will please forward this office a list of applicants that the Republican organization of your district desires to have named as census enumerators."

The men named in these lists were subsequently appointed, and, says the committee, it is evident enough that among them must have been a considerable number utterly unfit for the work; it is not surprising that among them Police Inspector Byrnes should recognize well-known criminals.

The committee goes over the dispute between New York City and the federal authorities on the ground, quite many remarkables alleged to have been found in the government reports, from a tremendous work of commissioners, etc.

.....Subject the committee concludes that the following propositions have been established as a result of their inquiries:

That the refusal to apply the civil service system of open, non-partisan, competitive examinations in appointments to the census bureau, was a violation by the President of the pledge contained in the Republican platform of 1888 and endorsed in his letter of acceptance.

That by the appointment of the enumerators on political grounds in open violation of section 5 of the census act, great numbers of incompetent men have been engaged to taking the census and in many cases attempts had been made to use the official position for the benefit of the party in power, that while in some places results of the work appear free from partisan bias and to be accurately and well done, yet in many places the work has been carelessly and badly done and in some to the suspicion that partisan considerations have not been absent, and that, finally, there is a widespread distrust of the accuracy of the census, which greatly impairs its value to the country and which is caused in great measure by the fact that the reasons herein set forth have contributed to the spoils system.

The committee expresses the belief that no census will hereafter receive the confidence of the people until it has been wholly removed from partisan influence.

McCarthy Acquitted.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29.—The case against Cal McCarthy, on indictment for having engaged in a prize fight on the 22nd inst., was tried this morning. After the testimony of several witnesses, who were not witnesses of the McCarthy-Warren contest, that the contest was not a prize fight but a glove contest such as the State law allows, the jury acquitted McCarthy without leaving their seats. A write prosecution will doubtless be issued in Warren's case.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to City's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, I have found it to be more satisfactory than any other remedy I have tried. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 43 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

THOROUGHWORT TEA.

Mr. Simmons Discovers a Sovereign Remedy for Nervous Diseases.

John Simmons's wife was very from down on a visit, and he had been reading the evening paper. "Well, well," he said to himself, as he threw it down, "there seems to be an alarming prevalence of diphtheria. Two children on this street died last night, and my throat is very sore. I believe if it means close enough it is."

"I don't see how Alice would have been at his bowel season," he said on. "I shall probably die of the grip, or diphtheria, or pneumonia while she's away. Or she will, perhaps."

Business called him out, however, through the remainder of the day, and about 10 o'clock he returned home with parcels, including bacteria for breakfast, a package of thoroughwort, a paper of buffalo chips liniment and sundry other articles.

On his way he passed the house of Mr. Jeffries' daughter, and as he came the cage fluttering from the doorbell a sharp pain in the back and something like a chill admonished him more of his own condition.

On getting home he repaired to the kitchen. The faithful Bridget had left a kettle of boiling water on the stove, and he made a pot of tea, using a deal of thoroughwort tea, of which he drank liberally and then went to bed.

In the morning he was painfully well. As he sat down to his breakfast he said:

"Bridget, there's nothing like thoroughwort tea for a bad cold. I took a bowlful last night, and how I am as good as new."

"Well, then," said Bridget, "you drank a bowl of tay that would kill a baythen."

"Why, of course," he replied, "it wasn't quite as sweet as a sugar pellet."

"Will ye please some down after breakfast and take the rest of it, so yer it out of the way?" said the girl, as she shut the door.

When he had finished his breakfast and coffee, therefore, he went down into the kitchen. The tea pot in which he had steeped the thoroughwort stood on the table, and certainly its contents did look remarkable.

"That's not thoroughwort," exclaimed Mr. Simmons.

"Thim what she is it?" said Bridget.

"Where are the packages I bought?" asked he, after another look at the black, slimy stuff.

Bridget opened the closet and handed him three or four packets, with a manner indicative of some shame. The first one was the package of thoroughwort.

"Where are the sheepskins?" said Mr. Simmons.

"Dried thim, is it?" said Bridget, with lagged indulgence; "an I thought thim was snakes or worrms. An ye drank that tay, an it saved yer dipthery?"

It was indeed so. Simmons has had general itself a sovereign remedy.

Mr. Simmons threw the stuff out of doors.

"If Mrs. Simmons remains away much longer," said he, "I shall probably contract myself some night. I wouldn't speak of it, Bridget."

It is possible that Bridget never did speak of it, but somehow the story got abroad.—Healthy Home.

The Casualty of the Restless.

The discussion of the advisability of more frankness in our fiction is very familiar, and any one would be tempted to hoping to throw any new light on it, no doubt. The patroness of the solid fiction has been acknowledged on all hands, defended by some and deplored by others in most thoroughfaring fashion. But I venture to say I think the practice of the revolutionists—and though they are not so numerous by any means as their apologists and sympathizers they are respectably numerous, when you consider the velocity of many a short story as well as the vigor of the meaningless novelettes and novels—is considerably more illuminative than any express condition thus to the theoretical discussion between. And in this way. The argument for greater frankness is summed up in the declaration that it is parcelle to neglect in literature any important side of life. Yet the practice of our writers of fiction which is most frankly "throws their naps over the mill," or shows a coy disposition to do so on further encouragement, but been to neglect life entirely.—Scribner's.

Necklaces Made of Seeds.

The browned sculptured bony fruit of the Elaocarpus being freed from the pulp form handsome necklaces, which are not necessarily set in gold or silver and sold in the shops. The hard enclosure of Elaocarpus serratus, and the beads of another species are largely exported from the eastern archipelago to Arabia, Persia and India for ornaments of all kinds, necklaces, bracelets and rosaries or chaplets.

The five grooved and elegantly tubercled nuts of E. grandis are worn as a necklace by the Siboneys of Siam in order to gain his graces and a passport to heaven. They are also supposed to preserve the health. Considerable importance is attached to the number of lacuna on the seeds. They are commonly known as Bodhnuts beads. Those of Monocera tuberculata are used for a like purpose in Tavivatoe.—Chambers' Journal.

It Will Be Cold for Him.

WHAT IS A GUARANTEE?

Many merchants and salesmen are in the habit of indiscriminately "guaranteeing" their wares with no thought of being called upon to make the "guarantee" good. It is a pernicious and foolish custom more respected in the breach than in the observance.

A guarantee, to have any value, should be made with knowledge of the meaning of the word and a set purpose to carry out the terms of the guarantee. On this basis the makers instruct us to warrant, and we replace any tool found imperfect in use.

We have used our best judgment, acquired by a considerable experience, in selecting the following items for our stock and sell them to our customers with an absolute guarantee that if they do not prove to be all that we represent them, we will refund the purchase money in full.

"Jewel" Steel Range. A finished article, perfectly proportioned, made of the best material. Don't fail to see it. It will pay you.

"Quick Meal" No Generator, Evaporating. Light it as you do your gas burner. No smell. No danger. No complication. Every objection to the use of a Gasoline Stove done away with. Think of the discomfort caused in Summer by avoiding the heat of a big Kitchen Range.

"Superior" Cooks and Ranges. Superior as bakers. Superior in economy of fuel. Superior in design. Superior in construction. Superior in everything that goes to make a perfect cooking apparatus.

The "Foote Refrigerators." An ice saver. A Health promoter. Cellular stone lined. What is that? Investigate it. It will more than repay you.

Our stock of Builders' Hardware, House Furnishings, Garden Hose, Lawn Sprinklers, Lawn Mowers, etc., is complete in every detail.
