"WATCH MOTHER."

We do not know when we have met with a more touching and beautiful poetical morceau than the following. It breaths a sentiment of holy inspiration which touches every cord of the heart. Read it:

Mother, watch the little feet,
Climbing o'er the garden wall,
Bounding through the busy streets,
Ranging cellar, shed and hall.
Never count the moments lost,
Never count the time it costs,
Guide them, mother, while you may.

Mother, watch the little hand
Picking berries by the way,
Making houses in the sand,
Toying on the fragrant hay.
Never dare the question ask—
"Why pass them every task?"
The same little hands may prove
Messengers of peace and love.

Mother, watch the little tongue,
Prattling eloquent and wild,
What is said and what is sung
By the joyous happy child.
Catch the word while not unspoken,
Stop the vow before it broken;
This same tongue may yet proclaim
Blessings in a Saviour's name.

Mother, watch the little heart,
Bending soft and warm for you;
Wholesome lessons now impart;
Keep, oh keep that young heart true,
Exticating every weed,
Sowing good and precious seed,
Harvest rich you then may see
Ripen for eternity.

Recognizing the Dead.

The Hamilton (Canada) papers contain the following description of the scene at the dead house where the remains of the victims to the terrible railroad catastrophe were gathered:

Among the most harrowing scenes attending this fearful catastrophe, are the witnessing the unhappy relatives recognizing the mangled remains of husbands, fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters. Yesterday morning the wife of Mr. Morley arrived from St. Catharines, to pick out of the many dead his body. The scene was heart-rending as she passed from one dead body to another, all marking death with greater horror by being more or less mangled. At last one, even more distorted and mangled than the rest, was come to, and a wild scream but too well told her tale of woe. And in a large store house, strewed with dead bodies, and with others going the rounds to make similar heart-rending discoveries, she was left to kneel down and bewail her bereavement.

Whilst on one side of the large building, a row of bodies were placed, as yet unrecognized and questions were asked of every new comer, if he or she knew anything of them, a sob or a moan would be heard in another part, indicating that some one had come from a distance and found all their sad expectations realized. Nor was the circumstances less harrowing of passing the stranger by, who far from his home, and far from those who were dreaming of his return, there lay a mangled, unrecognized, unwept victim of a railroad disaster.

Here was evidently a poor Irish laborer; his pipe was still in his hand, and a smile played over his kindly countenance. One passed, yet another, and still another, and no one knew him. God only knew the grief that some would feel who did know him. Hear again linger a larger group.

They are looking at the figure of a woman, once beautiful, though her hair lies tangled and wet, and her face is distorted from the effect of drowning, she still chains that idle crowd with a melancholy interest. She has a marriage ring on her finger. Two lockets are on her breast; and a broach is suspended by a yellow ribbon round her neck. For whom did she wear them? Who were dear to her? To whom was she dear? No one knew her. God help her! she alone then required to be but recognized by Him! And so passed the scene. Here a moan and a tear marked the recognition of the mangled remains of a friend or a relation. There strangers, with heavy hearts, gazed on those who were unwept; and thought of themselves, if ever such a lot should be theirs. There may be scenes of sorrow or horror, but who can conceive aught so utterly heart-rending as when people go away in peace and happiness, to return this evening, or to morrow, and are first heard of as mangled or drowned by such disasters.

Mr. Buchanan.—The opinion is generally expressed that Mr. Buchanan cannot long support the torments which he is now enduring from the importunities and annoyances of the hungry and impudent applicants for office. He is beset night and day, and his sufferings are said to be intolerable. He is obliged almost to barricade himself in his own private apartments to obtain a moment's privacy or leisure. His tormentors make no allowance for the necessary tortures of official routine, and less for the physical debility consequent upon the vestiges of a scourging epidemic. Still he bears up resolutely, and it is feared by his real friends, with too much effort, to meet the acquirements of exacting politicians. No constitution, at Mr. Buchanan's period of life, can stand this constant strain upon the energies of mind and body. Harrison and Taylor were both victims of the Presidential office, notwithstanding all the medical reasons that were alleged to prove a different theory, and it is to be hoped Mr. Buchanan, for his own sake, and for public consideration, will first consult his duty to himself before yielding to the pretended claims of desperate office-seekers.

