EMIGRATION CREEK IS A MAD TORRENT

Residents Forced to Work Nearly All Night to Protect Their Property.

NEW BRIDGE BUILT TOO LOW

Beams Are Obstructing Free Passage Of Stream and Cause Water To Overflow Banks.

Not often of late years has Emigration creek overflowed its banks to the extent that it has already this season. Property on Seventh East street between Tenth and Eleventh South is in imminent danger of serious damage, and even now considerable injury is being done.

Until a late hour last night men were busily engaged protecting their property, and work was resumed as soon as it was light this morning. A bridge recently put in by the Utah Light & Railway company, midway between Tenth and Eleventh South and Seventh East, was responsible for the flooding of the last named street for a distance of several blocks. The beams of the west half of the bridge were placed nearly a foot lower than the other portion, causing the water to back up and inundate not only the street but residence property as well.

At Eighth East and Olive streets a flume was put in by the city last year sufficiently large to carry the water during summer months, but wholly inadequate at times of high water. A bank was recently thrown across the street, and but for this fact the people of Olive street would by this time have been driven from their homes. As it is, all traffic is shut off from the upper end of the street, there being twice the volume of water going over the culvert that there is running through it.

Allen street, usually high and dry, is inundated from Seventh to Eighth East, and the water found outlet in the deep trench sunk on Seventh East for the piping of Emigration creek to the corner of Liberty park. Pipe has been laid half the distance, but it is doubtful if work can be resumed until the high water subsides.

There no longer exists any doubt that the two 24-inch pipes are entirely too small to carry Emigration creek. The stream as it now is would fill four such pipes. Red Butte creek is much smaller than Emigration creek, yet the former stream more than fills the two pipes of similar size recently laid. The old channel was not filled up by the street car company, which was most fortunate, as part of the stream finds its way where it used to run, west of the tracks.

JUST A LITTLE TOO STRONG.

The try-out of a new sketch at the Orpheum yesterday afternoon was the occasion of considerable adverse criticism on the part of the audience generally. The playlet bears the title of "Her Wedding Eve" and was written by T. W. Heffron, a member of the Willard Mack Stock company, with the object in view of getting the act booked for the Orpheum circuit. It is hardly on the cards that Martin Beck will accept the playlet because it is not the kind of thing for a popular family theater patronized by the young and old of all classes. The little drama is realistic and borders on the brazen. It is not suited to refined vaudeville.

THANKS GOVERNOR AND NEWS.

At a meeting of the Utah Association for the Blind held at the Packard library, resolutions were adopted thanking Governor Spry and the legislature for creating a commission and providing for the appropriation of $40,000 to establish an industrial school for the adult blind. In another resolution adopted, the Deseret News received the thanks of the association for the aid it gave the sightless in their efforts to secure the legislation referred to.

MAJOR STANTON'S PROPERTY.

While reputed to be a wealthy man, the late Maj. Stanton who was buried here Thursday afternoon, left property not to exceed $1,000 in value. In the superior court at Los Angeles a petition for letters of administration has been filed by John C. Coyne, who was named as administrator by Mrs. Etta Alice Stanton, the widow. In the papers filed the age of Mrs. Stanton is given as 29 years, and Goldfield, Nev., is named as her place of residence. Mention is made of two children of deceased, namely, Joseph and Edith Stanton, the former 26 years old and the latter 21, both residents of this city. Maj. Stanton's property consisted of wearing apparel and personal effects, including jewelry.

JOY RIDERS MUST CUT DOWN SPEED

Mounted Deputies Are to Be Used in This County to Regulate Auto Driving.

Mounted deputies are to be placed on the county roads to prevent the practise of speeding automobiles outside the city limits. Several complaints have reached the county commissioners and it was taken up yesterday in the regular meeting of the board. Sheriff Sharp was notified of the action of the commissioners and notices were sent to the Salt Lake Automobile club and will be posted on the streets regulating the speed.

The commissioners instructed the county attorney to prepare advertisements for bids for the construction of the proposed jail as planned by the Pauly Jail Building company.

NEWS OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

Maj. W. G. Williams, who has been designated by the adjutant-general to have general supervision of rifle practise in the National Guard of Utah this year, is preparing the details of the state rifle meet to be held during the annual camp of instruction. Prizes representing $300 will be hung up on this occasion, to be awarded for individual and team excellence. The details of the match are still in the abstract, though it is known that teams of five men will represent each organization in the guard, and that there will be matches of teams from the First and Second battalions and detached organizations. Individual competition will probably be stronger than ever before. Col. Plummer, Capt. Arns and Capt. Barnes, all of whom qualified last year as expert riflemen, will probably lead in rivalry for first place, though they will not be at all lonesome in the competition, for there are others equally desirous of winning first place.

