THROWING POISON INTO YARDS.

On the first page is a notice to the public, signed by C. J. Payne. It is hardly to be believed that any one would throw poison of any kind into a private yard, with a full comprehension of the danger to human life accompanying such an act, yet if depravity was not the cause of the reckless and vengeful spirit that must have actuated the person, he still is a danger and a menace to the public by the very heedlessness of his mind and his inability to see the enormity of his offense. Any one who would risk human life in an attempt to kill an animal, no matter for what cause, is an unsafe person to have at large, and it is to be hoped that his identity may be made known and that he may be punished for the protection of others who may be unfortunate enough to own a dog that does not come up to his standard of what a dog ought to be.

Any little child might pick up a piece of candy fudge and eat it. To fill it with strychnine and throw it into a private yard is an offense that would demand serious punishment, if detected, and the party could be detected if an efficient detective was put on the case. There has been complaint before of lawless acts of this kind, but this is the first case in which candy was used as the bait, to our knowledge. It is time that such lawlessness were stamped out, and it will be when it reaches such a stage as this, for there is a limit to patience.

A HUMILIATING EXAMPLE OF THE UNFITNESS OF MOB LAW.

If Gov. Blease will drop his egotism long enough to view the results of the uncontrolled violence of the mob at Houston, Miss., a few days ago, perhaps he will understand why intelligent people are not in sympathy with his ideas in regard to lynch law. The provocation was in this case sufficient to arouse in any man the deepest sense of horror. No feeling of pity could have urged Governor Brewer or District Attorney Knox to plead with the mob to let the law take its course. Their plea was simply for law and order, the dignity of the State, the mantle of protection that guarantees to every man a fair trial before conviction; and subsequent events proved the wisdom of that policy, without which no government could stand among the civilized nations of the world. An innocent man suffered a violent death. Because he was a negro does not lessen the responsibility for the act nor ease the crime of the horror of its injustice.

The real culprit was burned at the stake. There will be no pity for him. To the brutality of his crime is added the ingratitude of a trusted servant. But the unlawful act of the mob has not only punished a criminal, but it has invaded the sanctity of the law and trampled its guarantee of protection in the dust.

As long as such exhibitions of unlawfulness are shielded from condemnation by a foolish sentimentality, their recurrence may be expected. Such acts should not be defended nor condoned, but the consequences should be marked with retributive justice and public disapproval.

DEPARTMENT OF SCHOOLS

On Friday, February 8, a meeting of the recently organized Literary Society of the high school was held. The students are taking great interest in these meetings, which are held every two weeks. Numbers were contributed to the program by members of the grammar and high school departments. Among the features were musical numbers, a recitation, papers on interesting topics and a hotly contested debate. The subject of the debate was: "Resolved, That Poverty is not an impediment to success." Able speakers represented both sides of the question, which was decided in favor of the negative.

The object of these meetings is to pave the way for organizing a literary society similar to those in approved high schools. Pupils gain assurance and self-reliance from taking part in the program. Good work in the society is rewarded by extra points in school grades. Patrons are invited to attend the meetings, which are held every second Friday at 1:30 p. m. at the high school building.

A few weeks ago, there appeared in the Farmer under the caption of school notes, an explanation of the system of marking the grades made by pupils in the public school of Covington, which was meant for an appeal to parents whose children were not doing good work. Following that article, the pupils reports of the first five months, were given out. This, too, should have been an appeal to parents. Yet there has been very little response to either or both.

Many of the pupils who failed during the first half of the school year, are still failing with no apparent uneasiness. It seem that no attention is given the monthly reports. Many parents whose children have failed, seem to think nothing of it. What shall we conclude? Must we believe that parents are unconcerned about the educational welfare of their children? Or are we to think that they look upon failures as nothing of great importance? Or, have the parents examined these reports?

Promotion at the end of the school year will be made, strictly, from the grades placed upon these cards. By adding the grades in any branch for five months and divide that sum by five, anyone can tell whether or not his or her child has passed in that particular subject. If the student is below 75, then the pupil has failed in that subject.

Close and careful grading is the only system by which any school can be brought to a high standard. No child can pursue the work successfully in the succeeding grades unless he has done the work well in his present grade. Pupils crowded ahead of their work will always be weak.

An Example: It occurs sometimes that a child is rushed through the fundamental operation in arithmetic as addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, to take up fractions. He says fractions are hard. Why? Because he did not understand what preceded. They pass to percentage. Here the result is the same, for exactly the same reason.

"A good house must have a good foundation." If there is no foundation there is no house.

Come and talk with us regarding your child. Help us and we can help you.

A. J. PARK.

A very interesting Teachers' Institute was held at the Covington school house on Saturday, February 8, 1913. It opened with a song followed by the roll call, which was answered with educational maxims.

The first regular number was a model recitation in U. S. History, given by Miss Maggie Hogan. The recitation was enjoyed by all as it was well presented, showing preparation by both pupils and teacher.

"Psychology and the Teacher," will next take up and discussed. The discussion was led by Miss Jennie Cooper and Miss Lucy Perkins. Everyone seemed anxious to enter in to the discussion.

After this number they adjourned until 1:15 p. m.

The musical and literary evening held last Friday at the school house was indeed a pleasant affair. These evenings have become a feature of our school work and are held every second week. There are debates, readings, recitations, singing and music, and every boy and girl on the program did credit to themselves and to the careful training of their instructors. Prof. Park has done much to make school life pleasant, and to get the co-operation of the parents it is to be regretted that so few take an interest in this work. We sincerely hope that more of the friends of the school, the fathers and mothers, will attend these exercises and appreciate the work. We now have a laboratory, for chemistry and biology installed; bought by the School Improvement League, and friends are invited to call and see all the things. We are sure you will feel that, though we have not a modern building, we have quite as good school as any in the State.

