GENERAL TONE MUCH STRONGER.

The Stock Market Recovers From Yesterday's Reaction.

CLOSE WAS ACTIVE AND STRONG

Cervera's Blockade Has Given Additional Strength to the Market—Idle Money is Seeking Channels for Employment.

NEW YORK, June 4.—There was no trace left to-day of the reactionary tendency manifest in the stock market late yesterday. The change might be accounted for in two ways. First, the adoption by the Senate of the section of the revenue bill authorizing an issue of bonds and treasury certificates may have relieved the expected apprehension for the care of the Government's finances. Second, the professional speculators, who sold stocks and took their profits early in the week, and were anxious to get back at low prices, may have been satisfied with the extension of yesterday's reaction and glad to buy back stocks at the lower level. The second objection is more likely to be true. It was evident before the opening of the market to-day that it would be difficult to effect any further decline in prices, as London had advanced Americans a large fraction all around. When the bank statement first appeared there was some pressure to sell by trades who make it a rule to always sell stocks when the banks' surplus reserves show a decrease, but a better analysis of the return soon led to renewed buyin. The close was active and strong near top prices. Net gains in the case of the most active stocks ranged between 1 and 2 points, and in exceptional cases above that. The final blockading of Admiral Cervera in Santiago harbor has given strength to the stock market all the week. But the event, as is the case in Wall street with all expected events, had been discounted by large buying.

Bonds have distinctly shown the broadening pressure of idle money seeking employment in enlarged business and higher prices. United States new 4's have advanced 1¼, the old 4's, coupon, 1; the seconds ½, the 5's, registered, ⅝, and the 5's, coupon, ¼ in the bid price.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.—Money on call steady at 1¼@1½ per cent.; last loan at 1½ per cent.; prime mercantile paper, 3¼@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 486¼@486¾ for demand and at 484¼@484½ for sixty days; posted rates, 485@487; commercial bills, 483@483¾. Silver certificates, 59¼@60½; bar silver, 58¾; Mexican dollars, 45¼. State bonds quiet; railroad bonds firm; Government bonds irregular.

BANK STATEMENT.—The weekly bank statement shows the following changes:

Surplus reserve, decrease	$1,454,900
Loans, increase	11,890,900
Specie, increase	1,640,100
Legal tenders, increase	258,300
Deposits increase	13,413,200
Circulation, decrease	6,500

The banks now hold $52,249,700 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent. rule.

Modern Instances of Great Longevity

In a letter from Ottawa, Canada, the followisg very interesting case of longevity is mentioned:

"The government clerks in the Post-office Department in Ottawa are very much interested in a document that passed through the department officially a few days ago. The document is the property of the Imperial Government, and contains a report which is perfectly reliable. The report gives the history of a man who is 134 years old, and has been in the employ of the English Postal Service for the last seventy-six years. The man's name is Robert Taylor. He was born in Scarva, north of Ireland, in the reign of George III. He was fifty-one years old when the battle of Waterloo was fought. He was five years old when Napoleon was born, and he can clearly remember the revolt of the American Colonies against England in 1776. The report further says that the old gentleman still possesses all his faculties, and discharges all the duties of postmaster in his native village of Scarva. Mr. Taylor is said to have lived the life of a batchelor until he passed the age of 100 years, and in 1872 he married a lady whom he had known for over fifty years."

Such instances, however, are not without modern precedent, for the commentary of Dr. Adam Clarke upon the 10th verse of the 90th Psalm, "The days of our years are three-slore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four-score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow," &c.

The following remarkable cases of longevity are given:

Thomas Parr, of Winnington in Shropshire, far outlived the term as set down in the Psalm. At the age of eighty-eight he married his first wife, by whom he had two children. At the age of one hundred and two he fell in love with Catherine Milton, by whom he had an illegitimate child, and for which he did penance in the church! At the age of one hundred and twenty he married a widow woman, and when he was one hundred and thirty could perform any operation of husbandry. He died at the age of one hundred and fifty-two, A. D., 1635. He had seen ten Kings and Queens of England.

Thomas Damme, of Leighton, near Minshul in Cheshire, lived one hundred and fifty-four years, and died A. D., 1648.

Agnes Shuner is another instance. She lived at Camberwell in Surrey. Her husband, Richard Shuner, died in 1497, whom she survived ninety-two years. She died in 1499, aged one hundred and nineteen years.

The Countess of Desmond in Ireland. On the ruin of the house of Desmond she was obliged at the age of one hundred and forty to travel from Bristol to London to solicit relief from the Court, being then reduced to poverty. She renewed her teeth two or three times and died in 1612, aged one hundred and forty-five years.

Henry Jenkins, of Ellerton upon Swale, in Yorkshire, was sent when a boy about twelve years of age with a cart-load of arrows to Northallerton to be employed in the battle of Flodden Field, which was fought September 9, 1513. He was a fisherman, and often swam the rivers when he was more than one hundred years of age! He died A. D., 1670, being then one hundred and sixty-nine years of age!

I shall add one foreigner, Peter Toston, a peasant of Temiswar, in Hungary. The remarkable longevity of this man exceeds the age of Isaac five years, of Abraham ten, falls short of Terah's (Abraham's father) twenty, and exceeds that of Nahor (Abraham's grandfather) thirty-seven years. He died A. D., 1724, at the extraordinary age of one hundred and eighty-five.
