SYMPATHY FOR CUBA

Strong Expressions in Favor of the Insurgents.

SEN. MATTHEWS PLEADS FOR THEM

Preparing Resolutions for the Recognition of the Cubans as Belligerents.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21. — The strongest and most outspoken expression of sympathy for Cuba yet made in this city were heard tonight at a meeting at the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Philadelphia League and in aid of the Antietam monument fund. The speakers were Senator Matthews of Indiana, Gen. Stanislo de Quesada, secretary of the revolutionary party in the United States, and Captain W. W. Kerr, friend of the steamer Laurada.

Strong resolutions were adopted, calling upon Congress immediately after convening to request President Cleveland to recognize the Cuban republic without delay. General Palma, minister plenipotentiary of the Cuban republic, and a number of prominent Cubans were present.

Senator Matthews said in part: "The pages of history nowhere reveal more atrocious crimes against humanity, more cruel warfare of wicked ambition, more examples of outraged rights and justice, nor greater crimes against all Christian civilization than are buried in Spanish morals and methods in Cuba. A gem upon the sea it would have been a mine of wealth to its possessors through the genius of home rule, and would have well replenished the depleted treasury of a decayed and effete monarchy. But the reverse has been true. Its fair fields have been drained and robbed to feed the selfish greed of revenue, its fair cities have been drained and robbed of its hope and ambitious and energetic people, who are scarcely pitiable towards the oppressor. Debt upon debt has been accumulated, reaching the enormous sum of over $100 per capita.

"The system of taxation is the most complex, cruel and degrading ever devised by any government. Burdensome taxes are laid upon all trade, upon every industry and enterprise, upon public business and domestic life, upon the home the cradle and the grave. Its exercise breeds corruption and liberty in the public officials, and is intolerant, excessive and forbidding upon the humblest office, is robbed of its last remnant of political, civil and religious liberty. All revenues derived from taxes must flow to Spain through Spanish officials, and there is no man must pay for the privilege of buying and selling.

"For nearly four hundred years has Cuba had, with nothing expended for her development—her taxes only serving to furnish means for still more oppression and to more firmly fix the chains which bound her in degradation and shame.

"The wrongs against which we rebel were not half so grievous, nor the sufferings resulting nearly so great, and yet the same great principles are invoked that caused to action our sires in 1776. Yet, with all disadvantages, the Cuban patriot has been late and has fought a good fight. Arms have invaded the atmosphere of this country bearing southern, and their ears have been enkindled with the fire which we have lighted. There is ceased to be a question which we must will escape, a cry coming across the waves for sympathy and for aid, which we cannot much longer close our ears and hearts.

"The appeal comes direct to us. Cuba appeals for help at times and because almost a crime not to reach out the hand with needed aid—for aid and encouragement mean success, life, peace and happiness, while refusal is sorrow, suffering, depletion and death.

"I trust my words be construed into a desire or attempt on our government to I have an abiding faith in the moral principles of our government, and in the courage, the justice and the wisdom of the men whom we have chosen to direct its affairs. In good time they will do that which seemeth to them right and just and wise, and require the duty and obligation resting upon the great Republic of the world.

"When it is asked that belligerent rights be hearily and speedily accorded to the long-suffering defenders of their freedom, it is lest they may have a broader opportunity to present their claims to the world and subject to the rules of civilized warfare. With some warmth, the question of independence will be for after consideration, when tardily and worthily merited. That claim, I ask, has Spain upon the United Independence of the civilized nations of mankind? It would at least be difficult to conceive that any mode of government could be worse for Cuba than that which she would now spare. Let the question of annexation to be answered at this time, our weather vane may place another star upon the blue field of our national flag. If it be just, more manifest destiny of nations, of human rights, and of our humanity.

"Shall we, as a government, with high regard for national honor and national right, may be reserved, conservative and diplomatic, but as individual citizens we may span the dividing waters with a hopeful, generous sympathy, and God speed to the Cuban patriot in his sublime hope and his holy mission. His cause is just, the right will prevail, and, in God's own time Cuba will be free."

General Quesada followed in a stirring appeal for the sympathy of the American people.

Carlisle Kerr, in his speech, said: "There is a country on God's earth he might be desired and have our home in their beloved, it is Spain." Concluding, he said: "Vessels will carry this country every day and land and sea, sunshine and snow on Cuba's shore, until she is free, and it Spain will use in defiance, we will hear of another report on Indian landed."

