HEAVY EXPORTS.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HILL CAMP OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Wholesome Effect of the Mayor's Decision—Political Intimidation—Federal Patronage.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

PETERSBURG, VA., December 7, 1888.

The shipments of manufactured tobacco for exportation were heavier to-day than for any one day during the past four years from this city. The amount shipped aggregated between 160,000 and 175,000 pounds.

The annual meeting of the A. P. Hill Camp of Confederate veterans was held last night, but the attendance was so small that it was deemed best to defer the election of officers for the ensuing year to a called meeting of the camp to be held for that purpose some time during the month.

The decision of the Mayor yesterday imposing a fine of $200 on a negro convicted of selling liquor on Sunday, and the announcement of his intention to enlarge this fine on persons hereafter convicted of a like offence, will most probably have a wholesome effect in stopping the sale of liquor on the Sabbath among the low groggeries of the city.

There is a colored man in this city who was recently pastor of a church in one of the counties in the Fourth district. He had the independence to vote the Democratic ticket, for which act he was not only ostracised by the colored Republicans, but deprived practically of his pastoral charge, and even threatened with violence. He deemed it best to leave the section in which he had lived and to take up his residence in the more wholesome community of Petersburg.

The local Republicans are canvassing on the question of the offices to be distributed under the new Administration. Their counsels are well kept, but no doubt the names have pretty well been agreed upon for all the offices to be bestowed in this portion of the State. There seems to be no doubt that General Mahone will have a potential voice in the distribution of patronage in Virginia, and if such be the case it is pretty well understood how the patronage will be given out. ROBIN ADAIR.

4TH. CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, December 7, 1888.

Senate.

The Senate was not in session to-day.

House of Representatives.

In his opening prayer the Chaplain referred to the prevalency of yellow-fever in the South and invoked the Almighty to strengthen the national and State governments in the enforcement of a quarantine which shall keep from our homes the pressence of foreign plagues and pestilents.

A communication from the Secretary of the Navy relative to the proposed establishment of a naval museum at Washington was presented and referred.

It was ordered that when the House adjourn to-day it be to meet Monday next.

Mr. Dunn, of Arkansas, from the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, reported back, and the House adopted the resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to what relief can be furnished by the revenue-cutter service and life-saving service to American whaling and fishing vessels wrecked in Behring's sea or the Arctic Ocean.

Mr. Foran, of Ohio, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the invalid pensions appropriation bill. Referred to Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, from the Committee on Elections, submitted a report in the South Carolina contested-election case of Smalls against Elliott, and it was placed upon the calendar. (It finds in favor of the contestee, Elliott. The minority resolution, presented by Mr. Rowell, of Illinois, and also placed upon the calendar, provides for the seating of Smalls.)

The House then went into Committee of the Whole (Mr. McMillin, of Tennessee, in the chair) on the private calendar, the pending business being the Senate bill to incorporate the Nicaragua Canal Company.

Mr. Spinola, of New York, offered an amendment striking out the clause which authorizes the company to exercise such powers as have been conferred upon it by the Government of Nicaragua. British was to be a stock-jobbing affair, he said, the sooner it was known the better. He thought his amendment ought to prevail for the protection of those persons who expected to invest their dollars in the enterprise. No one knew what the agreement between Nicaragua and the company was.

Mr. Cox, of New York, expressed his ignorance of the facts upon which his colleague predicated his statement that this was a stock-jobbing affair. Stocks might be affected by it, but he did not know it. After a brief constitutional argument in support of the measure he urged the importance of its passage from a commercial standpoint. He believed in extending the American commerce. He believed in following the southern cross. If there was one thing that this country needed more than another it was a revival of its shipping interest. If it could not be done by domestic legislation, let Congress give its enterprising citizens the seas of the republic to go out and draw to the United States the commerce of the world. [Applause.]

