NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

CITY ITEMS.

FRIDAY, NOV. 12.

LARGE ROBBERY IN PHILADELPHIA.—Constable Joseph of this city, this morning received information from Philadelphia, that a jewelry store in that city had been broken open on Wednesday night, and robbed of a number of gold and silver watches, gold rings and other jewelry, to the value of $1,000, with which the thief is supposed to have made his way to this city. Any information will be received by Mr. Joseph at his office, 102 Centre-st.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT AND MAGNANIMOUS CONDUCT.—A hand on board the steamer Frank, named John Dodd, while the boat was conveying the "Compton Guards" to Bull's Ferry, yesterday, was accidentally caught in a coil of rope, which dragged him overboard and broke his leg. He was immediately rescued, when a subscription of $47 37½ was raised by the "Guards" for the benefit of the injured man.

BURGLARY.—The stable of James Morgan in Twelfth-st. near Broadway, was burglariously entered last night and robbed of a set of brass-mounted harness, worth $18, with which the thief escaped.

SUDDEN DEATHS.—Mr. Abram I. Moore, of Fort Lee, was taken suddenly ill yesterday about 2 o'clock, in the Merchants' Exchange Bank, when he was taken to the City Hospital, where he died at 3 o'clock.... A man named Patrick Donovan, dropped dead, in a fit, about 9 o'clock last night, at 274 Water-st. He was taken home to 81 Catharine-st.

SPECIAL SESSIONS.—Sentences.—Geo. W. Simmons for an assault and battery on Matilda Simmons, penitentiary 3 months....George Hare and Michael Hare, for stealing a coat from Elias Jackson, penitentiary 3 months each....John Coyle, for stealing a piece of cloth worth $16 from W. H. Moore, penitentiary 6 months....Mary Ann Fraser, for attempting to rob the house of William H. Matthews, penitentiary 30 days.

BROOKLYN AFFAIRS.

☞ An interesting and profitable Temperance Meeting was held on Thursday evening, in the M. E. Church, cor. York and Gold sts under the auspices of Pilgrim Division, No. 265, Sons of Temperance; who thus establish their right to the name of "Pilgrims," being the first Division (within our knowledge) who have broken new ground in the Temperance field by holding public Temperance meetings. The meeting was eloquently addressed by Rev. Dr. Wallace of New-York, and Daniel P. Barnard, Esq. with much effect resulting in a large number of signatures to the pledge; and the proceedings were enlived by an effective choir, singing several odes selected for the occasion. We understand that the By-Laws of the Division provide for these meetings, in the section of the city above named, at stated periods; and we have no doubt they will be attended with even a greater degree of success, than that which has marked the first.

From California.

The following extract of a letter to the Editor of the Albany Argus, from an officer in Col. Stevenson's regiment, was received by the Loo Choo, lately arrived at New-York from Puebla des los Angelos, in California:

PUEBLA DES LOS ANGELOS,
CALIFORNIA, June 22, 1847.

Since the departure of Gen. Kearney, who left some weeks since for the United States, little of importance has transpired here. The country now, as then, is perfectly tranquil, and there is nothing to indicate a change of this desirable state of things, unless it be for the better. Some of the Californians who left their homes for Sonora, are returning here. They give deplorable representations of the condition of that country. I am advised by those who have come in that many families, respectable residents of Sonora, are making arrangements to remove to California; and from a conviction that they will be sure of a permanent and good Government under the American flag; and under the full belief that Mexico cannot extend them aid and protection, and that farther persistence in rebellion will be unavailing.

We have now at this post nearly completed, a strong fortress. It has been erected by the the troops, on a hill that commands the town and the surrounding country. This, of course, will effectually suppress any attempt at insurrection, as every effort must inevitably involve all engaged in it, in a common calamity.

The Mormon force here and at San Diego, consists of about 360 men. Their terms of service expires on the 16th of July. They have been invited to re-enlist the service for another year, but at present there is not much prospect of their doing so. This is extremely to be regretted, for they are an orderly, quiet and peaceable set of men, submitting without resistance or a murmur, to the severest discipline, and altogether a most useful and efficient body of men.

