Located in the business part of the city, it affords peculiar advantages to business men; being conducted on the European plan, persons occupying rooms can either take their meals in the house, or at any other part of the city to which business or pleasure may call them, as they will only be expected to pay for what they really get. In addition to the Parlors, there are THREE SEPARATE DINING-ROOMS, one of which is set apart for the exclusive use of ladies unattended, or for gentlemen accompanied with ladies. The other two are for the use of gentlemen. To these rooms are served up at all hours the best articles the market affords, at such prices as must satisfy the most reasonable. Gentlemen consider the character of the house and the quality of the articles which constitute the daily bill of fare. The house is entirely attended by active, intelligent females, who are much better qualified for the task than males. Rooms let by the day or week, either to persons doing business here, or to strangers visiting the city. The proprietor would respectfully solicit such share of the public favors as on trial the popular judgment may accord to his establishment.
SOLOMON KING, Proprietor.