Mr. Farquhar, of New York, remarked that if the amendment were adopted the bill would be like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out. Speaking in advocacy of the measure he declared that it would place in the hands of the United States the key of the south Indian trade. The coast-wise trade had been concentrated in New England and New York. He was willing that, in reference to southern commerce, New Orleans should strive for the prize of the two South Americas; and he hoped that when this bill should have passed such an impetus would be given to the coast marine of the south that out of the iron and coal of Alabama would be built the four-thousand-ton steamers which would reap the triumph of the commerce of Nicaragua and place it in the lap of the South. Let the United States show to the Congress of the three Americas, which would soon meet in this city, that instead of the empty phraseology of resolutions of comity and good will, the Government had opened to the two Americas the south of the United States, a highway costing $100,000,000, backed up by the sentiment of the Fiftieth Congress. [Applause.]

Mr. Weaver, of Iowa, regarded the measure as one of the most important which had been before Congress in a decade. The Nicaraguan canal would bear the same relation to our commercial prosperity that the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope had borne to the commerce of the mother country.

Mr. Holman, of Indiana, argued against the constitutionality of the measure, contending that it was not authorized by the clause granting Congress the power to regulate commerce. In opposing the bill he predicted that if the bill passed in its present shape Congress would be asked in less than ten years to guarantee the bonds.

Mr. Rayner, of Maryland, found in the Constitution direct authority granted to Congress to pass such a measure as was pending.

Mr. Blount, of Georgia, found in the fact that the company did not seek a State charter, which, he asserted, it was competent for it to do, the reason why the bill should receive careful and cautious examination and scrutiny. He predicted that the corporators of the company (having the Government committed to the enterprise) would come to a future Congress and ask the Government to go further and maintain the enterprise by contributions.

Mr. Spinola's amendment was rejected.

Mr. Holman offered the following amendment: Provided that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to commit the United States to any liability whatever for or on account of said company; nor shall the United States be held in any wise liable or responsible in any form or by implication for any debt or liability in any form which said company may incur nor be held as guaranteeing any engagement or contract of said company, or as having assumed any responsibility for the acts or proceedings of said company in any foreign country or the contracts or engagements entered into in the United States.

Mr. Phelan, of Tennessee, criticised the advocates of the bill for pressing it forward at a time when there was no opportunity for that careful discussion and consideration which the important questions involved in the measure demand. He submitted a brief constitutional argument against the bill. He hoped that the House would postpone until a more suitable time the discussion of the proposition which engrafted on the statute-books a policy totally and radically new and entirely hostile to the best interests of the United States.

Mr. Cobb, of Alabama, moved to amend Mr. Holman's amendment by adding to it the following: "And this proviso shall be printed on every bond, contract, certificate of stock, or other obligation issued by said company." The amendment was adopted and Mr. Holman's amendment as so amended was agreed to.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, offered an amendment as follows: Provided that Congress reserves the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act, and to regulate the tolls or tariff rates for transportation of persons or property by the company or its assigns. Agreed to.

Another amendment was adopted requiring the construction of the canal to be begun within three years. An amendment requiring the canal to be completed within ten years was voted down.

On motion of Mr. Wilson, of Minnesota, an amendment was adopted providing that no certificates of stock shall be issued until at least 10 per cent. of the stock capital shall be fully paid for in money at par value of the stock and the money deposited in the treasury of the company. No payment on account of the capital of the company shall be paid except in money, and the company is prohibited from returning or repaying any part of the money so paid. No bonds in excess of the amount of capital paid in shall be authorized until such paid capital shall amount to $5,000,000. No part of the capital stock paid in shall at any time be returned to the stockholders or be diverted from the proper uses of the corporation. A violation of any of these provisions is punishable by a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for five years.

Mr. Stockdale, of Mississippi, offered an amendment providing that the concessions to Nicaragua shall not be changed, nor shall the company release the Government of Nicaragua from any of the concessions without the consent of the United States, and any violation of this provision shall operate as a forfeiture of the franchise of the company.

