Chaplain Giles, Seventh Regiment, wounded.

Chaplain Gulick, Twenty-fourth New York.

Chaplain Gregory, Tenth Pennsylvania.

Chaplain Dodd, Twenty-fifth New Jersey.

Chaplain Walton, Twenty-third Illinois.

Chaplain Bradley, Dead Marshes and Twenty-fifth Illinois.

Chaplain Eddy, [illegible] and Indiana.

Chaplain Howell, Nineteenth Pennsylvania.

Chaplain Anderson, Twelfth New Hampshire.

Chaplain Barnett, Fifty-Ninth Illinois.

Chaplain Dunmore, First Wisconsin cavalry.

Chaplain Eddy was left in charge even when he was his gallant self. He had tramped from the Northern Massachusetts and was all of a shiver in the north when his regiment was ordered to the front of Fredericksburg. Seeing a Indian boy getting ready to cross the Rappahannock in rebel boats to drive off the Confederate sharpshooters in the southern town, he volunteered, was one of the first to land and was shot down in the streets of Fredericksburg side by side.

Chaplain O. N. Brown was killed in the desperate battle at New Bern, N. C., where his regiment, the "Regular Killers"—him too! New York—bore the brunt of the fighting and of the carnage. He was shot down as he mingled with the men on the front of battle, encouraging them to do their best.

Chaplain J. M. Stringer fell in a desperate counterchange made by the Third Wisconsin at Resaca. He was a drafted man and had declined a substitute. The chaplaincy was given him enough, and in his first battle he took up a musket and was mortally wounded after a fierce struggle that lasted four hours.

Chaplain Francis B. Butler was shot down while carrying water to the wounded of the Twenty-fifth New Jersey at the battle of Suffolk. His presence under circumstances of his death is purely voluntary and shows a great nerve.

The Forty-third Illinois was one of General McClernand's regiments at Shiloh and lost nearly half its killed and wounded in the two days of fighting. Chaplain John L. Walther was killed.

The One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Illinois was a valiant fighting regiment. Its chaplain, Levi W. Sandreg, was killed in a skirmish at Cayleson's Ferry.

The Chaplain of the Seventy-second Indiana, John W. Eddy, was killed at Hoover's Gap, Tennessee. The regiment, one of General Wilder's mounted brigade, charged the gap in the face of a close fire of artillery and sharpshooters.

The Nineteenth Pennsylvania was one of General Robinson's regiments that passed through the terrible slaughter on Oak Ridge, Gettysburg, in the first day's fight. The chaplain, H. S. Howell, remained with the men in the battle, and during the retreat through the town he was shot down and died on the steps of a church.

Chaplain Thomas L. Anderson of the Twelfth New Hampshire fell in the trenches at Petersburg. "A braver man never lived, a truer man never wore the garb of Christianity" was the eulogy of the regiment.

The First Maine cavalry lost its chaplain, George W. Barker, in the mounted fight at Cold Harbor. The regiment charged up a hill and captured massed artillery. The chaplain was in the line and was hoed through by a solid shot or shell at the first volley. The First Maine cavalry leads the list of crack troopers.

The First Wisconsin cavalry was another regiment of crack fighting troopers. In a little affair at L'Anguille Ferry, near Helena, Ark., it lost over sixty killed and wounded. It was suddenly attacked by the famous Texan rangers under Parsons, and the men made a desperate rush to arms in bodily self-defense. Chaplain G. W. Dunmore was of the party and joined in the melee. He was shot dead "while fighting splendidly."

Scores of fighting chaplains lived to enjoy the honors of war. H. Clay Trumbull of the Tenth Connecticut was recommended for promotion as a reward for conspicuous gallantry in the thickest of the fight. He carried a revolver in his belt, and on two occasions when the line of battle gave way he drew it, and brandishing it in lieu of a sword, rallied the men and led them back into the fight. Father Peter Tissot of the Thirty-seventh New York (Irish) went into battle at Williamsburg, and at Seven Pines his horse was killed under him in the terrible encounter between Phil Kearny's braves and Rode's and Gordon's Confederates. Chaplain Bennett of the Thirty-seventh Ohio fought all day with a musket at the battle of Bald Hill before Atlanta. Chaplain Dwight of the Sixty-sixth New York was constantly in the thick of the fight at Antietam.

The chaplain turned colonel, as is before mentioned, James K. Jacquess had a splendid record. He was chaplain of the Sixth Illinois cavalry, and in 1862 Governor Yates authorized him to raise a regiment of infantry among his Methodist brethren. Recruiting having been suspended, President Lincoln granted a special permit. The rush of recruits was so great that Jacquess had the pick of ten companies for his own regiment, the Seventy-third, and two overflow regiments were formed from the remaining companies. Colonel Jacquess lead the regiment three years. It was one of the crack fighting commands of the West and fought in eleven pitched battles, including Stone River, Chickamauga, Kenesaw and Franklin. More than one-half of the fighting men of the regiment were killed and wounded. Evidently the "Preacher Regiment" didn't take things easy.

Aim at the Drake

And you will hear right home at the mark. This is probably the case with Wampole's Tasteless Preparation OF Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption, Hits the Mark, too, and it most effectually breaks up Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects, actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchial troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod Liver Oil, but not every one is able to take it.

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION removes the nauseous objection and actually makes Cod Liver Oil palatable.

There are homes probably in this land in which it is unknown, except by name, and there are numerous friends abroad to whom this publication would afford untold satisfaction for the fund of reliable information it imparts in its one hundred and fifty or more pages, with nothing of the "Guide Book" gush about it. Price per copy to any address in these islands, 75 cents; or mailed to any address in the Postal Union for 85 cents each.