The Institute convened at 1:15 p. m. First thing was roll call.

The first number, "Association and Attention," was omitted as Miss Pearce asked to be excused.

A general discussion on "Some Dont's" was then taken up. Mr Park read the outline, then called on the teachers to give their ideas on the subjects. As this was a discussion on discipline everone entered into it.

Miss Jessie Pritchard next read a paper, "The Importance of a Proper Assignment."

The last number on the program was a debate, "Resolved, That Environment Exerts More Influence Upon the Child Than Heredity." Some of the debaters being absent several members of the Institute volunteered. The discussion was closed with the general idea that both, environment and heredity, were so closely connected that it was hard to draw the line.

The program for the next meeting was then read by Miss Cases, after which Mr. Park, Institute Conductor, stated that if there was no further business the meeting would adjourn.

Following is the program for February 21, 1913, at 1:30 p. m.:

Instrumental Solo, Francis Hoehn.
Paper, "The Influence of the Telephone," Amy Beaucoudray.
Chorus, by high school pupils.
Paper, "Athletics in the High Schools of Louisiana," John Quave.
Solo, Miss Anna Morrell.
Debate, "Resolved, That With Human Beings and Animals, More Can be Accomplished through fear of Punishment Than Through Hope of Reward." Affirmative, Myrtle Sharp and Camille Pigott, negative, Elise Ray and Bonnie Moses.
Paper, "Valentine Day," Theresa Langworthy.
Song, by the school.
Paper, editress, Lucy Ray; assistants, Norma Weaver and Frank Bacon.
President, Miss Ida Howell.
Critic, Miss Anna Morrell.

The debate last week was an exciting one, the negative team winning by a unanimous vote. The negative being Whitaker Riggs and Margaret Bushnell, the affirmative being Sam Lansing and Carrie Addison. Both sides showed their true school spirit by entering into the debate with such vigor. Carrie Addison argued her point strongly. Sam Lansing acted as substitute and simply introduced the subject. Whit Riggs' side of the debate was very good, but Margaret Bushnell showed what she could do. Her debate was fine and she was much applauded.

"Old Gold and White," the school paper, of which Lucy Ray is editress and Norma Weaver and Frank Bacon assistants, was thought by everybody to be very good. It consisted of some very good jokes, doggerels, etc.

The roll of honor for the four weeks is as follows:

Willie Lanagan, Eddie Chaze, Julian Hudson, Roland Lewis, Margaret Bacon, Mabel Lynch, Thelma Quave, Leotha Thorton, Wilmina Ulmer, Pauline Brock, Wheeler Galea.

A CHANCE FOR COVINGTON.

The following letter has been received by Superintendent Lyon. Probably Mr. Lyon will make an effort to secure the school for Covington. It depends mainly upon our ability to furnish the proper outfit for teaching in the departments that will be required by the State Board of Education. Covington offers advantages that can not be given by other places, but at same time, Hammond will make a hard fight for the school and can furnish necessary equipment. Covington is conveniently situated as to railway facilities, offers an opportunity for reasonable board and comfortable lodging, and is the healthiest place that could be chosen. There should be a good chance for Covington.

Baton Rouge, Feb. 11, 1913.

Dear Superintendent:

By action of the State Board of Education yesterday, we are preparing to operate a six weeks summer school for the teachers of the Florida parishes, to be located at a convenient point in one of the following parishes: Livingston, Tangipahoa, St. Tammany, St. Helena and Washington.

For the purpose of discussing the general plans, and of deciding upon the location, I should like to meet the superintendents of the above parishes at Hammond, Thursday, Feb 20, at 10 a. m. If possible, Mr Harris will be present also.

Trusting that we shall all work together to have an excellent school in that section this summer, and that it will be convenient for you to meet us on the above date, I am,

Yours very truly,
C. L. IVES,
State Institute Conductor.

LARGE TIMBER DEAL.

Thirteen Hundred and Fifty-Seven Acres of Timber Land in St. Tammany Parish Bought by Theo. Dendinger.

Mr. Theo. Dendinger, of Madisonville, bought from Messrs. Planche and Pelloat one of the few remaining valuable tracts of timber land in St. Tammany parish. The tract consists of 1357 acres and the purchase price was $70,000. Mr. Dendinger is the owner of a large saw mill at Madisonville and the timber will be used in his mill.

The Dendinger mill probably employs over fifty men and the pay roll puts considerable money in circulation in the town. The timber in question is situated along the Tchefuncta river and can be rafted to the mill at small expense.

ISAAC P. TALLEY.

In Loving Memory.

Had I the power, on this sad night to softly speak one little word that sound should no'er be heard; for he has gone to live with God above; for though to-day, with sobbing sound, we stood around an open grave and to the dark and mournful ground a priceless treasure gave. Yet God in his infinite grace and love has made it lighter to bear by showing that in His home above he is free from pain and care. Now we have one vacant place, the weak, low voice is still; but on the patient suffering face we read God's holy will. We know he was glad to leave this sinful world and cross to the shining shore where, in the loving Savior's crown, he is a jewel forever more. Then cease sad heart your anguished, and listen to bright Heaven's bell, that says to him that stands and waits, "He doth all things well." We should not grieve for our loved one gone, but look up and say I trust Thee faithful friend, and walk while Jesus leads the way. We hope to meet him in the end.

A DEAR FRIEND.
