NEW ORLEANS:

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 2 1852.

A coffin (said an Irishman) is the house a man lives in when he is dead.

Mrs. Sinclair has a professional engagement in St. Louis for October next.

Edwin Forrest will presently "leap to the altar" one of the finest women in Philadelphia. So says "on dit."

Rev. Jean Holmes, a talented clergyman of Quebec, fell dead a few days ago, while engaged in writing a letter.

There is a great demand for a kind of plaster paper, says a city correspondent, which will enable gentlemen to stick to their business.

A Minnesota paper says: A soap-maker and tallow chandler may settle at St. Paul's and make a fortune at his business in three years.

The New York Mirror enumerates the new hotels going up in that city, and estimates that they will accommodate five thousand persons.

The slang phrase, "I wont do any thing else," is now publicly rendered, "Under the most incomprehensible conditions of sublimary disarrangement I will not be compelled to have recourse to any dissimilar course of procedure."

M. Merimee, the French writer, has been sentenced to fine and imprisonment for an article in the Revue des Deux Mondes, in which, while vindicating Libri, who was accused of stealing books from the National Library, he attacked the judges who had condemned him.

Dr. J. S. Smith, a colored physician, who received his medical education at Pittsfield, Mass., and has resided several years in Liberia, says: "I do not think that a colored man can be free, or even comfortably situated, politically and socially, any where under the broad canopy of heaven, as in Liberia."

An astonishing incident occurred at Tinnicum last week. In walking home, the editor of the Apple Dumpling was struck directly on the boundary of a shower, that but half of his umbrella was wet. Thereupon gentleman concluded to continue walking in such fields for such emergencies, one half to remain dried while the other is open. Great plans that Tinnicum Apples, they are tenning it in, preparatory to a coat of white wash.

On Saturday night and Sunday morning, the 20th ult., large portions of the rock near the American Ferry broke off and fell into the river, stirring up considerable commotion in the caldron of seething waters. The falling rock was established by the people living on Point View. Many fine specimens of Gneiss and Mica have been brought to the surface by this phenomenon and the whole army of explorers for Geological specimens may be seen engaged in the busy pursuit.

The King of Naples has given permission to Mr. Morris, Minister of the United States at the Neapolitan Court, to have a large block of lava cut from the foot of Mount Vesuvius, to be employed as the foundation of a statue to be erected at Washington. His Majesty has also allowed him to open two tombs at Herculaneum, and to take away the contents for the National Museum at Washington. These relics are to be conveyed to New York by the Independence frigate of the United States, now at anchor in the Bay of Naples.

Some three years since a poor factory girl, working in one of the villages on the Blackstone river, in Rhode Island, was given a sealed letter by a maiden aunt, with a solemn injunction not to open it until she was 18 years old. The girl was then 15. On the 22d of last month, being her 18th birth day, she opened the letter and found directions for to obtain a fortune of $8500, willed to her by the aunt who has since died. On Thursday last the fortunate girl obtained the whole amount in cash.

Western Theatricals are of rather a unique character. We extract from an Iowa paper the following notice of theatrics going on the Red River: "First night of the Dancing Bear who goes through the intricacies of the cotillion like a fashionable critter. The performances of the Great Wild Ass of the Desert will exhibit the wonderful attainments of the Dog Billy, a quadruped that reckons his figures than a piece of chalk and works problems in arithmetic with more facility than him. Admission 12½ cents. No extra charge for the show." The Dog Billy is evidently a critter of a much the press and ministers of the Gospel."

One of the Lisbon papers tells the following remarkable story of what occurred when the house in which the Portuguese royal family were staying recently at Mafra, was burnt:—Close to the kitchen a soldier of the 24 infantry was on guard as sentinel. The soldier on discovering the fire knocked at the door of the queen's bedchamber to give the alarm. The queen immediately rushed out the king in his shirt and drawers, and the queen in her chemise. Her Majesty told the soldier to burst open the door of the room where the young princess were sleeping, which he did but, up to her telling him to take charge of them, and convey them to a place of safety, he said he was on sentry and could not, without violation of the ordonnance militaire, abandon his post. When upon, without a moment's hesitation her Majesty took his musket from him and held it, until he came back, after having deposited his young charges in safety.
