HYMN.

The following beautiful hymn by A. G. Green, of Providence, Rhode Island, was sung at the centennial celebration of the settlement of a town, to the tune of Old Hundred:

Thou who did'st form the rolling spheres,
Whose word unnumbered worlds obey;
And in whose sight, days are as years,
A thousand years but as a day:

Thou, who did'st guard that fearless band,
Who fled from persecution's rod,
And sought this wild and desert land,
Twice exiles for the truth of God;

Thou, upon whom, in their distress,
By woes assailed, by dangers tried,
Here in the howling wilderness
There firm, unfaltering "Hope" relied;

Thou, unto whom, in that dark hour,
They prayed that this their home might be,
A spot, where, uncontrolled by power,
The free-born soul might worship Thee;

Then, unto whom then arose their prayer,
That all the race of men might own,
That live g truth, that freedom share,
Which they had here upheld alone;

Grant that the day for which they pray'd,
Shall o'er the world in splendor ope:
That day of truth, though long delayed,
Will come at last, "He Gon we hope."

Sad Case.

We find the subjoined narrative in the Dayton (O.) Gazette:

NAOMI HARRIS.—This unfortunate girl, who has been proven a thief, and of whom we have before spoken, is now in our jail awaiting the the mercy of a Dayton Court. There is something in her unfortunate history which affords a sad commentary upon the power of some wickedly disposed persons who move in the image of their Maker.

A young and pretty girl, mingled in childish sport around the old homestead, and a fond father, a kind mother and affectionate brothers and sisters were proud of her innocence.—There were little silver bells ringing in the distant future, and life was full of joy and promise to the little child. Years rolled on apace, and her beauty and intelligence drew around her a host of admirers, among whom was the dastardly villain who was destined to be the arbiter of her fate. His well learned speech and manner concealed the hypocrite, and his untiring attentions won her affection, and she put her pure heart in the keeping of the traitor who betrayed her love and virtue, and sent her out upon the world, a poor blighted bird, to wither under the influence of a ruined reputation. Friends and relations discarded her; the father, who was proud to play with her flaxen curls, and her mother, who loved to kiss away her girlhood's tears, turned away from the shame, and branded her as an outcast from the household, and withheld the kindly influence which might have reclaimed her. And she was the victim of the first error—a natural error of her ignorance of and confidence in this cold and treacherous world. The rascal who had done the wrong roamed freely here and there, and like the serpent of the Nile, spat his venom upon new victims, and named the pure as his prizes.

Her beauty and intelligence were attractive and with no legitimate or honest means of providing the necessaries of life she emerged by degrees into a career of crime, and while yet a girl a Dayton court sent to the Penitentiary for pilfering a small portion of silk.

Her black eyes looked out through the bars upon a world that had no joy for her. A child incarcerated in a Penitentiary erected for those steeped in crime. A little girl had stolen a bit of silk, and she groaned in the cell near a murderer, a young girl having been betrayed, sacrificed all that was dear to her upon the first error, and she eat her bread and water within hearing of the hardened wretches who had been gathered from the county jails from all parts of the State. She was there for correction; it was thought that she would learn a lesson from the regenerating influences which were there engendered. Ah! me, what a task. There was no Work House, no House of Refuge, no Institution for the moderate reformation of youthful offenders, and the Penitentiary was the only resource.

She was arrested upon her list charge at Miamisburgh, the residence of her people. Upon the approach of the officers she leaped from the window of the house en dishabille, and took refuge in the yard, where shivering and cold, she was found by the police. "Take me," she cried, "why should I complain, I've been in the Penitentiary, my reputation is ruined, and I don't want to live longer."

We do not wish to be understood as upholding crime; the girl is evidently guilty, and should be punished; incarceration in the Penitentiary is too severe; there should be a Work House for such offenders, where moderate punishment may be blended with redeeming influences, where correction may be administered, and a short, practical sermon preached, and a two fold work accomplished. We should have a Work House, and we hope our citizens will move in the matter. Paltry crimes are becoming of frequent occurrence in our city, and an institution of this kind would soon be filled.