The regiment of New-York Volunteers is now very much scattered—being distributed among different posts from Sutter's Settlement on the Sacramento, to La Paz in Lower California—a distance of 1,500 miles. The regiment will never probably be together again while in service. They will dearly earn all they receive from the Government. The hand of American industry and enterprise is plainly to be seen wherever our troops are stationed. Bricks are burned, ovens built, chimneys erected, saw-mills put in operation, and comfortable quarters constructed wherever timber can be had—Watches and clocks too, are sent to these stations a distance of fifty miles, to be repaired; cloths brought to be made into clothing, leather to be made into boots and shoes—and at one of the posts, a tannery has been established—and at Monterey two of the New-York volunteers, who are employed by the Commissary, have opened a stall at which beef, lamb, veal and mutton can be purchased dressed in Fulton marketstyle. They are doing remarkably well, and even the inhabitants who have been in the habit of slaughtering a bullock in the streets for their own use, are abandoning the habit of patronizing the New-York butchers. All can do well here who choose to help themselves and become useful.

FROM TEXAS.—By the arrival of the steamship Yacht, Capt. Crane, from Galveston, we have papers from that place to the 1st inst. inclusive. 137 German emigrants arrived in the bark J. N. Cooper, at Galveston from Hamburg, on the 22d ult. Maj. Neighbors, the Indian Agent, has arrived at Austin from Torrey's Trading House, where he was attending a council of the Indians.

The council was numerously attended by the frontier tribes, and a friendly disposition was manifested by all of them. He is of opinion, says the Austin Democrat, that there is no reason to apprehend any hostile movement among the Indians, unless they should be instigated to resume hostilities toward the Americans by the evil councels of villanous white men, some of whom, it appears have already been engaged in the foul work of prejudicing the minds of some of the tribes against maintaining peaceable relations with the Americans.

In relation to the sugar crop, the Galveston News says:

The accounts we got from the country represent the prospects of our sugar planters as unusually favorable. What may be the quantity brought to market this year cannot be ascertained with any great accuracy. We believe that much the largest portion of the cane planted will be used for seed to enlarge the present plantations or open new ones another year: and this use of the cane will continue for several years to come. We have direct information that eight of the largest planters of Brazoria county will make at least 2,800 hogsheads of sugar this year. The sugar houses and mills of that county are on the largest scale, and will bear a comparison with those of the most extensive plantations in Louisiana. Those houses are built of brick, (which are made on every plantation of an excellent quality,) and the largest are three hundred feet in length. [N.O. Pic. 4th.

RUM ROBBERY.—Yesterday noon a young man from the country, inexperienced in city wickedness, applied to the City Marshal to recover $10, which he stated had been boldly taken from him at the North End, by two men who had attached themselves to him upon his first arrival, and plied him with liquor until they had obtained possession of his money. The victim exhibited his empty wallet, and also eight cents which the thieves had kindly refunded to him, as they said, for "bitters." From appearances, he had been pretty effectually drenched with liquor; and, as is usual in such cases, nothing could be done for him. Nowadays, rum is a more potent ally of the thief than either the pistol or club. [Boston Traveller.

☞ The Tavern and out-buildings of Mrs. J. C. Hinds, at Antwerp, Jefferson Co. were destroyed by fire on the night of the 9th inst; two horses perished in the flames. A shoemaker's shop belonging to the Messrs. Conklin was also destroyed.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

We are on the eve of another Presidential Election.—Let none fancy that, since it is approached so calmly, it will be conducted sluggishly and terminated without excitement. Whoever cherishes such an illusion mistakes the character of the American People and the impulses which sway them. Equally idle is the imagination that Party lines are to be effaced and broken down in this contest—that the prestige of some heroic achievement or the glitter of an epaulette is to chase from the popular mind all memory of the radical differences of sentiment which have so often arrayed one-half our countrymen in fierce conflict with the other. Idle chimeras these! offspring of an empty heart or a sickly brain! With the progress of events a particular measure may become more or less important, the emphatic assertion of a certain principle more or less essential, but the question of questions remains and will remain. At one time, the establishment or maintenance of a Sound and Uniform Currency; at another, the upbuilding and cherishing of new or feeble branches of Home Industry; at another, the proper disposition of the Proceeds of the Public Lands; at a fourth, Peace or War, Spoliation or Justice; but underneath all these, mightier than any, more enduring than all, lives ever the elemental difference in which parties have their origin—on one side the idea that Government should be CREATIVE, CONSTRUCTIVE, BENEFICENT; on the other, the negative, skeptical, do-nothing element, whose axioms are 'The best Government is that which governs least,' 'The People are inclined to expect too much from Government,' &c.—which sees in a Canal, a Railroad, a Harbor, a Protective Duty, only a means of enriching a few individuals at the expense of the community, and which cannot conceive how any can be benefited by a public work without inflicting injury in at least equal measure upon others. The fundamental axioms of this negative philosophy are really hostile to Common Roads and Common Schools required and sustained by Law, as well as to those elements of National well-being against which it now directs the energies of a great party. The antagonism of sentiment growing out of these conflicting views of the nature and true ends of Government cannot, in the nature of things, be lastingly compromised; it cannot be terminated by the result of any one election. It must be potentially felt in the party contests and popular agitations of many years to come.

