years. For the payment of the interest and principal of these bonds, we pledge the entire income of the road, after the first of July, 1851, until the net earnings shall reach $1,200,000, reserving only a sum sufficient to pay the interest on the mortgage bonds. This we propose, confident in the belief that the receipts, on the completion of the road, will be more than this sum per annum, which would be quite sufficient to pay the interest on the debts of the Company at that period, of every nature, and six per cent dividends to the stockholders.

On the completion of the road to Lake Erie, the gross receipts cannot be less for the first year than $3,000,000, and the second year, $3,500,000. To show that these estimates are by no means extravagant, the following calculation is subjoined. We take for illustration, the receipts for the month of October, from Piermont to Owego, a distance of 222 miles. The road being then in operation and in good running order, the gross earnings were $100,000.—Take now the distance from Owego to Lake Erie, which is 222 miles, and allow that this division of the road will be only as productive as the Eastern portion, and leave out of the account entirely the vast amount of freight and passengers from beyond, and bordering the lakes, and we have the following results:

Receipts per month, to Owego, 222 miles	$100,000
Giving per year	$1,200,000
Receipts between Owego and Lake Erie, (same distance) per month)	$100,000
Making per annum	$1,200,000

We have now only to allow that the freight from beyond Owego shall be destined for New York, and of course that it runs over the Eastern half of the road, and this amount is doubled. 1,200,000—2,400,000

Giving the sum of $3,600,000

We also leave out of account the fact that the history of every railroad shows a large increase in the receipts from year to year. This is so universally the case, that it will hardly be necessary to do more than glance at the following statistics, from the report of the Western Railroad from Worcester to Albany:

1841, first year of its opening to Albany	512,033
1844	793,752
1848	1,332,069

or nearly 50 per cent interest in two years, and about 200 per cent from 1842 to 1848.

Estimated receipts first year of the opening of the road to Lake Erie 3,600,000
Expenses 1,500,000
Leaving net income $1,500,000

To be applied as follows:

Interest on Mortgage Bonds, 1856—67	480,000
Interest on proposed Income Bonds	240,000
Interest on other Indebtedness at completion of the road, say $1,000,000	70,000—890,000
Leaving	$610,000
or more than 12 per cent dividend to the Stockholders.
Estimated receipts second year	$3,500,000
Expenses	1,750,000
Net	1,750,000
Interest on Indebtedness of all descriptions	800,000
Leaving	945,000

or over 16 per cent to the Stockholders.

If your Board are not unreasonable in these estimates, then long before the close of the second year of the running of the road, the stock will be sought for and made available at par, for the redemption of a portion of the indebtedness of the Company.

In view of the facts and estimates herein set forth, the Board cannot doubt that the securities about to be offered will be received by the public with confidence. It will be noticed that we have made no reference to projected lines of railroads designed to connect with us, several of which will doubtless be completed within the next three years. Among them may be named the following: From Buffalo to Hornellsville, from Rochester to Corning, from Auburn to Ithaca, from Cleveland to Dunkirk, and the Liggett's Gap road, connecting the Erie Road with the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania.

When a few years more shall have elapsed, and time is given to bring about results, yet necessary for the full development of the resources of the Erie Railroad, the public will regard with astonishment the impediments which have been suffered to retard its progress. With trains of cars leaving Piermont and Lake Erie at all hours of the day, connecting with numerous railroads made and making between the Hudson River and the Lake, and there connecting with other roads running to Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and Galena, all freighted with the productions of the boundless West—who can doubt the destiny of this great work, and its influence on the wealth and prosperity of the City of New-York.

There is yet another consideration. It is a fact peculiar to the Erie Railroad, that it passes mainly through a country yet in its infancy. Every forest that is cleared, every house that is built, and every additional acre of land that is cultivated on its borders, will increase the business of the road. It is, by no means, an extravagant idea to suppose that the population of the country bordering on this road, west of the Delaware, and embracing an area of fifty miles on each side, will be doubled within ten years from this period.

Your Board, in conclusion, would remark that they have no greater interest in this road than other Stockholders; but, as citizens of New-York, they feel a pride in its success; and there is not a member of the Board who would see or even think of any measure which should its progress be obstructed by any cause. They have never yet, in the dark, yet period of their experience in the prosecution of this great work, for one moment faltered in their confidence of its triumphant success. They have stood by it, unmoved and undismayed, when enemies have predicted its failure and when friends have proved faint-hearted. They have freely given to it their time, their money and their credit, with no hope of reward, other than the satisfaction of having faithfully served your interests. This they are conscious of having done, to the best of their abilities, and this they will continue to do, so long as they may direct the affairs of the Company.

By order of the Board of Directors,

NATHANIEL MARSH, Secretary.

Office N. Y. and Erie R. R. Co. New-York, Feb. 1, 1850.

It tore the job and mainsail to pieces, started the main beam, ripped off the poop deck planks, sprung the boat's deadeye, smashed the small boat, spring fore spreader gaff and head of the topmast, crippled fore topmast, ripped off starboard molding rail and larboard quarter rail, started the skylights, smashed the binky hatch, and finally tore the quarter deck awning into ribbons. After this Capt Hadwich was compelled to cut away the braces fore and aft to enable the fore mast to swing free. After this operation, which occasioned no small was made on the Tri on the foremast, and she proceeded on her passage to this port. The brig leaked badly, caused by the spars beating against her sides. [N. O. Picayune, Jan 23.