THE MOON.—Dr. Scoresby, in an account that he has given of some recent observations made with the Earl of Rosse's telescope, says:

With respect to the moon, every object on its surface of one hundred feet was now distinctly to be seen, and he had no doubt that under favorable circumstances it would be so with objects sixty feet in height. On its surface were craters of extinct volcanoes, rocks, and masses of stones almost innumerable.—He had no doubt that if such a building as he was then in were upon the surface of the moon, it would be rendered visible by these instruments. But there were no signs of inhabitants such as ours, no vestige of architectural remains to show that the moon is or eve was inhabited by a race of mortals similar to ourselves. It presented no appearance which could lead to the supposition that it contained any thing like the green fields and lovely verdure of this beautiful world of ours. There was no water visible, not a sea, or river, or even the measure of a reservoir for supplying town or factory; all seemed desolate.

AN APPALLING STATEMENT.—A ragged school association, in a public appeal, state that there are in London 1 400,000 who never attend public worship, 150,000 drunkards, 150,000 open profligates, 20,000 professed beggars, 10,000 gamblers, 30,000 destitute children, and 30,000 receivers of stolen goods.—More than 10,000 young men, under eighteen years of age, are annually committed for theft in Great Britain.

AMBROTYPES
TAKEN AT THE SUN BEAM!

HAVING come to a very heavy expense in learning the process and in fitting up my rooms for taking Ambrotypes, I am now prepared to put up in the finest style any sized Ambrotypes, from a medallion to one-half size. The Ambrotypes far superior to the Daguerreotype in tone and beauty, having none of the glare of the Daguerre type plate, and can be seen in any light. We also take oil pictures at one sitting, a positive and a negative obtained, and when held to the light it is perfectly transparent. The Ambrotypes are durable, being when finished, entirely air and water tight, and can be taken in all kinds of weather.

Time for adults for a sitting from 10 to 30 seconds; children from 5 to 10. Please call and see specimens.

P. S.—Daguerreotypes taken in the different styles.

A. COOK, whom he has taken into partnership from this date, and solicits for the new firm, Z. H. Cook & Son, a continuance of the support so liberally conferred on himself.

Z. H. Cook & Son, having taken the business premises and purchased the whole of the stock of Mr. M. W. Foster, feel confident that they are enabled to supply the citizens of Evansville with every article, they may require in the Grocery and Provision line. Z. H. C. & Son wish especially to draw the attention of persons in the country having produce of any kind to dispose of, to their increased facilities for taking off their stock and supplying them at their store, with all articles required in the wholesale department. At prices that must ensure their orders for the future. feb1-tf

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WHERE are the hungry people get
The best of Groceries, dry and wet
They'll find them, you may safely bet,
At Z. H. COOK & Son's.

There's flour and sugar, soda, soap,
Pines, pickles, buckets and kitchen stuff;
Cigars quite worthy of a puff,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

There's cocoffish, coffee, starch and spice,
Hams, cheese and butter, very nice;
All to be had at the lowest price,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

Corn meal, molasses, pork and salt,
And further, lest the rhyme should halt,
You'll find just every thing but malt
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

In fact, believe this sale or not—
No man, except a stupid ass,
Can want for even, pan or pot,
Or any thing that can be got
To nibble cold or swallow hot,
For cash at Z. H. Cook & Son's.

BUSINESS CHANGED.

HAVING purchased the stock of Groceries of Messrs Z. H. Cook & Son, who will continue the business at my old stand, which I have rented to them for five years. They will also connect with it their present business of Family Grocering and Produce. I have no friends and customers will call and examine their stock and close them a liberal trade.

In retiring from my present business, I would return my sincere thanks to my former friends and customers for their very liberal patronage, and what is still more desirable in my opinion, the good will and confidence in which I left them. I shall be ever found at the office of Geo. Foster & Co., of which firm I am a member, and will give to the business of that house my personal attention, and where I shall
