DAILY CRESCENT.

A Beautiful Story.

The most beautiful and affecting incident I know, associated with a shipwreck, is the following:

The Governor, an East Indiaman, homeward bound, goes ashore on the coast of Caffraria. It is resolved that the officers, passengers and crew, in number 185 souls, shall endeavor to reach the coast of Cape Town. With this forlorn object before them, they finally separate into two parties—never more to meet again.

There is a solitary child among the passengers—a little boy of seven years old—who has no relation there, and when the first party is moving away, he cries after some member of it who has been kind to him. The crying of a child might be supposed to be a little thing to men in such a great extremity; but it touches them, and he is immediately taken into that detachment.

From that time forth, this child is sublimely made a sacred charge. He is pushed on a little raft across broad rivers by the swimming sailors; they carry him by turns through the deep sands and long grass (he patiently walking at all other times); they share with him such putrid fish as they find to eat; they lay down and wait for him when the rough carpenter, who becomes his especial friend, lags behind. Beset by lions and tigers, by savages, by thirst and hunger, by death in crowds of ghastly shapes, they never—Oh! Father of all mankind, thy name be blessed for it!—forget the child. The captain stops exhausted, and his faithful coxswain goes back, and is seen to sit down by his side, and neither of the two shall be any more beheld until the Great Last Day! but, as the rest go on for their lives, they take the child with them. The carpenter dies of poisonous berries, eaten in starvation; and the steward succeeding to the command of the party, succeeds to the sacred guardianship of the child.

God knows all he does for the poor baby; how he cheerfully carries him in his arms when he himself is weak and ill; how he folds his ragged jacket round him, lays his little worn face with a woman's tenderness upon his sunburnt breast, soothes him in his sufferings, sings to him as he limps along, unmindful of his own parched and bleeding feet.

Divided for a few days from the rest, they dig a grave in the sand and bury their good friend, the cooper—these two companions alone in the wilderness—and then the time comes when they are both ill, and they beg their wretched partners in despair, reduced and few in number, to wait by them one day. They wait by them one day—they wait by them one day. On the morning of the third, they move very softly about, making preparations for the resumption of their journey; for the child is sleeping by the fire, and it is agreed with one consent that he shall not be disturbed until the last moment. The moment comes—the fire is dying—and the child is—dead!

His faithful friend, the steward, lingers but a little behind him. His grief is great; he staggers on for a few days, lies down in the desert and dies. But he shall be reunited in his immortal spirit—who can doubt it?—with the child, where he and the poor carpenter shall be raised up with the words: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me!"

A Great Bull.—The following bull, which we picked up we have forgotten where, is hard to beat:

"Hallo, Cowan! What did you shoot at just now?"

"None of your business; go along over the hill!"

Surprised at this short and crusty answer, Hoffman looked around, and discovered a calf among the bushes. And he again cried out: "I say, Cowan, did you shoot at the calf?"

"Yes, I did; but it's none of your business."

"Why, what made you shoot at it?"

"Why, I took it for a deer."

"Well, did you hit it?"

"No, I missed it."

"How did you miss?"

"Why, I wasn't quite sure it wasn't a calf."

"Your are a pretty specimen of a hunter," rejoined Hoffman, "to shoot a calf for a deer, and miss at that!"

"Don't make a fool of yourself!" replied Cowan, "I shot at it just so as to hit it if it was a deer, and miss it if it was a calf!"

Important Occupation.—"Boy," said a fashionably dressed man to the servant of one of his companions, "is your master at home?" "Yes, sir," replied the boy, "but he's confined to his room. He's growin' of moustaches, and ain't allowed to see any body but his hair-dresser!"

"Why, Mr. B.," said a tall youth to a little person in company with half a dozen huge men, "I protest, you are so small I did not see you before." "Very likely," replied the gentleman, "I am like a sixpence among six copper pennies, not readily perceived, but worth the whole of them."

Mrs. Partington, speaking of the rapid manner in which evil deeds are perpetrated, said that it only required two seconds to fight a duel.

"Jake, did you carry that umbrella home that I borrowed yesterday?" asked a father of his only son. "No father; you have often told me to lay up some thing for a rainy day; and, as I thought it would rain soon, I laid up the umbrella."

HOTELS—RESTAURANTS.

OCEAN SPRINGS, MISS.—The undersigned, having leased for a term of years these newly discovered and highly valuable Mineral Springs, respectfully informs the public that he has opened a large and commodious Hotel for the reception of permanent and transient Boarders. During the past winter extensive additions have been made to the Hotel, and the house offered has been spared no pains to render it as commodious and comfortable. Attached to the Hotel are the usual Billiard Rooms, and other amusements usually found at watering places, with the fishing and sea bathing easily accessible to the southern country. The analysis of the water of these Springs, as made by a distinguished chemist, proves that it contains mineral qualities of the highest order. The ordeal of time has established the fact that they are a certain cure for all those persons suffering from chronic diseases have been restored to health by the use of the water. The Hotel is reached by daily trains between New Orleans and Ocean Springs during the summer; thence from the Lakeend of the Pontchartrain Railroad.

GREEN OAKS HOTEL, Biloxi, Miss.—This hotel and pavilion boarding house, is generally known throughout the Southern country, under the management of Mrs. ELIZABETH PRADAT and her son, JOHN B. PRADAT, situated about one mile distant from the village of Biloxi, will be opened on the 1st of June for the reception of visitors.

The GREEN OAKS HOTEL has now established an extended notice. For many years past the proprietors have made many improvements, and the patronage has been increasing. The many natural advantages, commanding the finest water, good sea bathing, the best fishing, and enjoying the purest water as it flows from the Gulf, have not failed to impress favorably the many visitors from New Orleans, Mobile, and the surrounding country.

During the last winter the proprietors have made many improvements and additions. The BILLIARD ROOMS are thoroughly arranged and furnished. The BILLIARD TABLE will be at all times at the service of the visitors, free of charge.—Ten CLARETS at Dinner.

CARRIAGES and HORSES may be procured at any moment.

In addition, the celebrated BRASS BAND of New Orleans is engaged and a DAILY BAND will be procured at any moment.

Visitors wishing to stop at the GREEN OAKS, are requested to notify the Captains of the Steamers who will land them at the wharf of the Hotel.

BELL CHENEY SPRINGS.—The undersigned respectfully informs the public that they have purchased this WATERING PLACE, and have in the course of the ensuing summer made extensive improvements for the accommodation of Visitors. The Springs are situated in the pine woods, parish of St. Landry, thirty-seven miles north-west of Opelousas, eight miles south of Alexandria, and ten miles north of Bayou Chicot. The water possesses highly medicinal qualities, and has proved efficacious in many aggravated diseases which was beyond the reach of ordinary remedies. The Bath is supplied by Spring Water, and much improved by its use. Deer, Fox and Wild Cat are numerous, affording fine sport to the hunter; and the Lake, seven miles in length, with a depth of twenty feet, situated three miles and a half from the Springs, abounds in Trout and other fine fish. A park of Horses for riding, and Boats for fishing, will be furnished to the visitors. The best Wines and Liquors which the New Orleans market can afford will be kept constantly on hand. Coaches will always be provided at Opelousas and Washington to transport any number of passengers to the Springs. Good Meals will be furnished and Balls given twice per week, gratis. Hunting and Fishing parties will find Salves to the Lake will be kept for hire. Gentlemen fond of hunting should bring their guns. FIRST TOILE is to be purchased at the Springs. Visitors received from 1st May to 1st November.