Thomas Fraser, chairman of the meeting, announced at its close that he had just received word from Congressman Amos Cummings, of New York, that he was at that moment preparing a resolution to present to Congress, recognizing Cuba.

ALGER REPLIES

Sherman has Done Out of His Way to Insult the General.

DETROIT, MICH., Nov. 21.—General R. A. Alger has written a lengthy letter to the Detroit Tribune, in reply to Senator John Sherman's charges against the general's friends, as contained in the second volume of Sherman's reminiscences.

The writer quotes Senator Sherman's language, in which Sherman, in referring to the circumstances attending the contest in the Republican national convention of 1884, wrote: "I believe and feel, as I thought, conclusive proof that the friends of General Alger substantially purchased the votes of many of the delegates from the Southern states, who had been instructed by their conventions to vote for me."

He also quotes Senator Sherman's assertion to the effect that although he had learned with complacency of the explanations of the wavering of the Ohio and New York delegations from his (Sherman's) support, that "the only feeling of resentment I entertained was in regard to the action of the friends of General Alger in tempting with money poor negroes to violate the instructions of their constituents."

In reply to these quotations, General Alger says that he would not have intruded this matter upon the public were it not for the fact that it appeared that Senator Sherman had gone out of the way to insult his (Alger's) friends, as well as himself.

General Alger says that when Senator Sherman's charges were first made, immediately after the convention, he was especially distressed, because of the warm friendship existing between himself and family and General W. T. Sherman and family. In view of this he wrote General Sherman, assuring him that there was no foundation for the charge, and that he had not replied to them on account, first, of the age of the senator, second, of his great name, and third, because of the injury such talk would do the party.

Continuing, General Alger says that during the excitement of '88 he paid little attention to the report in question, as nothing had appeared over Senator Sherman's name, but that now the case is different. He then gives an analysis of the Southern votes received by Sherman and himself at the Chicago convention. According to this showing, Senator Sherman, on the 8th ballot (the one in which Alger received the highest number of votes) received 139 votes from the Southern states, against Alger's 93, not including, however, 28 votes from Arkansas and Missouri, which came voluntarily pledged to Alger under the leadership, respectively, of Gen. Powell Clayton and Chauncey I. Filley. On the other 50 votes, Alger says that about one-half of them had served either in the Union or Southern armies during the war, and "I was not unnatural that they would prefer a soldier to a civilian. Many of these people I knew personally."

Gen. Alger relates instances of the friendship between himself and the senator of late years, and of assurance given him by Sherman that, while his disappointment had been great, he did not believe that Alger had any part in the scramble for votes, etc., in 1884.

A letter from James Lewis (colored) of New Orleans is appended, stating that the writer voted for Alger in the 88 convention as second choice to Sherman, and denying that the negro delegates were in the habit of selling their votes.

Indians Who Have Taken Up Lands.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—General E. S. Otis, commanding the department of the Columbia, in his annual report to the war department, enters into a very elaborate account of the status of Indians who have taken up allotments of the land in severalty and also on the subject of the proper use of troops in reservations. These matters were made prominent in his department during the last year by the legal proceedings growing out of arrest of Umatilla Indians by the Indian police and their consequent release by the Oregon circuit court on the ground that by having taken up lands under the allotment act they had thereby become fulfledged citizens of the United States.

General Otis says that this decision will be reviewed by the state supreme court, but it is to uphold the use of troops to quell disturbances among Indians who hold land under this tenure may be illegal. He holds that the legitimate use of troops in such cases must be understood by army officers, as these difficulties threaten to arise frequently and the adjustment acts are difficult to construe. He points out the grave danger involved of a conflict of a state and national jurisdiction as evidence for the need of a carefully-considered decision on this point.

With the exception of this incident the year has been unusually quiet in the department. General Otis renews his recommendation of last year that the garrisons at Fort Spokane and Fort Sherman be concentrated in or near Spokane and the posts be abandoned. Also that Fort Townsend be given up and its garrison be moved to Magnolia Bluff near Seattle. He speaks of the necessity of a garrison on Puget Sound and of strong defensive works on Marrowstone Point, assisted by fortifications at Admiralty Mead and the bluffs in the rear of Point Wilson, also fortifications at Double and Foul Weather bluffs and Tala Point.

