NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

CRESCENT OFFICE,
SATURDAY EVENING, January 8, 1853.

The most striking feature in our general market since the date of our last weekly review have been an increase in Cotton, with an improved demand, with a decline in Flour, both changes being dated by the news from Liverpool by the steamer Pacific, which left that port on the 26th December, whose advices we published on Monday morning. Entirely contrary to the general expectation, the Pacific brought intelligence of an improving Cotton Market at Liverpool, even after the arrival of the Asia from this port with accounts of very heavy receipts from the interior and large collections coming from the crop. The sales of Cotton for the four days preceding the departure of the Pacific from Liverpool amounted to 31,000 bales, of which 10,000 were taken for speculation and export. Prices had been steadier, and for some qualities an advance had been realized, the quotations closing on Friday, the 17th December, as follows: Fair Orleans, 4d; Middling Orleans, 3¾; Fair Mobile and Upland, 4¼; Middling Mobile and Upland, 3¾d. Both the sale of the steamer's departure, the market continued firm, and a dispatch from our private correspondent, in the last hour, quote 4 Fair Orleans at 4d, and other departures received in New orleans Middling Orleans at 3 15-16d. On Thursday morning we had intelligence under the Asia's arrival, which had the effect still further to restrict business, the views of buyers and sellers not corresponding as rates, and the sales were limited to 500 bales, principally taken for speculation and export. The closing rates of Tuesday. Yesterday there almost no little disposition to make concessions, and buyers, in lately expectation of the America's news, designed to operate to any considerable extent. The sales were comparatively limited to about 1500 bales, making a total for the week of 3,000 bales, mostly for England, but with a considerable proportion for the Continent of Europe. Prices were rather easier yesterday, but nothing materially from those of the preceding Tuesday.

The receipts of the week are 19,261 bales, against 19,419 bales for the corresponding week last year, and the aggregate receipts of this portion of the crop are 1,000,000 bales, against 908,000 to the same date last year, showing an increase of 148,000 bales. We now quote as follows:
