REPULSED BY KAFFIRS

Boers Fail to Relieve the Besieged Agatha Garrison.

Revolt of the Natives is Assuming Alarming Proportions.

Property of Whites Destroyed and Women and Children Killed.

(By Associated Press.)

PRETORIA, South African Republic, Aug. 17.—The rebellion of the Kaffirs is assuming alarming proportions, and the efforts of the authorities of the Republic to suppress it have, so far, proved unavailing. The Transvaal mounted police detachment, which has been attempting to relieve the garrison of Agatha, besieged by the Kaffirs for some days past, has been repulsed with, it is feared, serious loss.

Emboldened by their success, the Kaffirs pursued the retreating troopers and eventually made an attack upon the main column of the Boer forces. The Kaffirs were driven back, but the advance of the column has been retarded.

From the Boer settlement along the Letate River, come reports of severe fighting between isolated parties of retreating Boers and the Kaffirs, who are burning the Boer homesteads all along the river. The Boers are fleeing before the Kaffir advance, taking with them all their portable property. Large quantities of provisions and cattle have necessarily fallen into the hands of the Kaffirs.

The Kaffirs have murdered a number of Boer farmers and their wives and children, and the fiercest feelings of the Boers have been aroused against the rebellious natives. In the Zoutpansberg district devilish outrages have been committed, and large numbers of women and children have been killed, and a large amount of property has been destroyed.

In all the disturbed districts the mail and passenger coaches have been stopped, many of the passengers have been killed, and the coaches, after having been looted, have been destroyed and the mules stolen. The Murchison road is entirely closed. The Kaffirs are reported to have erected a strong barricade across it at a point where it passes between two hills, and they are said to have prepared to defend this point vigorously.

The Government is reinforcing its column of troops as rapidly as possible, and it is expected that an advance in force will be made upon the Kaffirs to-day or to-morrow.

Infernal Machines Found.

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—The Lokalanzeiger asserts that infernal machines were discovered in the domiciles of many Anarchists who have been arrested in this city recently. The police believe that this indicates that a series of outrages, to be perpetrated simultaneously, was intended.

WATCH TO-MORROW'S Evening World AUG. 18, 1894.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY is offered to readers of "THE EVENING WORLD" to surprise their dear ones and relatives with a life-size hand finished CRAYON PORTRAIT FOR ONLY 99c.

Enlarged from Photographs, Tintypes, Daguerreotypes, &c., by clipping a COUPON from To-Morrow's EVENING WORLD and presenting same at

The Favorite Portrait and Photographic Studio, 17 UNION SQUARE (Near Tiffany's), COR. 18TH ST. AND BROADWAY.

These coupons have enabled thousands of persons to procure elegant Crayon Portraits at the exceptionally low price of 99 CENTS, the regular price being $6.00. A guarantee of likeness, &c., is the unbounded success the Studio has met with.

A good many persons, however, not having a photograph, or preferring a Crayon Portrait from a recent one, it has been suggested to the above Studio to devise a medium, thus enabling all such subscribers to utilize the Coupon. Out-of-town coupon holders can send their photos by mail. Full details will be published in

TO-MORROW'S EVENING WORLD.

Crayon Portraits are completed within 10 days.

SCALES USED BY CHEMISTS.

Will Mark a Difference of One-hundredth of a Milligram.

The dainty little scales employed by the prescription clerk seem wonderful enough, determining, as they do, to the fraction of a grain, the quantity of the substance placed upon them, but in comparison with balances employed in the more delicate operations of the chemist, they are rough and coarse, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The common scales employed by the chemist in his ordinary work appear delicate enough to the unskilled observer, to whom the difference of an ounce or so would be of no consequence at all, for these marvellous little balances will turn with such nicety as to mark a difference of one-tenth of a milligram.

It takes sixty-four milligrams to make one grain, and as a grain of most substances can be taken up on the point of a penknife, almost any one will concede that a scale which will make note of so small a quantity of matter and record it with absolute accuracy, must be a very delicate instrument, indeed.

But this delicacy is a trifle when compared to that of the most exact instruments made for the finest grades of chemical research. A paragraph is now going the rounds of the papers about a pair of balances at the Mint in Philadelphia.

They are so easily affected, it is said, by a difference in weight that after exactly balancing two bits of paper, if one is taken out and a name written on it, with lead pencil, the addition in weight will at once be detected. The story is impressive, but gives no idea of the wonderful power of discrimination possessed by the finest quality of chemical balances.

If such a test were applied to one of these instruments, the opposing scale would kick the beam with a violence that might startle the experimenter out of his good manners. For these marvellous little instruments can determine with infallible accuracy the weight of a particle of matter so minute that it amounts to no more than one-hundredth of a milligram, or 1-6400 part of a grain. In other words, take on the point of a penknife, a grain of quinine, divide it (if you can) into 6,400 parts, and the balance will weigh one of these parts and inform you whether it is too heavy or too light.
