DURYEA'S MAIZENA

TRY ONE POUND

TRY ONE POUND

Was the only "Preparation for food from Indian Corn"

That received a medal and honorable mention from the Royal Commissioners, the competitors of all prominent manufacturers of "Corn Starch" and Prepared Corn Flour" of this and other countries notwithstanding.

MAIZENA,

The food and luxury of the age, without a single fault. One trial will convince the most skeptical. Makes Puddings, Custards, Blanc Mange, &c., without eggs, with few or no eggs, a most astonishing the most economical. A slight addition to ordinary Wheat Flour greatly improves Bread and Cake. It is also excellent for thickening sweet sauces, gravies or fish or fleet, soup, &c. For Ice-Cream nothing can compare with it. A little boiled in milk will produce rich cream for coffee, chocolate, tea, &c.

But up in one pound packages, under the trade mark Maizena, with directions for use.

A most delicious article of food for children and invalids of all ages. For sale by Grocers and Druggists everywhere.

SEWING MACHINE.

THIS is the great Family Sewing Machine of the World. It is the most rapid of all machines in its work. It makes the double thread, lock stitch, which will not unravel. It is adapted to all kinds of work, from the finest cambric to heavy cloth, and gathers in the most beautiful manner. It is a most beautiful piece of mechanism. It is noiseless in its construction. It uses no shuttle, but uses in lieu of it a cylinder containing the shuttle, which never is lost or out of order. It has universally carried off the premium wherever it has been offered to the world at the World's Fair, London; the Industrial Exposition, at Paris; at United States Fairs; at State Fairs; at Mechanics' Institutes, and at County Fairs. Office in Masonic Temple, Church st., somewhere with Dorman & Paxton.

For Sale,

A HOUSE AND LOT, within fifty steps of the Capitol, on Vineyard, and near the corner of Cedar, and fronts the state grounds on that. The house was just new before the rebellion, and can be seen for miles—having an alley on the lot, not built on. The ground descends back so that no building in the rear will ever obstruct the view or site. There is a basement on the back end, renting for $10 per month, and the front building could have been rented the year for $300. Those who come to rent would die sooner than pay the rent, and would pay back the purchase money in less than a half year. Apply on the premises.

Also, various other Lots for sale.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Governor Perry's Message Read--Eulogy on President Johnson--Dependence on Northern States Deprecated--Immigration Invited--Provision for Freedmen, &c.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 25.

Governor Perry's message was read before the Legislature, to-day. He says, though his appointment was made several months after the other Provisional Governors, South Carolina now is as far advanced in reconstruction as any other State. By restoring those who were in civil office at the suspension of the civil government reconstruction was greatly expedited.

This measure was objected to by the military authorities, but he was sustained by President Johnson, to whom will be assigned in history the glory of having reconstructed the broken and dismantled fragments of the Republic without marring its civic beauties. He alludes to the new Constitution as popular and democratic, inspiring the people with more zeal and energy in developing the talent and resources of the State.

He recommends the fostering of internal improvements, commerce and manufactures, and the encouragement of foreign emigration; also, that they shall not be dependent, as heretofore, on the Western States for bacon, corn, mules, cattle, hogs, horses, lard and beef; nor on the Northern States for furniture, agricultural implements and clothes, but should raise, grow, and make everything for themselves. Now that slavery is abolished, labor is made more honorable and necessary. Young men must become tradesmen, manufacturers and mechanics. Northern friends are invited to come.

Immediate provision must be made for the protection, by the Government, of freedmen. This is expected by the President and Congress, and will remove all pretext for military rule.

The election of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, should be given to the people, and an early day fixed for the election of members of Congress. Should those elected be in Washington, with their credentials, when the Clerk calls the roll, they can not be excluded any more than those from Massachusetts.

No man in South Carolina can take the test oath without perjury. It is not the policy of the President to enforce this, and he believes that it is not the policy of Congress.

An election is necessary, for two United States Senators—one for six years from the 3d of March last, and the unexpired term, to March, 1867.