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, (with all due deference to the gentleman who offered the amendments,) said that it seemed to him that there was a settled purpose on the part of some of the gentlemen to defeat the bill by indirection. While admitting the importance of the object to be accomplished, they practically defeated it by offering amendments which would prevent the accomplishment of that object. Let Congress grant the charter as requested, and thus promote American enterprise and American commerce, and let the members remember that an American company, chartered by the United States, would be practically under Government control, and that the enterprise would be practically an American enterprise.

Mr. Herbert, of Alabama, said that the Government, in incorporating the company, established a protectorate over the canal, with all that the word implied. He was not here to say that that ought not to be done; but it should be done with the eyes open.

Mr. McCreary, of Kentucky, and Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, briefly advocated the bill and argued its constitutionality. Pending the vote on the amendment the committee rose and the House, at 4:30, took a recess until 7:30, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills.

At its evening session the House passed ten pension bills, and at 10 o'clock adjourned until Monday.

Two of "Old Hutch's" Clerks Missing.

A special from Chicago says: B. P. Hutchinson, otherwise known as "Old Hutch," has been made the victim of a dishonest clerk. Frank H. Bates, who has been in Mr. Hutchinson's employ not over six months, has decamped, leaving the affairs of the commission firm of B. P. Hutchinson & Co. in such a tangled shape that it was found necessary just before the first of the present month to send around to each firm "On 'Change" in order to ascertain where Hutchinson & Co.'s speculative trades were. Bates's mother said that Frank had gone to New York, but diligent telegraphic inquiries by his friends have failed to locate him, although he has been gone since a week ago Monday. Neither B. P. Hutchinson, his son Charles, nor any of the employés of the office will utter a whisper as to the amount of the defalcation, but a bosom friend of Bates's asserted that he thought Frank had "made about $20,000 in the last two or three months." In the language of this friend, who did not know that his information would reach the public: "Frank has been spending money like water. He has several diamond rings, two of them really gorgeous, a big diamond stud the size of a hickory-nut for his scarf, and, besides, he presented numerous diamond rings to the ladies."

The method pursued by Bates in his misappropriations is a yet unknown, but John Lanergan, the settling clerk for Hutchinson, has also disappeared. With the aid of the settling clerk and the connivance of some other firm or broker, it would be an easy matter for Bates to work with considerable safety a system which would rob the old man right and left. One method which Bates is known to have practiced, but which is not perhaps within the statute, was to anticipate the "old man's" orders. For instance, when Bates got an order to buy 100,000 bushels of wheat he would buy 150,000 bushels. The odd 50,000 bushels he would buy first, for his own account, and would sell it when the effect of the purchases for "Old Hutch" had lifted the market a little. This, of course, worked as well when his employer was selling.

Some one interviewed the Secretary of the Corean Legation at San Francisco the other day. He was ready to talk on many subjects, but when asked what he thought of Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Depew he shook his head and said: "I don't understand. Excuse me."

RINGING NOISES

in the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, or snapping like the report of a pistol, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also results from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for catarrh, which it cures by eradicating from the blood the impurity which causes and promotes this disease.

"For twenty-five years I have been troubled with catarrh in the head, indigestion, and general debility. I concluded to try a bottle of and it did me so much good that I continued its use till I have taken five bottles. My health has greatly improved and I feel like a different woman." Mrs. J. B. ADAMS, 8 Richmond street, Newark, N. J.

"I am happy to say that my wife was cured of a very bad cough and what was called 'quick consumption,' by Hood's Sarsaparilla. She was restored to perfect health, which she has enjoyed ever since. Our little girl was poor and puny; Hood's Sarsaparilla seemed to be just the thing she needed, as she has been well and hearty since taking it." FRANK OTIS, Berwick, Me.

N. B.—Be sure to get

in your throat arises from catarrh, and as catarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by building up the general health and expelling the scrofulous taint which is the cause of catarrh and consumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom these diseases seem to have a firm hold. Many unsolicited testimonials prove beyond question that Hood's Sarsaparilla does positively cure catarrh.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with satisfactory results, receiving permanent benefit from it." J. F. HUBBARD, Streator, Ill.
