MATRIMONIAL FEVER IN HIGH LIFE.—A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican gives the following account of fashionable life in New York. The origin of the fever is in the remarkable commercial prosperity of the last few years:

Weddings in "high life" are just now alarmingly prevalent in New York. On Thursday, the fashionable marrying day, the streets around Grace Church are entirely blocked up by carriages, and bouquets, bridal cake, and perfumery, scent the air. The bridal presents are generally magnificent, and are all spread out in the reception rooms for the admiration of the guests, and the envy of the female part of them. A splendid wedding came off last week, in which over one thousand persons participated, the bride being the daughter of one of our wealthiest merchants. The reception took place during the daytime, and finished with a ball in the evening. During the day the mansion was closed upon the outside and brilliantly illuminated, in order to give more effect to the display of costly presents. These included a complete set of diamond, a real India shawl, price $1,500, a superb gold breakfast set, a dress of Honiton lace, valued at $1,500, a China dinner set, each piece containing a separate design, and which had been ordered from Canton expressly for this occasion; and among the smaller articles, an elegant box containing six pocket handkerchiefs, at one hundred, fifty, and twenty-five dollars each. The last and most valued gift was from the bride's mother. It was an exquisite portemonnie, embroidered with her own hands, and filled with twenty-five bright new half-eagles, as spending money for the petted daughter.

☞ The following letter, published with the rest of Mr. Webster's private correspondence, speaks for itself:

Daniel Webster to John Randolph, of Roanoke:

WASHINGTON, April, 1856.

SIR: For having declined to comply with your demand yesterday, in the House, for an explanation of words of a general nature, used in debate, you now "demand of me that satisfaction which your insulted feelings require," and refer me to your friend, Mr. ———. I presume, as he is the bearer of your note, for such arrangements as are usual.

This demand for explanation you, in my judgment, as a matter of right, were not entitled to make on me; nor were the temper and style of your own reply to my objection to the sugar tax, of a character to induce me to accord it as a matter of courtesy.

Neither can I, under the circumstances of the case, recognize in you a right to call me to the field to answer what you may please to consider an insult to your feelings.

It is unnecessary for me to state other and obvious considerations growing out of this case. It is enough that I do not feel myself bound, at all times and under any circumstances, to accept from any man, who shall choose to risk his own life, an invitation of this sort; although I shall be always prepared to repel, in a suitable manner, the aggression of any man who may presume upon such a refusal.

Your obedient servant,
DANIEL WEBSTER.

☞ The volcanic mountains of Mexico yield inexhaustible quantities of pure sulphur, which have never been turned to commercial account. The volcano of Popocatapelt throws up from its bowels immense quantities of crude sulphur, which lies in vast beds upon its sides. The United States consumes annually, in its manufactures, sulphuric acid to the amount of eighteen or twenty millions of dollars. Great Britain and France probably each consume an equal amount. The present source of supply for this immense consumption is Mount Vesuvius, and the cost of the article in American or English markets is about $50 per ton. It is averred that the gatherers of sulphur from Vesuvius would be unable to compete with the Mexican product from Popocatapelt, for the reason that their sulphur is amalgamated with an infinity of substances, which involve great expense to separate; and the supply in Vesuvius is limited while that of Popocatapelt would find little diminution in the labor of a century. The ore, too, it is said, can be obtained with great facility, and only a little energy and enterprise are needed to secure a golden harvest.

☞ RADETSKY, the agent of Austrian tyranny and Governor of Austrian Italy, is described by Bayard Taylor, in a recent letter, as follows:

We spent a day in Milan, and then set out in a heavy rain for Venice. Radetsky, with his staff, left at the same time for Verona, and at Coccaglio, where we waited an hour for the train from Brescia; we came together. The old Marshal and his company took possession of the refreshment room, keeping the rest of us, who were very hungry, out of it until they had finished. Nothing could have been more politely done. The guards begged our pardon, asked us as a special favor not to go in, and admitted us even before Radetsky had retired. I looked at the old veteran with much interest. He is now within three or four years of ninety, yet still performs his duties as Military Governor of Austrian Italy. He has at length been obliged to give up his horse, and now reviews his troops in an open carriage. He is a short, thick-set man, walks rather slowly, but firmly, and has a face full of vitality. His short white hair, thick white mustache, heavy brows, prominent cheek bones and square jaws, give him the precise expression of an old bull-terrier. Such courage, resolution and unyielding tenacity of purpose I never saw in an old man's face before. If he gets his teeth set once, you may be sure he will hold on. Such a man was Carvajal, Pizarro's magnificent old warrior.

A NEW WORLD'S CONVENTION.—The last great excitement in the fashionable world has been caused by the announcement of a convention to be held at Brussels next year, to which delegates are to be sent from all parts of the world in order to discuss existing modes, advocate national costumes, or defend national peculiarities. The ugly beaver hat, the ungraceful trowsers, the stiff collars of the European gentlemen, together with our hoops, and small bonnets, are to be severely investigated, and superseded, if possible, by something more rational in their estimation. In view of this it has been proposed to call a convention of American leaders of the fashion designers, and artistes, in order to cut loose from foreign restrictions, and establish an American platform for National costume. Why should we be subject to foreign interference in dress, any more than in politics?

AMBROTYPES
TAKEN AT THE SUN BEAM!

HAVING come to a very heavy expense in learning the process and in fitting up my rooms for taking Ambrotypes, I am now prepared to put up in the finest style any sized Ambrotypes, from a one-ninth to one-half size. The Ambrotype is far superior to the Daguerreotype in tone and beauty, having none of the glare of the Daguerre type plate, and can be seen in any light. We also take two pictures at one sitting, a positive and a negative picture, and when held to the light it is perfectly transparent. The Ambrotypes are durable, being, when finished, entirely air and water tight, and can be taken in all kinds of weather.

Time for adults for a sitting, from 10 to 30 seconds; children from 3 to 4. Please call and see specimens.

P. S.—Daguerreotypes taken in the different styles.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WHERE on the hungry people get
The best of groceries, dry and wet?
They'll find them, you may safely bet,
At Z. H. Cook & Son's.

There's flour and sugar, soda, soap,
Pines, pickles, butter and kitchen stuff;
Cigars quite worthy of a puff,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

There's codfish, coffee, starch and spice,
Hams, cheese and butter, very nice;
All to be had at the lowest price,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

Corn meal, molasses, pork and salt,
And further lest the theme should halt,
You'll find just every thing but malt
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

In fact, believe this tale or not—
No man, except a stupid sot,
Can wax for ever fat on pot,
Or any thing that can't be got
To nibble cold or swallow hot,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

BUSINESS CHANGED.

I HAVE sold my stock of Groceries to Moses Z. H. Cook & Son, who will continue the business at my old stand, which I have rented to them for five years. They will also connect with it their present business of Family Groceries and Provisions. I have no doubt but they will call and examine their stock and give them a liberal trial.

In retiring from my present business, I would return my sincere thanks to my numerous friends and customers for their more than liberal patronage, and would ask a continuance of the same, which I will merit, being still in business, the last of my general commodity in "material aid." Shall hereafter be found at the office of Geo. Foster & Co. of which firm I am a member, and will give to the business of that house my personal attention, and where I shall be pleased to
