Thistles.

—Pinaphorism—Better late than hardly ever.

—A man can borrow all the trouble he wants on his own personal security.

—When a farmer puts a ring in a pig's nose he strikes at the root of the thing.

—When a cat gives an entertainment from the top of a wall, it isn't the cat we object to; it's the waul.

—He said he wanted her to be his helpmate, and she replied that she could never be more than another to him.

—The most beautiful and natural illustration of a sunrise is the sight of a man with a red flannel night cap crawling slowly out of bed.

—When a bashful Hamburg lover begins to hitch his chair a little nearer the idol of his affection, can it be properly called Hamburg edging?

—Tramps have generally no religious belief, but all lean toward the church of roam.

—De profundis. Pat (after)—An' which did ye put in first—the whiskey or the water? Domestic—The whiskey, av coorse. Pat—Ah thin may be I'll be coming to't. Eye-'n-bye!

—The superintendent of public schools in Boston is preparing a school reader which will contain more fairy tales and less stories about honest farmers. May he be found a stone in the bottom of his jar of butter.

—They say the difference between a grasshopper and a grass widow is—is—by heavens there is no difference. They'll both jump at the first chance.

—A Chicago man's nightmare turned out to be the shadow of his wife's foot on the bedroom wall, instead of an unearthly monster with five horns.

—If you was a decent person, remarked a shrill female voice on the railway, you would shut down that window and not expose me to the draft. Madam, was the reply, I thought from your face that you were over forty-five and not subject to a draft.

—The most absent minded man was not the man who hunted for his pipe when it was between his teeth, nor the one who threw his hat out of the window and tried to hang his cigar on a peg; nol but the man who put his umbrella to bed and went and stood behind the door.

—In a little family discussion, the other day, the madam remarked, somewhat tartly: When I marry again—suppose you will marry a fool, interrupted the husband. Beg your pardon said she, I shall do nothing of the kind prefer a change! The lord and master wilted.

—There is nothing so charming as the innocence of children. Mamma, said a five year old the other day, I wish you wouldn't leave me to take care of baby again. He was so bad that I had to eat all the sponge cake and two jars of raspberry jam to amuse him.

—Do animals have fun? asks some observing individual. Of course they do. When a cow switches her tail across the face of the man who is milking her, and steps along just two yards and turns to see him pick up his stool and follow, she has the most amused expression on her face possible, and if she can kick over the milk pail she grows positively hilarious.

—A man, whose countenance was homely enough to scare a Quaker, was lounging around a public house, when he was observed by a Yankee, who asked him if he had not met with an accident when he was young. What do you mean, you impertinent scoundrel. Why, I didn't mean nothin', only you've got such an allfired crooked mouth, I thought as how you might a fall'n into the brook when you was a boy and your mother hung you up by the mouth to dry.

—You must write as you talk, in a natural manner, said a schoolmaster to a pupil the other day. The next day she brought a composition to school which read somewhat as follows: Lady Washington was a widow (humph) when George Washington married her (Oh, dear, there's a blot). Her name was Martha (I always did hate that name) Curtis. They had no children (achew) but they had plenty of slaves (tra la), and they lived at Mount Vernon (there goes the dinner bell,) and Washington's tomb is there (the soup will be cold), and there he lies to be wept over by a grateful people who have had a good square hot meal.

—The Duke of Argyll was once giving evidence before a committee of the House of Commons on the temperance question. Hot said a member inquiringly, one Baillie MacPherson, apparently a person of Authority, deposes that he never saw anyone drunk in his district? Very likely, replied His Grace, Scotchmen will hardly allow a man to be drunk so long as he can lie still on the floor.

—A Californian's matrimonial advertisement winds up as follows: Fortune no object, but should require the gal's relations to deposit one thousand five hundred dollars with me as security for her good behavior.

—Do you think I'm a fool? asked a violent fellow of a doctor. Really, replied the doctor, I would not have made the assertion, but now that you ask my opinion, must say that I am not prepared to deny it.

CatarrH

Never Failing Relief.

AFFORDED BY

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

IT is a fact that can be substantiated by the most respectable testimonials ever afforded in favor of any proprietary medicine, that the RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH does in every case afford instant and permanent relief. No matter of how long standing, or how severe the disease the first dose gives such evidence of its value in the treatment of Catarrhal affections that confidence is at once felt in its ability to do all that is claimed for it. The testimony of physicians, druggists, and patients is unanimous in this respect, and the accumulating evidence is in point of respectability superior to any ever before obtained in favor of a popular remedy. The proprietors, therefore, may justly feel proud of the position the RADICAL CURE has attained, and believe it worthy of its reputation.

10 Years a Sufferer.

From Hon. T. P. Bogert, Bristol, R. I.

MESSRS. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—Feeling thoroughly convinced of the efficacy of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH, I am induced to drop you a line to say that although I have been skeptical of all the nostrums advertised as "radical cures," I have never found anything that promised such relief and ultimate cure as that of SANFORD'S.

