.—Louisiana Planter.