He recommends the issuing of State bonds, and selling them to pay the State debt and avoid present taxation. The reorganization of the militia is urged, the Secretary of State at Washington having given assurance that as soon as the State Government is organized, all the troops will be withdrawn. He recommends the re-establishment of the South Carolina College as a university system, and the reopening of the Citadel Academy, for ladies.

He opposes any act looking to the repudiation of the State debt. He recommends the exchange of public documents with all the sister States.

He has been informed by the Postmaster General that the mail will be carried over all railroads as soon as the Department is assured of the responsibility of the agents.

In conclusion, he asks the people to look only to the future, and not to the past.

Gold in Minnesota.

Correspondence of the Cleveland Herald.

DE LUTH, MINN., Oct. 19, 1865.

Gold has just been discovered in immense quantities near Lake Vermilion, about eighty miles north from this city, and fortune hunters are fast flocking from all parts of the country, to make examinations and to secure by scrip favorable locations. The first discovery was made by Professor Henry Eames of St. Paul, who as State Geologist, went up the St. Louis River from this point, and thence up the upper Embarras, and, by portage, across into the South Vermilion River, which empties into the south end, or first arm of Vermilion Lake.

In order to be able to thoroughly post the public in regard to the mines, your correspondent has just made the trip, and enjoyed a personal examination of the whole ground.

The gold is not found in its native State, as in California, but in iron and copper pyrites as in Idaho.

It is in bright sparkling quartz veins from three inches to ten feet in width, and extends for miles; the amount in fact, being almost unlimited.

These quartz veins pass through immense beds of talcose slate of much beauty and value, being considered, for whiteness and hones, almost unequalled.

Surface quartz from these veins has been assayed at the Mint in Philadelphia, and by Professor Kent of New York, and pronounced in both instances to average over thirty dollars of gold to the ton.

If these veins increase in richness as they descend—as is almost invariably the case in Idaho and California—it is reasonable to suppose that they will soon yield a profit of $50 or $60 to the ton.

The yield of the quartz rock on the Pacific coast, varies from $2 to $300 per ton, but the best paying mines average less than $25 per ton.

The lowest average yield that can be worked to a profit in that new country (where wood, provisions and machinery all command fabulous prices,) is $6 per ton—which is the case of the Josephine mine on the Mariposa claim, lately owned by John C. Fremont.

The land in the vicinity of Vermilion Lake is heavily wooded; fuel can be had for the mere cutting, and the South Vermilion River offers a water power about half a mile above the lake, of great beauty and of immense power.

The lands in the vicinity of the mines are unsurveyed, and can for the present only be secured by scrip; which has had the effect of raising the Chippewa from eighty-five cents to four dollars, and Sioux from two dollars and a half to twelve dollars per acre.

The Body of King James III, of Scotland, Discovered and Reinterred.

By command of Her Majesty the Queen, an elegant slab or monumental structure has been erected on the spot of ground at Cambuskenneth, near Stirling, where were found some human remains supposed to be those of King James III and his Queen, the Princess Margaret, of Denmark. The royal remains were dug up in the course of some excavations which were made in the summer of last year, when the foundations of the ancient abbey were laid bare. It may be stated that the structure is built of freestone, is about four feet and a half in height, eight feet long, four and a half feet broad at the base, and about three feet broad at the top. On the north side the following inscription is cut in raised letters: "This restoration of the tomb of her ancestors was executed by command of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, A. D. 1866." On the south there is the following: "In this place, near to the high altar of the Abbey of Cambuskenneth, were deposited the remains of James the Third, King of Scots, who died the 11th of June, 1488, and of his Queen, the Princess Margaret, of Denmark." On the west end are the Scotch arms, with the motto, "nemo me impune lacessit," and on the east end the Scotch arms, quartered with those of Denmark, surrounded by a scroll of thistles.

On the first day's trial of Mrs. Grinder at Pittsburg for poisoning, Dr. Otto Wurth, chemist, testified to having found arsenic and antimony in the contents of the stomach submitted to him for analysis. James S. Carothers, husband of the deceased, testified she was first taken sick on the 27th of June, after having eaten peaches and cream at Mrs. G.'s—headache, vomiting, thirst. Mrs. G. came in and prepared soup and tea, which witness and wife both partook. Witness was ta
