ROCKS AND BULLETS.

They Crash and Whiz Among Mexican Soldiers in a Canyon.

Why Yaquis Indians Work Another Ambush Plot.

More than 200 Dead and Wounded out of a Force of 500 Men.

(By Associated Press.)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 2.—News is received here that the Yaquis have once more ambushed the Mexican forces sent against them. Ex-Gov. Luis E. Torres, who is now General of the Northern and Western Departments of Mexico, report says, has been making another campaign against the Yaquis in Sonora and Northern Sinaloa. He had an army of over five hundred men, and the plan was to dispose of the Yaquis then at once and forever.

President Diaz selected Gen. Torres for this work, because of his experience and supposed ability to accomplish the desired purpose.

A force composed of soldiers taken from different regiments, accompanied by a part of the National militia, while in pursuit of the Yaquis in the Sierra de Bacatel were led into a long, deep, narrow defile in the Sierra de Bacatel. The walls of the canyon were almost precipitous, rising to the height in some places of over 2,000 feet and covered with brush. The command was halted, and skirmishers pushed forward to discover any possible ambush.

The skirmish line climbed the walls and beat the brush as far up as possible without results, and as the trail was clearly defined in the sand in the bottom of the canyon, the Colonel in command ordered the force forward. Half the canyon had been traversed with no sign of a foe, and the men were beginning to breathe easier, when suddenly huge masses of rocks and boulders from the cliff nearly 1,500 feet above came bounding from wall to wall, down upon the crammed-in column, crushing horses and riders into shapeless heaps.

Higher and higher rose the war cries of the well-armed Yaquis, who now began firing volley after volley directly into the struggling mass below, where all was confusion. Horses dashed through the broken column, trampling on the dead and wounded soldiers, men writhed and screamed under the weight of rocks that had crushed them down into the earth; others sank under the pitiless hail of bullets, and others, less severely wounded, and those still unhurt sought the bushes on either side.

Finally the Colonel found a wounded bugler with yet life enough to sound a call. In a few moments, although still in range of those deadly rocks and rifles, those of the wounded able to move with assistance were started back down the canyon, while those who were able to offer resistance fired volley after volley at random into the bushes on the cliffs.

As rapidly as possible the remnant of the column fought its way back to open ground, where their foes had not dared to follow, and after a brief rest dragged themselves back along the route over which they had marched so cheerfully the day before.

The number killed cannot be accurately stated, but out of the column of 500 men, it is said that at least 200 are either killed or wounded. An additional force of 300 militia has been organized in Hermosillo, and all the Mexican troops of Lower California, Sonora and Sinaloa are to be mobilized at Guaymas for another campaign against the Yaquis.

It is said that Don Jakob Corda, a young doctor, after the encounter in the canyon, left a place called La Mes, with a small escort, to attend the wounded, and on passing a place called Arenos, fell into ambush prepared by the entire party of Yaquis. According to reports he was slain in a most cruel manner, the savages first flaying his feet and making him walk. They finally lanced him.

HEIRS TO MANY MILLIONS.

Americans to Divide the Estates of Sir W. K. Ball.

(By Associated Press.)

SHAMOKIN, Pa., May 2.—James J. Slattery, an agent, for an instalment concern in this place, has been notified that he is one of the heirs to vast English estates valued at ten millions. His grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Slattery, late of Port Carbon, was a sister of the late Sir William K. Ball, whose estate consists of the flourishing town of Gloucestershire, comprising 2,500 houses. The sum of $900,000, with compound interest, which has lain in the Melrose Bank in Scotland since 1896, will also fall to the American heirs, as the English relatives died without issue. The other heirs are John J. Slattery, of Tuscarora; Frank Slattery, of Hazleton; Mrs. Ellen Manning, of Pottsville; Mrs. Sallie Sissinger and Daniel Slattery, of Philadelphia, and James Manning, of Shenandoah. Thomas Slattery will sail for England in a few days.

On Savignac were found all kinds of safe-blowing and burglars' tools, as well as a bottle of chloroform, dynamite, percussion caps and sulphuric acid.

SELIGMAN FUNERAL.

Thousands at the Temple Emanu-El to Witness the Services.

Delegation of Sixty Members from the Union League Club.

Statesmen and Business Men Among the Pall-Bearers.

Most impressive funeral services were held at the Temple Emanu-El, at Forty-third street and Fifth avenue, this morning in commemoration of the late Jesse Seligman, the banker, who died on April 23 at Cornado Beach, Cal.

The ceremonies began at 10 o'clock. At that hour the Synagogue was crowded. The aisles and galleries were packed with persons, and many hundreds were clamoring for admission at the entrance. Fully 2,000 persons were in the building when the hearse bearing the body of the late banker arrived at the Fifth avenue entrance from the Seligman residence, on East Forty-sixth street.

