The Dashaways.

All praise to the hearts that in triumph withstand
The foe to their freedom, the curse of their land;
Awake to their summons, the brave and the free,
Let your watchword and motto be borne o'er the sea.

As the lark in its gladness soars high o'er the earth,
Shall those heroes adorn the fair land of their birth,
While they reap the fair fruits their devotion has shown,
And claim that the conquest is framed for their own.

'Tis a mandate divine they have sworn to obey,

Up! up! then, and join in this struggle for right,
Each heart that is free is increase to their might,
While the shouts of the victors ascend to the sky,
And the voice of approval is echoed on high.

The Matron and Maid, by their beauty combine,
Causing virtue round hearts, like a wreath to entwine;
While sincerity's charm, thrown around like a spell,
Will of friendship and truth undisguised ever tell.

No more shall a traitor their reason enthrall,
'Tis a voice from the heart now responds to their call;
No object more sacred, no progress more grand,
Than that now pursued by the Dashaway Band.
