COTTON RALLIES TO PREVIOUS CLOSING

After Early Fall, Steadies With Support of Wall Street and Trade.

The cotton market was without new development yesterday, all interests apparently awaiting a change in the spot situation or in outside conditions. The market started narrowly irregular, and, after dropping 13 to 23 points early, steadied with support of Wall Street shorts and trade interests and rallied to about Wednesday's close. Final bids were 6 points net higher to 3 lower.

The early easiness was due chiefly to Liverpool's lower cables, a less optimistic tone in Manchester advices and indisposition of bull operators to buy until a revival of spot demand. Delivery notices made little difference one way or the other as they amounted to only 300 bales, in contrast to about 40,000 on Wednesday.

The reason for slacker demand from spinners is the struggle in New England for a lower wage basis. The labor situation is still very much in a deadlock, although several mills were reported to have reopened to give their employees a chance to return to work. In Manchester much less active conditions prevail and buying of cloths and yarns is light. Spot sales, recently 10,000 bales, have fallen to 6,000, and the price of middling was quoted at 9.37d. a pound.

The local spot market was steady. Middling was quoted at 18.70, or unchanged from Wednesday, and no sales were reported. Deliveries on contract were of 600 bales.