I have been afflicted with this disease more than ten years, and not until recently could I be induced to persevere with any medicine. I read the letter of Mr. HENRY WATTS, and I can truthfully say that after using five or six bottles I am thoroughly convinced of its curative properties. It is now that others similarly afflicted like myself will be induced to make the trial, I am, gentlemen, very truly, etc.

LEAVES AND OTHER COMPOST MATERIALS.

There is no sure, and, in some localities, no better way of restoring exhausted lands to a condition of virgin fertility than by allowing them to be covered with forests. The annual top dressing of leaves and decaying branches will in a few years rejuvenate the soil. In every grove of deciduous trees there is a reservoir of fertilizing material which can be used without robbing the trees for top dressing the meadows. It may not always pay to haul the leaves to the barn to be used as bedding for stock and afterwards as top-dressing, though this is often the best disposition that can be made of them; but it certainly does pay to cart them to the compost heap after they are rotted. Leaves are rich in potash and phosphates, as is proved not only in analysis, but by the fact that the wild animals which feed upon them develope large bones. The objection to their use in a fresh state is that the gathering involves to much labor, and they are so bulky that a large quantity makes only a small pile of manure After they have rotted on the leeward side of a hill, or in some gulch where the wind has gathered them, they can be hauled to the neighboring field and made into compost with great economy. There is no better base for compost than this leaf mould of the forest.

The farmer who has a nose for fertilizers will seldom be at a loss where to obtain them, and this without going off his own premises. The privy, the slops of the house, including the laundry, the pig pen and the hennery will supplement the supply from the stables. All the dead animals of the farm, the refuse brine and vegetables, the leached ashes, the woolen rags, feathers of the slaughtered hens and bristles of the slaughtered hogs should be scrupulously added to the compost heap, and if this is done there will not be much lack of top-dressing. If more is required buy leached or unleached ashes and compost them with muck or soil. These pay every time. If on entering the village grocery you smell old brine or putrid fish, offer the merchants to take these nuisances off his hands. They will make a valuable addition to compost. If there is a woolen or paper mill, or a tannery in the vicinity, these establishments will furnish much refuse for composting. The dust from the paper rags and the shoddy of a woolen mill are rich in nitrogen, and the manufacturer is often glad to get rid of them without pay. One word as to the time of applying top dressing. September is the month of months for doing this, and it should be done before the fall rains. The grass thus gets a good growth before winter, and in the spring starts early and vigorously, and is ready for the mower in June.—[Rural Sun.

Upon the setting of the milk depends the quantity of the cream raised as well as the quality of the butter. The difference between deep and shallow setting is too small to be perceived by the most careful tests excepting as regards convenience. The deep can system is convenient under certain circumstances and in some is indispensable; but I prefer shallow setting when all other things are equal. All these things are equalized and more by the Ferguson Bureau Creamery, which is the most convenient shallow pan system I have met with. This consists of a closet with shelves for the pans inclosed by glazed or wire-gauze doors; a place below for the cream and butter and one above for ice. The temperature may be maintained the year round at any desired point; the milk and cream are thoroughly aired and exposed to light; and the closet may be kept in any place that may be desired. For usefulness and labor saving I have met with no more effective plan than this But with whatever system of setting is used, the requisites for first quality butter are purity of air, sufficient ventilation, moist but not damp atmosphere and freedom from any odor whatever, with a temperature not below 45 and not over 60 degrees. The cream skimmed, every 36 hours, should be stirred in the cream jar each time that fresh cream is added, and should be kept as purely as the milk.

There is a dispute respecting the churning of sweet and sour cream. Sweet cream will make delicious butter and preferable for immediate sale; but this will not keep so well, nor has it that ripeness of flavor and peculiar nutttiness which butter made from sour cream possesses. Sour cream butter may be kept for a year or more, and may improve with age to some extent for a few months while sweet cream butter should be eaten in a week after it is made. Thus it depends upon the manner of disposal, if one should churn sweet or sour cream. But the acidity of the cream must not be excessive. In winter, if kept at a temperature of 50 degrees, the cream may be churned once a week; if kept longer there may be trouble in the churning.—[Henry Stewart in the Rural New Yorker.

It is not good luck that makes good crops, but it is good work. Some farmers always have good crops, good stock and get good prices. It is because whatever they put their hand to do they do well. They have clean fields, good fences and do good plowing, cultivating and seeding. They farm with their brains as well as their hands. If other farmers would imitate their examples, they would have better crops. Success does not depend so much upon good luck as it does upon good work.

SIGNS of CATARRH.

No other such loathsome, treacherous and undermining malady curses mankind. One-fifth of our Children die of disease generated by its Infectious Poison, and one-fourth of living men and women drag out miserable existences from the same cause. While asleep, the impurities in the nostrils are necessarily swallowed into the stomach and inhaled into the lungs to poison every part of the system.

Dr. Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure absorbs the purulent virus and kills the seeds of poison in the farthest parts of the system. It will not only relieve, but certainly cure Catarrh at any stage. It is the only remedy which in our judgment, has ever yet really cured a case of Chronic Catarrh.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the glossy freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brushy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.