It was accompanied by members of the banker's family, all of whom were in deep mourning. They preceded the coffin into the Temple and were escorted to the seats reserved for them at the head of the centre aisle. Among them were Mrs. Seligman, the widow; her three sons, Theodore, Albert and Henry; Mrs. Albert Seligman, Mrs. Emma Wasserman, Misses Alice and Madeline Seligman, Edward Wasserman, Miss Theodore Hillman, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson S. Seligman, Washington Seligman, Alfred Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt J. Seligman, David L. Einstein and Mr. and Mrs. J. Bernheimer.

The crowd made way for the mourners and the coffin to pass in. The casket was completely enveloped in a covering of violets and smilax, intertwined.

Upon the altar was a chorus of 150 boys from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum. The front of the altar was buried under a profusion of white blossoms and pots of flowering plants.

To the left of the centre sat the pall-bearers. The full list is as follows: Seth Low, Cornelius N. Bliss, Oscar S. Straus, Gen. Horace Porter, Abram S. Hewitt, Thomas F. Gilroy, John Wanamaker, Carl Schurz, Col. John J. McCook, Edwin Einstein, William Walter Phelps, Meyer Stern, Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, William M. Evarts, Edward Lauterbach, Meyer S. Isaacs, Charles Cramp, Col. F. D. Grant, ex-Judge John J. Dillon, Henry Rice, Emanuel Lehman, Louis Gans, Col. W. L. Strong, Hyman Blum, J. Hood Wright and James McCreery.

Seats were also reserved for a delegation of sixty members of the Union League Club, which marched in double file up the avenue from the club-house at Thirty-ninth street, with Gen. Horace Porter at the head. These are the members who composed the delegation:

William H. Webb, Salem H. Wales, S. P. Avery, Logan C. Murray, James C. De Forest, Henry C. Yale, Col. Joel B. Erhardt, Sigourney W. Fay, H. L. Horton, Joseph Pool, Vincenzo Botta, Jacob Wendell, William P. St. John, Stephen H. Roper, W. H. Falconer, Dr. Wm. Argyle Watson, John F. Plummer, C. H. T. Collis, William L. Pomeroy, A. G. Hyde, John D. Lawson, Jonathan H. Crane, E. D. Hinsdale, Elihu Root, J. Seaver Page, William Buchanan, Henry H. Plant, Tilden Bledgett, Isaac T. Smith, C. T. Cook, C. E. Whitehead, James A. Hayden, Edward A. Wickes, Henry Yale, Charles F. Roe, W. O. Ridgie, James A. Parsons, John Scott Boyd, Walston H. Brown, E. H. Bogran, Henry Hedley, George F. Crane, John Elderkin, George Harral, Richard Butler, J. S. Barnes, Frederick Taylor, Forman B. Eaton, John N. Cilley, Thomas Hillhouse, Robbin Little, Geo. B. Adams, Hugh N. Camp, J. S. Warren, Thomas R. Clarke, C. C. Tiffany, Samuel Shethar, John Sloane, D. F. Appleton, William Tousey, W. T. Schley, O. D. Munn, Henry Thompson, M. C. Addoms, Emerson Foote, Charles H. Coffin and Herbert P. Brown.

There were also present delegations of the officers and employees of the many charitable and benevolent and other organizations in which Mr. Seligman was interested, and to the support of which he contributed.

Among them are Mount Sinai Hospital, the Aged Hebrew Charities, Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, the Russian-American Hebrew Association, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, Orphan Asylum, the Purim Association, the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, Sanitarium for Hebrew Children, Ladies' Auxiliary Society of Mount Sinai Hospital, the Hebrew Technical Institute, the Montefiore Home and many others. Places were reserved for all these.

In the vast audience were the heads of many of the leading banking houses and financial institutions of Wall street, among whom were noticed representatives from the houses of Drexel, Morgan & Co., Lazard Freres, L. & S. Wormser, Kuhnith, Nachod & Kuhne, Lehmburg, Thalman & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Julius Haligarten & Co., and others.

The musical programme prepared for the occasion under the direction of the organist of the Temple, was simple, yet impressive. A solemn dirge was sung while the casket was being borne up to the altar.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Gotthell and his assistant, the Rev. Dr. Silverman. The latter first made a long address in which he eulogized the dead banker for his noble character, simplicity of life, generosity and philanthropy, and declared that humanity had suffered an irreparable loss in the death of Mr. Seligman. Dr. Gotthell followed him with a brief address, in which he dwelt more upon the purity of his private life and the social and domestic qualities of the dead philanthropist.

The ceremonies were not completed until nearly noon. The body was taken to Salem Fields, Cypress Hills Cemetery, for burial.

Homeless!

That's the way your husband feels, when you're trying to clean house in the old-fashioned, hard-working, fussy way. It's enough to drive any man to take the first steps downward.

