THE GRANDEUR OF THE STRUGGLE.

From the Times.

The London Times has well remarked "that since the days of ancient Rome no question so important has been submitted to popular decision" as that which will be submitted to the people of the North at the coming election. It is two thousand years at least since the fall of an empire has been decided at the ballot-box, but never before, in the whole history of the world, has the entire male population of any country been called upon to fix their national destiny by their suffrages. In Greece and Rome none but a slaveholding minority voted, no matter how momentous the crisis in public affairs. We are about to furnish the first example of the deliberate and orderly submission to the judgment of the whole of a free and equal community, of the most important of all worldly questions—the rank to be occupied by a whole people among civilized nations—the shape and complexion of their Government for ages to come.

And this is not all. We are not about to decide simply our own fate. If this were the case, our decision, after all, might be to lookers-on but a small matter. We are about to test the value of certain political principles, on the soundness or unsoundness of which the future condition of most civilized countries will mainly depend. If we now give way, we acknowledge that the South has been right in its proclamation of the failure of democratic government; that its desire to escape from fellowship with us has been reasonable and just; that its ability to maintain its independence is plain; that "free society," as found among us, is a failure and a cheat.

These we know are trite truths to most intelligent men. We often say amongst ourselves that we are "the last hope of free institutions," and that if we give way in our contest, the cause of popular government is lost. But there are very few of us who lay these truths to heart. We are all so absorbed in the paltrier incidents of the struggle, and in its paltrier consequences, in the comparative merits of the two men, Lincoln and McClellan, in the effect peace or war is likely to have on stocks, dry goods, or gold, that we rarely think seriously of the real breadth and vastness of the results of the work in which we are engaged.

We would have every man, when he goes to the polls in November, remember that it is neither for "Little Mac" nor for "Old Abe" he is really voting, but to decide whether forty-four millions out of a population of thirty millions have not the courage and brains to uphold a popular government against the efforts of the other six millions to break it down; whether the great principle of the brotherhood of the human race, of the right of weakness to protection and to justice, promulgated by the Author of Christianity, has or has not any real value as the basis of a political organization; whether God really made the world to be forever the scene of the tyranny and violence of the few, and the tame submission and stupidity of the many—whether, in short, the hopes of the thousands who from age to age have died for liberty were merely idle dreams, or real previsions of "the good time coming." There were great questions, in short, submitted to the bloody arbitrament of the sword at Pharsalia, at Tours, at Waterloo, and at Solferino, but they all sink into insignificance compared with that on which each man will pass who drops his ballot into the box on the 8th of November next.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

From the Tribune.

The great central States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana hold elections in October, at which each of them will choose Representatives in the next Congress and the whole or a major portion of its next Legislature. Indiana elects this year a Governor also; the others elected Governors last year for terms of two and three years respectively. New Jersey, Iowa, and perhaps one or two other States, formerly held elections in October, but have severally changed to the day fixed by Congress for the general choice of Presidential electors—the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November—which falls this year on the 8th. The October elections aforesaid occur on the second Tuesday, which falls this year on the 11th.

Very great importance is naturally attached to the October elections. Occurring just four weeks before the Presidential, and in States which have usually decided our Presidential contests, their results are apt to be regarded as premonitory of the more important issue. That is to say:—When the three States go decidedly the same way in October, it is generally presumed that the party which carries them will almost certainly elect its President; if two of them go decidedly one way, it is presumed that the party so favored has the better chance in November; while, if one goes each way and the third is equally divided, it is currently believed that the Presidential contest will be very close and of dubious issue.

These popular calculations were based on the state of things which no longer exists—wherein the States now in revolt were expected to vote nearly solid for the Democratic National ticket. This year, if we exclude the States which are or have been in rebellion, there are but 231 votes to be cast, whereof 117 are a majority; so that Fremont, who received 114 votes in 1856, would have been almost elected in the now loyal States, though both Pennsylvania and Indiana were against him. If the results of the late elections afford any criterion, Lincoln and Johnson are morally certain of the following votes outside of the contested Middle States:—

Maine	7	Ohio	21
New Hampshire	5	Michigan	8
Massachusetts	12	Wisconsin	8
Rhode Island	4	Minnesota	4
Connecticut	6	Iowa	8
Vermont	5	Kansas	3
New York	33	California	5
Delaware	3	Oregon	3
Maryland	7	West Virginia	5
Total	147, or 30 more than a majority.

Still, a decided triumph of the Opposition in all the October elections would so inspirit and animate them as to render the Presidential contest thenceforth most vehement, and cast some doubt over the result; for the speakers and writers on that side would plausibly say:—"If we could carry these States, why not New York, Connecticut, Michigan, Delaware, and California, giving us, with New Jersey, Kentucky, and Missouri, a clear majority."