☞ In Manchester, England, they are apprehensive of a cotton famine. The consumption of cotton is proceeding with so much more rapidity than the growth, that with the present limited supply, prices are certain to come to a point which will arrest trade.

Population of Peoria.—A census just completed by Mr. Drown shows the population of Peoria to be 18,000. Seven years ago the number was but 5,000. A very satisfactory rate of progress.

Reunited.—Col. Jim Lane, who caused such terror to the Border Ruffians, has been married again—his former wife, from whom he had separated, becoming his bride.

☞ The citizens of Westport, a Missouri town bordering on Kansas, have held a meeting at which they resolved to resist all efforts to renew the former troubles in Kansas, to extend a hospitable welcome to emigrants from every portion of the Union, and to allow the laws of Kansas and Missouri to punish all offenders.

QUIT DRINKING POISONOUS LIQUORS.

PATENT IMPROVED PROCESS

FOR MAKING

All Kinds of Liquors and Vinegar.

INSTANTLY, by the use of

LACOUR'S ESSENTIAL OILS.

These Oils are obtained by Distillation at the Chemical Laboratory, Parish of Jefferson, of Pierre Lacour, author of Lacour's Chemical Analysis, Lacour's Chemical Manipulations, Lacour on the Manufacture of Liquors, &c.

Purchasers are particularly requested to return the flasky bottles of their money, if the oil does not give perfect satisfaction.

LACOUR'S OIL OF COGNAC converts neutral spirit into a superior imitation of Imported Brandies, with Bouquet, Sauterne, Moselle, Hock, Cognac, Schiedam, Holland, Vieux Cognac, Port, Madeira, Malaga, Sherry, Champagne, Castillon and London Dock Brandies. These liquors will have a full fruity flavor and a beautiful sparkling color. Common Rectified Whisky will be changed by the use of the Oil of Cognac to New York Brandy, Fine Apple Brandy, Common Cognac Brandy, &c.

LACOUR'S OIL OF RYE changes Rectified Whisky to Monongahela Rye Whisky, Old Virginia Malt Whisky, Bourbon Whisky, &c.

OIL OF CREMAT changes common Rectified Whisky to Old Irish Malt Whisky, and a superior article of Scotch Whisky.

OIL OF PEACH changes common Whisky to Virginia Peach Brandy, &c., Oil of Peach and oil of Cognac will convert common Whisky to Apple Brandy.

OIL OF GIN converts the poorest Whisky to Holland Gin, Schiedam Schnapps, Rose Gin, Swan Gin, English Gin, &c.

LACOUR'S CONCENTRATED ACID will, in two hours after being mixed, change five gallons of good Vinegar and twenty-five gallons of water to thirty gallons of the most acid Vinegar that can be found in the market. By the use of Lacour's Concentrated Acid, Vinegar can be made for one dollar and sixty cents per barrel.

FOR MAKING LIQUORS, Lacour's Oils require no preparation—simply pour the oil into the whisky and shake it. The liquors thus made will have a rare natural aroma, a full rich, oily taste, a beautiful transparent color and a fine bead. Lacour's oils exert three distinct properties: in converting common whisky to brandy, gin, &c., the first property combines with and gives ideal to the form of fusel oil, called the whole of the grain oil, (Amylic Alcohol.) The whisky is thus deprossessed of that peculiar irritating and burning taste, and becomes a neutral spirit; the second property consists in an oily mucilaginous taste imparted to the liquor, which renders it mellow, and imparts an apparance of age; the third property is exhibited in the fruity viscous oily odor that is imparted to the liquor, which renders distinction from the genuine brands impossible.

These oils are put up in quart bottles; each flask contains sufficient oil for making three hundred gallons of liquor, and full and explanatory directions accompany the bottle. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale at the corner of St. Charles and Poydras streets.

One bottle of Essence free in a number, will be securely stocked and shipped, with bill of lading to any part of the country, upon the receipt of $10, in the addressed to

P. LACOUR, New Orleans.

Purchasers are requested, as a guarantee of good faith, to furnish us the name of any house in New Orleans and we will ship them a package of the oil, if they do not perform as that is stated for them, they will cost nothing. jan13-1y