* * *

The rifle range just south of Bountiful is now open for regular practise two days each week. Under the direction of Capt. W. C. Webb, F. A., the range has been greatly improved and, notwithstanding the fact that there are only four targets in place, it is pronounced one of the finest ranges in the country. There is ample room for manipulation of the targets, provision for the complete safety of the men in the pit and a convenient storehouse is built near the targets. The signal corps has installed a telephone system on the range consisting of a stationary telephone in the pits and connection by means of portable instruments at each firing point. Improved markers have been installed and facilities in every particular are vastly improved over past years to develop marksmen.

* * *

Preparations have already begun in the First battery quarters to provide for the new 3-inch equipment recently assigned to the battery. The equipment is complete throughout and will put the militia artillerymen in exactly the same shape that the regular field batteries are. The battery will be in four sections as heretofore. A complete equipment of artillery type signal apparatus including telescopes will be included in the shipment.

* * *

Company C has just passed its first birthday, which really means its third year, or the period of the original enlistments in the company. Three years ago under the command of Capt. Miller, now retired, the company was organized and the enlistments of its first men have now expired. Many of them are re-enlisting and many others will do so upon the passage of their "30 days of grace," entitling them to records of continuous service. Among the re-enlistments of the week were those of First Sergt. A. M. Sheets and Quartermaster Sergt. A. L. Smith.

* * *

Private E. Good, Company C, has been discharged and has re-enlisted in the Fifteenth infantry, from which he went to the National Guard upon the expiration of his term in the regular army.

* * *

An examination is to be held within a short time in Company C for the appointment of several non-commissioned officers. Privates yearning for promotion are showing their interest by taking extra drilling and the study of their drill regulations.

* * *

Capt. H. K. Eakle, Lieut. Simpson, Lieut. Sheets and Sergt. A. L. Smith left Thursday morning for a sho ting trip. With their packs on their backs they are "hiking it" to a place where they have heard the festive bear lurks.

* * *

At Richfield the new company is making rapid strides. While this company has been in the service only one season, still it is giving some of the older organizations a good run. Capt. Charles M. Heppler is now in command. The men of Company E are looking forward to May 15, when a ball game will be played between the company's team of all-stars and the Monroe team. A ball in the Monroe auditorium will follow in the evening, and a big crowd is expected to accompany the militiamen to Monroe.

* * *

Company E has enlisted two men during the past week.

* * *

Lafayette Morrison, formerly captain of company E, who resigned his commission on leaving Richfield and then re-enlisted upon his return to the Sevier metropolis, has applied for a transfer to the Signal Corps.

* * *

Recent enlistments in the Signal Corps are: Charles A. Chapman, Edmund W. Bock, Chester W. Wilson, Forest Stewart, George Faust, Robert Richardson, Val Hoy, Ralph Archbold, J. W. Ahern and John B. Hume.

* * *

Baseball has taken a firm hold of guardsmen and teams are already organizing among the various organizations. The Signal Corps is first in the field with a nine having Sergeant Paul Armstrong as manager.

* * *

Interest in the annual rifle match at Camp Perry, Ohio, is already coming to the surface. The men to compose the Utah team, 18 in number, with alternates and others included, will be selected from the men making the highest scores in the state rifle matches during encampment.

* * *

The competition among companies for the three prizes offered by a member of the governor's staff for the Decoration day showing has started out in earnest. The prizes are $25, $15 and $10 and the rules make it impossible for Salt Lake to capture all the prizes, or for any geographical division to secure more than two. The greatest increase over legitimate losses and the best showing made in the parade are the factors in winning the prizes.

* * *

The school for officers will convene for a long season of hard work next Thursday evening.

An article calculated to educate the people of the United States in military matters, and particularly in regard to the militia, appears in the current issue of Pearson's. It is written by General James A. Drain, one of the foremost militia officers in the United States, and fully explains the necessity for the militia as the first reserve of the regular army and many reasons why militia service should be encouraged. One statement stands out strongly in his article reflecting upon the necessity for a strong militia. "A nation which is actually prepared for war can maintain peace for herself and other nations," he says, "without such preparation she can be forced into war against her will. The plainest plan to preserve peace is preparation." In his conclusion, Gen. Drain advances the following thoughts: "There are compensations in the life of a National Guardsman. A military training makes a stronger, better man of him in every way. He stands straighter and has better control of himself and others; he gains courage and self-possession, and, best of all, the flag of his country talks to him in a familiar language with every wave of its beautiful folds, after he has borne arms beneath it. He learns the true meaning of life—that his life is something he holds on trust for his country."