Let us consider, then, the aspects of the pending October elections:—

PENNSYLVANIA.—This State elects no officer this year by general ticket, so that it may be difficult to collect her verdict from the results as they may transpire. But it is well known that, in 1862, she chose to Congress twelve members of either party—two of the Republicans (Messrs. Hale and Tracy) being elected, over the regular Republican candidates, mainly by Democratic votes, while one of the Democrats (Joseph Bailly) was, in like manner, chosen by Republican votes over the regular Democratic candidate. At that election the Democrats had 3521 majority on the State ticket (Audenreid's for Canal Commissioner) out of 194,753 votes. The aggregate poll of the State, at her most recent elections, was as follows:—

	Union Votes.	Democratic.
1860—Oct., Gov.	Curtin.....262,346	Foster.....230,239
Nov., Pres't.	Lincoln.....268,030	Douglas.....178,271
1861—Oct., Legislature	Republican majority	25,000
1862—Oct., Aud.	Cochrane.....215,616	Slenker.....213,190
1863—Oct., Gov.	Curtin.....269,506	Woodward.....215,611

A great many soldiers last year came home to vote, nearly all of whom voted for Curtin. They now vote in the field, and it is claimed that a majority will there vote for McClellan! We do not believe it, but the result will show.

—The rival candidates for Congress, with the vote of their respective districts in 1862, are as follows:—

Dist.	Repub. Cand.	Vote.	Democrat.	Vote.

† In these districts, the contest for Congress in 62 being held independent of politics, we give the vote for Auditor instead.

‡ Messrs. Baily (War Democrat), and Glossbrenner (regular Democrat were rival candidates in 62, as now. Baily received the Republican vote, and was elected by 11,968 votes to 9,746. The vote in the above table is that for State Auditor.

Ohio (formerly preponderantly a Whig State, and has been usually Republican since the formation of that party in 1854. In 1862, she went wrong, choosing fourteen "Democrats" to five "Republicans" to Congress, by an aggregate majority of 6717. Last year, she went heavily against the "Peace" party, but more especially against Vallandigham, their candidate for Governor—61,020 on the home and 39,179 on the absent soldiers' vote—total 101,099. It is not likely that so large a majority will soon again be given by her for any party. Her aggregate vote at the recent elections has been as follows:—

	Republican Union.		Democrat.
1860, Oct.	Judge, Brinkerhoff	212,851	Smith	199,558
" Nov.	President—Lincoln	231,610	All others	205,811

1863, Oct.	Governor—Brough	288,601	Vallandigham	187,502

The candidates for Congress in the several districts, with the vote of those districts respectively in 1862, are as follows:—

† Three candidates running for Congress in this District, we are obliged to give the vote on the State ticket.

We guess there will be some beneficent changes in the delegation from this State. Let the returns show that we are not mistaken in our calculation.

Indiana is the arena of a desperate and doubtful contest. She must have more than thirty thousand of her legal voters in camp to-day, whereof we are confident that less than two thousand are Copperheads—and none of them are allowed to vote, save at the poll of their respective homes, where not one-tenth of them can be at their State election. From this distance, it looks as if the odds were greatly against our side; but Governor Morton and other Union candidates, especially those for Congress, are making a gallant canvass, and are hopeful of good results. Could her soldiers vote, we should have no fear as to Indiana, though she went heavily wrong in 1862. Her aggregate vote at her recent elections is as follows:—

1860.	Oct. Gov.	Lane	136,725	Hendricks	128,863
"	Nov. Pres.	Lincoln	139,033	All others	138,119
1861.	No election except (possibly) for local officers.
1862.	Oct. Sec.	Peele	18,317	Anthon	128,169
1863.	Election for local officers only—Union gains.

The rival candidates for Congress now, and the vote of their respective districts at the last election, (1862,) are as follows:—

Dist.	Repub. Cand.	Vote.	Democrat.	Vote.
I.	Chas. M. Allen	9,583	Wm. H. Niblack	11,941
II.	William W. Curry	9,211	Michner E. Kern	10,911
III.	Ralph Hill	10,114	*R. W. Harrington	11,921
IV.	John H. Farquhar	7,991	George Berry	10,936
V.	*George W. Julian	9,772	*James Brown	7,114
VI.	*Ebenezer Dumont	13,525	George H. Smith	10,884
VII.	H. D. Washburne	9,976	*D. W. Voorhees	12,457
VIII.	*Godlove S. Orth	12,022	James F. Harvey	11,181
IX.	*Schuyler Colfax	14,175	David Turpie	14,046
X.	Jos. H. Defrees	11,817	*J. K. Edgerton	12,953
XI.	Thos. N. Stilwell	12,219	*J. P. McDowell	13,142
	Total Vote	116,646		127,571
	Democratic majority	10,725

Our readers have thus placed before them the means of judging fairly the results of the pending October election, and justly estimating their Presidential significance. Let them save this article for comparison with the returns as they shall be received, and they will be armed against all efforts, whether on one side or the other, to mislead them with regard to the nature and bearing of those results.

