Professional Notices.

IMPROVED ARTIFICIAL TEETH.—Dr. J. ALLEN, late Professor in the Ohio College of Dental Surgery, invites attention to his improved method of constructing ARTIFICIAL DENTURES, which combines the following advantages:
1st. There are no seams or crevices for the lodgement of food to vitiate the saliva, or infect the breath, as not even the slightest moisture can get between the teeth and plate.
2d. An Artificial Gum, which is as firm and indestructible as the teeth, is fused at a high heat, between and around their base, which unites them firmly to each other and to the plate upon which they are set. This gum imparts to the teeth that peculiar expression and life-like appearance which characterizes the natural organs.
3d. Great strength is obtained by thus uniting the Teeth, Gum and Plate, and no ordinary force in masticating can break them from their base.
4th. A clear and distinct articulation of speech is restored. This important change is effected by having the inside of the teeth and gum of a natural form. To this form the tongue is readily adapted. This perfect adaptation of the inside to the denture prevents the hissing or muffled sounds in speaking or singing so often observed in persons wearing artificial teeth.
5th. The natural form and expression of the mouth and face can be restored, in cases where they have become sunken. This is done by means of additional attachments to the frame work supporting the teeth. These attachments are so formed as to bring out the sunken portions, and sustain them in their proper position. They are covered with the above named gum or enamel, and become component parts of the denture, and when tightly turned cannot be detected by the closest observer. This method of restoring the cheeks to their original fullness, and also the natural form and expression of the mouth and lips, has been well tested, having been made a specialty feature in the author's practice for several years past. A variety of Photographic and Daguerreotype likenesses, which have been taken of persons without this improvement, and also will be seen at his office, showing the great change in appearance which is produced in the countenances of individuals wearing dentures constructed upon this principle, which the public are invited to call and examine, together with other specimens of his improved style of work, not requiring the above attachments.
6th. The plates usually employed for this work are platina, the purity of which prevents even the slightest tarnish, or unpleasant taste in the mouth. In short, this system embraces many new and important features, which are readily appreciated by those wearing artificial dentures upon this principle. With reference to the utility of this method, numerous testimonials can be given from eminent Dentists in the various cities of the Union, and persons wearing the work in the last cities of the Union, and persons wearing the work in the last cities of the Union, and persons wearing the work in the last cities of the Union, and persons wearing the work in the last