Was Insane.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The jury today declared that David F. Hannigan, who shot Solomon H. Mann, the seducer of his sister, was "not guilty," insanity was the defense.

Is He Sensitive?

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A man strongly resembling the pictures of Sohlatier, the healer, was around the Wellington hotel for a short time this afternoon. He disappeared quietly and has not since been seen. It is not known whether or is Sohlatier, but the resemblance was very strong.

C. P. AFFAIRS.

Judge Kelly Likely to Succeed Senator Shoup.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—S. H. H. Clark of the Union Pacific stopped here today on his way to New York to attend a meeting of the receivers. In an interview he said:

"My present trip to New York has no particular significance, and presages no important step toward settling the troubled affairs of the Union Pacific. The most important action taken at the coming meeting will be the appointment of a successor to Senator John M. Thurston, who recently resigned the position of general solicitor. While the selection has not been definitely made, there is every indication that the appointment will fall to Judge W. K. Kelly, present assistant solicitor of the road.

Quay's Presidential Boom.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The Daily News's Washington special says: Politicians who hold close political relations with Senator Quay declare that his every movement indicates a purpose to secure instructions at the Keystone state delegation to the Republican national convention for himself.

Whether this move is a bona fide Quay Presidential boom, to be pushed along in earnest to success, or merely a scheme to secure absolute control of the Pennsylvania delegation, and at the same time blot out Gov. Hastings's boom, is a matter of doubt.

Debs's Free Man.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Eugene V. Debs became a free man again at 12 o'clock tonight. His term of six months' imprisonment in the Woodstock jail came to an end at that time.

A party of 200 admirers and friends will go out to Woodstock tomorrow afternoon to greet the labor leader on his release. A party composed of representatives of all the general labor bodies and of the several local unions will be among the first to greet Mr. Debs. Mr. Debs will receive them at the jail, and will then march around the public square with the party.

School Teacher Acquitted.

EMPORIA, KAN., Nov. 21.—Dave Henderson, the school teacher who shipped two people on the head with a baloon the other evening at Dunlap, had a hearing before a justice of the peace today and was released on the evidence. His plea was self-defense. The parties whom he assaulted are placed under bonds to keep the peace.

AS SEEN IN LONDON.

President Cleveland Will Lead Democrats to Victory.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Times this morning editorially expresses the notion that it was not President Cleveland who was overthrown in the last elections in the United States. According to the editorial, in the recent Democratic defeat the party was completely raised, but the prestige of the President was increased rather than diminished.

It is not unlikely, the Times continues, that if the Democrats will rally around Cleveland he will lead them to victory in the next presidential contest, the Republicans having no striking policy to attract popular sympathy.

Lynched an Innocent Man.

BRYAN, TEX., Nov. 21.—Rev. J. E. Horton of Madison county today received news of the lynching of a negro in a remote part of that county last night. He was accused of throwing a horse over a little white girl, inflicting serious injuries. Later developments show that the mob got the wrong man and the guilty one has made his escape.

Reduced Holiday Rates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The meeting of the authority committee of the immigrant coasting house with the Southern Pacific today was taken up entirely by the discussion of rules and adjustments of business to the various roads, and no action was taken on any proposition. The meeting will be continued tomorrow.

Western roads have adopted a proposition providing for reduced rates for the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Where the regular basis of rates is 3 cents per mile, a rate of 1 1-3 will be made for the round trip. Where the basis is over 3 cents, the regular fare will be 1 1-3 for the round trip.

Father Wagner Not Guilty.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Nov. 21.—Father Dominick Wagner, the priest of St. Mary's parish who created such a sensation by absenting Miss Maud Nicodel and afterwards marrying her to escape the penitentiary, was tried today on the charge of embezzlement of church funds.

Late this afternoon the case went to the jury, who, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict of not guilty.

THE CRISIS OVER

Evidences of a Feeling of Sympathy for the Sultan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A special to the Herald from Vienna says: A conference which has taken place between Sir Philip Currie, British ambassador to Turkey, and Count Goluchowski, Austrian minister for foreign affairs, and General Ricci, Italian ambassador at the Austrian court, has tended greatly to increase the optimistic feeling here. The alarming reports published by the Kreuz Zeitung on the subject of a Russian intrigue to detach Germany from the Triple alliance meet with no credence. A feeling of sympathy with the sultan is again beginning to show itself and the crisis outwardly at least, is becoming less acute.