On this and all the great questions growing out of it, THE TRIBUNE maintains emphatically the doctrines of the Whig Party. It advocates PROTECTION TO HOME INDUSTRY, wherever such Protection may be needed, and to the extent of the necessity; a NATIONAL CURRENCY, sound and of uniform value, composed of Coin and Paper in such proportions as public interest and general convenience shall dictate; INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT, by the General and State Governments, each in its own sphere, and by Associations, liberally incited thereto by such facilities as Legislation may safely and justly afford; and such disposition of the PUBLIC LAND PROCEEDS as shall secure the benefit thereof to the People of all the States throughout all future time. Above all, this paper will 'study the things that make for PEACE,' and strenuously oppose the fell spirit of War, the lust of Conquest and the passion for Military Glory, so mortally adverse to all the ideas of Social and Political Economy to which it is devoted, as a mildew to genuine Democracy, as utterly at variance with Christianity, and as a scandal to the Nineteenth Century. These views will be faithfully and fearlessly commended to public favor; while our opposition to the Extension of Human Slavery over one foot of soil where it has not now a legal existence shall be unsparing, uncompromising and subject to no consideration of Party advantage or Presidential triumph. Far sooner will we sink with our principles than succeed without them, however desirable success or however mortifying defeat.

The Tribune is widely known as hoping and laboring for improvement in the Social Relations of Mankind—for a gradual transformation which shall secure to every person born into the world a place to live, a thorough practical Education, Opportunity to Work, and a certainty of the fair and full recompense of his Labor—and these not by purchase or on sufferance, but as the natural rights of human beings in an enlightened and Christian community.

THE TRIBUNE will endeavor to commend itself to all classes of readers by the fullness of its intelligence as well as the fairness of its discussions. With this intent one Assistant Editor will remain at Washington during the Session of Congress, giving daily reports of sayings and doings in the Houses and elsewhere; two European Correspondents will transmit us regular dispatches from the Old World; while no expense will be grudged in procuring the earliest and most reliable information from all parts of the world. Reviews of New Books of decided interest and selections from the Popular Literature of America and Europe will be frequently given, with occasional reports of Public Lectures of high character; it shall be our first object to present a fair and full picture of the real world, only varied at intervals by excursions into the realm of the ideal.

☞ THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE is issued Daily (a Morning and two Evening Editions, in order to serve each subscriber with the latest news possible) on a fair imperial sheet at Five Dollars per annum, or half the price of the great Commercial Advertiser. Which is also issued Daily and Semi-Weekly but Advertisements. A Semi-Weekly Edition is issued on a similar sheet each Wednesday and Saturday, and afforded to subscribers at Three Dollars per annum or $5 for two copies. THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE is printed on a sheet of nearly double the size of the Daily, and afforded at Two Dollars per annum, or five copies for $8, and Ten copies for $15, or Twenty copies for $24—payment being invariably required in advance. When the term paid for expires, the paper is uniformly stopped, so that no man need hesitate to take it from an apprehension that he will be persecuted by dunns or unable to get rid of the paper when tired of it. This rule has given offence to a few patrons of the non-paying order, but the great majority seem to like it better than the old fashion.

It is not our custom to appoint Local Agents to solicit subscriptions, nor to place great reliance on Agents at all. But any person who is well known and may be provided by his neighbors may aid us if he will and help himself if he chooses, by taking this Prospectus and asking those who like The Tribune to hand him the money for a year, which he can remit at Club price and thus obtain pay for his time and trouble. Subscriptions accompanied by payments are respectfully solicited by

EWBANK'S HYDRAULICS.

☞ The First Number of the Descriptive and Historical account of Hydraulics and other Machines for Raising Water, &c. &c. &c. by THOMAS EWBANK, is published and for sale this morning.

The Contents of this in part are as follows:

CHAPTER I.: The subject of raising water interesting to philosophers and mechanics—Lead to the invention of the steam-engine—Origin of the useful arts lost—First inventers the greatest benefactors—Memorials of them perished, while accounts of warriors and tyrants are preserved and polute the pages of history—A record of the origin and early progress of the arts more useful and interesting than all the works of historians extant—The history of a single tool (as that of a hammer) invaluable—In the general work of the arts of the ancients, most of their devices for raising water preserved—Cause of this—Hydraulic machines of very remote origin.