—The lime-light has superseded all others in the British Channel fleet.

—A new cathedral, calculated to cost £20,000, is to be erected in Tasmania.

—The Council of State of France has sanctioned a pension of 20,000f. to the widow of the Duke of Malakoff.

—One of Nelson's old seamen died lately in England in his eighty-eighth year. His name was James Strachan.

—The Emperor of the French has given decorations of the Legion of Honor to all the persons of the suite of the King of Spain.

—From Florence the death is announced of the Baron D'Hautecourt, a graceful writer, who has published several excellent novels.

—The Photon, British screw frigate, lately anchored at Fortress Monroe, has been ordered to Vera Cruz, to relieve the Liverpool, which has been badly damaged there.

—The difficulties which had arisen between Turkey and Montenegro, in reference to the frontier, have been satisfactorily arranged by a mixed commission.

—The accounts from Caprera are that Garibaldi continues in a very delicate state of health. He can only walk about with the assistance of crutches.

—Amongst the tourists in Switzerland are the Queen of Holland and the Duke de Nemours. The weather has not been propitious for great expeditions, and the Alpine clubs have done but little.

—The Minister of War at Rome has just published, for the first time, a Pontifical army list. General Lamoriciere will be, no doubt, much astonished to learn that he figures in it as commander-in-chief of the Pontifical army.

—A band of brigands, under a peasant chief named Korelles, escaped about a fortnight ago from the northern part of Eubœa, in Greece, and crossed over into Turkey, where they hope to take a share in the profits of a rich cotton crop.

—Nine soldiers, implicated in a robbery of Government clothing at Woolwich, have been found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor for various terms, ranging from fifty-six to one hundred and twelve days.

—The second session of the Catholic Congress of Belgium was opened at Malines on the 20th, when about four thousand persons were present, including the notabilities of the Belgian Catholic party, with distinguished persons from various countries in Europe.

—To a collection lately made at all the Paris churches for burnt-out families of Limoges, Prince Napoleon tow randed for self and wife two thousand francs, and Baron Rothschild ten thousand francs. The Emperor has authorized a lottery, with a capital of five million francs, for the benefit of the unfortunates at Limoges.

—The engagements for the great prize of Paris, to be run for in the year 1866, are now closed. There are 94 horses entered. There were 83 entered for the year 1863, and 126 for the year 1864. There are 142 horses entered for the year 1865. There are 33 French horses and 41 English entered for the year 1866.

—During the year ending March 31, 1864, the navy of England has cost £467,979 for the building of new ships in the Government dockyards. Other vessels built on contract cost £583,931. The expenditure on ships and vessels being out and refitting, repairs and maintenance, brings the whole outlay up to £2,548,397.

—A letter from Naples of the 24th states that a fatal accident took place on the previous evening at the theatre of the Villa Nazionale, during the representation of the ballet of the Landing of Marsala. The Garibaldians had to attack the enemy with a fire of musketry, and by some accident, one of the guns being loaded with ball, a man who formed part of the Bourbonian detachment was killed.

SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.—THE ARRANGEments for the education and maintenance of the destitute Orphans of the Soldiers and Sailors of the State, under the act relating to the subject being now sufficiently completed to enable the undersigned to receive applications, notice is hereby given that blank forms of application, with the necessary instructions, have been deposited with the following gentlemen, from whom the relatives or friends of the orphans can obtain them:

When the application and statement in each case shall be properly filed and sworn to, and certified by the Board of Common School Directors of the District to which the soldiers' family belongs, it is to be returned to the Guardians from whom it was received, or to some other member of the County Superintending committee, by whom it will be forwarded to the undersigned.

In a short time after the receipt of the application by the undersigned, if it be in due form, and the orphan be entitled to the benefits of the act, an order for the admission to the proper school will be issued to the parent, mother, or other applying relative or friend, with necessary instructions.

It is expected that the schools selected for these orphans will be ready for their reception during the month of October. Their friends will therefore take the necessary steps and have them ready for admission by the 1st of November at the latest.

The State will provide clothing, boarding, washing, mending, instruction books, &c., for the orphans while in the school provided for them, but the relatives or friends are expected to send them thither without cost to the State, and also to send with them, in as good order as possible, such clothing as they may then have, to be worn till others can be provided for them.