You can just as well make home pleasant while you are making it clean. Take Pearline to it. That saves so much work that house-cleaning is no trouble, either to the worker, or the looker-on. It's sooner over, and it's better done.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 520 JAMES PYLE, New York.

SUING THE FAUKNER ESTATE.

Baldwin and Clark Want to Recover $12,000.

A Famous Case in Which Bloodshed Is a Feature.

An action has been brought by C. C. Baldwin, of 11 Wall street, and Heman Clark, of Aqueduct fame, against J. C. T. Faukner, as executor of the estate of the late Col. W. C. Faukner, of Memphis, Tenn., for the recovery upon two notes of $4,000 and $8,000 each. The action also involves the Gulf and Chicago Railroad.

Testimony in the case is now being heard at 22 Wall street by Lawyer Henry M. Dater, of 26 Court street, Brooklyn, appointed as a commission by the Chancery Court of Ripley, Tippah County, Miss.

The action has excited considerable interest among persons acquainted with the many sensational incidents attending the case. One of the most prominent features is the number of persons at one time connected with it who have met violent deaths. Nearly all the witnesses and original directors of the railroad have been shot.

The late Col. W. P. Faukner owned almost the entire road previous to his death, which was indirectly caused by a shooting affair.

He was a popular Southerner, and author of "The White Rose of Memphis."

In writing this book Col. Faukner began the preface by apologizing to the reader for not having been compelled to shoot three men during his eventful life. He had fought one duel in Memphis, and at the time of his death, a few years ago, was about to fight a second.

Just before his death Col. Faukner had a misunderstanding with his business partner, a man named Hunter.

While leaving his office one day Hunter shot at Col. Faukner. The first shot missed, but the second struck the Colonel's jaw and rendered him speechless up to the time of his death.

Among the principal witnesses in the case is Col. Hamilton, of Ripley, Miss., who recently shot the last member of the Board of Directors of the road, and who is related to some of the persons interested in the action.

The notes involved in the present action were given by Messrs. Baldwin and Clark to the late Col. Faukner to prevent a suit against the road by Theodore Reed, of Memphis, in 1888.

The papers in the present case will probably be forwarded by Commissioner Dater to the Mississippi Court to-morrow.

DAMROSCH IS WILLIN'.

But Denies He Will Hold a Peace Conference with Seidl To-Day.

Conductor Walter Damrosch this morning denied the report that he and Anton Seidl would hold a conference to-day relative to combining their forces for the production of German opera next Fall. He also said that if William Steinway was responsible for the report he acted a little prematurely.

"That Mr. Steinway has been trying for several days to patch up the differences existing between the two great leaders is a well-known fact. According to Mr. Damrosch, Steinway has been to see him several times relative to inducing him to join hands with Anton Seidl.

"I have not made any appointment with either Mr. Seidl or Mr. Steinway for to-day," said Mr. Damrosch. "There has, however, been considerable talk about our coming together in producing the opera, and I am willing to do anything to advance both our interests. I will listen to any proposal whereby I can see my way clear, and if things can be arranged I am willing to join forces with Mr. Seidl."

"BARON" AND BRIDE GONE.

His Wife's Uncle Will Not Talk of the Pair.

Gossips at the Gerlach, in West Twenty-seventh street, are talking of the sudden departure from the hotel last night of "Baron" William de Wagstaffe, who eloped with Miss Evelyn O'Brien, of New York, from Charleston, S. C., on March 27. The only address he and his bride left at the Gerlach was Lowe's Exchange, Broadway and Twenty-third street. At the latter place nothing is known of him, other than that he rents a letter-box there.

At the residence of H. P. Kingsland, 102 East Nineteenth street, an uncle of "Baroness" de Wagstaffe, all the information regarding the pair was refused.

RAN AMUCK ON A STEAMSHIP.

Chinaman Kills a Countryman and Wounds Three Other Persons.

City of Pekin the Scene of the Tragedy.

(By Associated Press.)

VICTORIA, B. C., May 2.—The steamship Empress of China arrived yesterday and reported that the City of Pekin, shortly after leaving San Francisco for the Orient on her last trip, was the scene of an extraordinary occurrence. A Chinaman, N. G. Buck, ran amuck. The Chinaman was observed walking about the room where ladies and children were seated. The fellow at once drew a knife and stabbed a boy in the shoulder and fight had.

Chief Engineer McClure interfered and was wounded seriously in the leg. N. G. Buck then rushed viciously at a fellow-passenger, Lee Shong, and nearly severed his head from the body. Lee Shong immediately expired. The crazed Chinaman was finally seized by the main-deck watchman and placed in irons.

When the Pekin reached Yokohama the prisoner was ordered to the deck for identification. His irons being removed, he seized a bar, nearly brained the chief officer and then tried to kill himself. The first officer was very seriously hurt, but will recover. The Chinaman will be taken back to California for trial.
