Can Rupture be Cured?

FELLOW-CITIZENS: The undersigned addresses this to your common sense, on a subject of the greatest possible interest to some hundreds of thousands of your number. The following extract from The Virginia Medical Journal, a publication of conservedly high position among our periodicals for its originality and talent, will serve to point out to you, in the clearest manner, the selfish prejudice of a large class of medical and surgical men in opposing special attention to certain branches of surgery, and the announcement of such professional selection, by men of acknowledged character in the profession, in the columns of the newspapers. For ten years of a professional life, now past a quarter of a century's duration, it is extensively known throughout the Union that the subscriber has devoted a large part of his attention to the radical cure of Rupture. The Medical Academy of this city and the State Society of Medicine several years since instituted inquiries into the efficacy of the plan practiced by him as well as some of their own members, and had they given the results of their inquiries to the public, thousands would have cause to rejoice at their humanity, who will now be amazed at their selfishness. They were told by the operating surgeon, who was deputed to make the inquiry, that the method then in constant use by the subscriber "was occasionally effectual in curing" reducible hernia.

The commentary of The Virginia Medical Journal on the general subject of hernia, which follows, is highly suggestive. The editor says:

"A safe, speedy and permanent method of relieving hernia would undoubtedly be regarded as one of the greatest improvements in the province of surgery. It is not strange, therefore, that this subject is constantly occupying the attention of surgeons, and that novel suggestions and experiments are being frequently made, in the endeavor to gain this desirable result. Among the most recent and really practical articles on this subject, is the interesting lecture of Mr. Wells of London.

"Amid the many triumphs of modern surgery, we can but wonder that so little has been done toward the radical cure of hernia. According to careful statistics, not less than one in twenty of our population is afflicted with the misfortune.

"In the United States, then, we may assume the number to exceed one million, and we can imagine with what eager gladness this immense class of the community would resort to any mode of permanent relief, whose success had been sanctioned by time and experiment. Such a brilliant prize is indeed an inducement to the profession to think seriously and long upon any proposition which promises such a result. We therefore regard with great interest the modifications of the method of radical cure by invagination, first suggested by Gerdy, improved by Wutzer, and practiced by the last named surgeon and Rothmund on the continent, and by Wells and Erichsen in England.

"Sooner or later the successful cure of reducible hernia must be achieved. Its victims are numerous, the magnitude of the interests involved so large, and we will also add, the difficulties in the way too small, to make us doubt the fact. In an age when we do not hesitate to grope among the vitals for the largest artery and tie it successfully, or to extirpate enormous abdominal tumors, or overcome the most horrible deformities by the dexterous use of the anaplastic method, we have a right to assume that a cure for hernia will also be discovered. Ask any one, not familiar with the history of surgery, which is the most difficult of execution, to obliterate a large opening in the abdominal walls, or to cut a stone from the bladder, and what answer would we expect? Yet the operation for stone is practiced with increasing success everywhere, while we still offer no remedy for the simpler malady.

"Again—hernia has been radically cured many times. We know precisely what the process is. We know, by observing the results of the operation for strangulated hernia, that in a large proportion of cases the inflammation following upon the operation results in an obliteration of the opening.

"It is also found that inflammation in the neck of the hernial sac, no matter how produced, will result in a radical cure. Thus, a truss, by long-continued pressure on the inguinal ring and hernial sac, occasionally cures, and hence the attempt has been made to cause the desirable inflammation at this point by injections into the sac, an operation which, we regret to say, has been too much neglected. If we do not fear to throw the iodine solution into the pleura or pericardium into ovarian cysts, or even into the peritoneal cavity, why should there be any hesitation in using the remedy for the radical cure of hernia?

"The whole subject is full of interest to the profession and to the public. The frequency of this disease among the negro population renders the question one of importance in a money point of view. Nor less than one hundred and fifty thousand negroes are afflicted with hernia.

"A successful remedy for this affection would add twenty millions to the present value of this species of property, besides greatly increasing its productive force. Are we wrong, then, in declaring that a successful and radical cure for hernia would be the highest achievement of surgery?"

The reader will please notice:

Paragraph No. 1 says: The cure of hernia is very desirable to the welfare of the human race.

Paragraph four says: It must and will sooner or later be achieved.

Paragraph five says: It has been done, and we know what the process is.

Paragraph six says: The attempt has been made by injections into the sac—an operation which we regret to say has been too much neglected &c.

The Editor of THE SCALPEL has been doing this operation for ten years, and has repeatedly done it in presence of many medical men of this city.

RUPTURE, PILES AND FISTULA,
CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE OR LIGATURE.

The editor of The Scalpel has lately established a spacious Private Hospital in one of the most elegant and beautiful parts of the city, and furnished it with every comfort of domestic life, for the reception of those patients who require operations or prolonged surgical attendance. Every case of reducible rupture, and of piles, and prolapsus of the rectum, and most cases of fistula, can be cured by a process nearly painless; the patient may generally return home the same day the application is made. The cure is invariably warranted, if the case be undertaken by Dr. DIXON, as a careful examination always precedes the necessary indications of success or failure, by his improved method of operating.

N. Y. & F. R. R. OFFICE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT, NEW-YORK, June 11, 1858.

EDWARD H. DIXON, M. D., Editor of The Scalpel.
DEAR SIR: Permit me to return my sincere thanks for the thorough cure of the most annoying affliction with which an active man could be harrassed, namely, Piles. I had felt for many years their gradual incursions, and some three years since I was operated upon by the old method of ligature and incision; this, however, only afforded a temporary relief; the violence of the disease increased to such an extent that it became evident that I must either be relieved or abandon the arduous duties of my profession. Fortunately, in a moment of doubt, I yielded to my curiosity to learn the method adopted by you to eradicate the disease without an operation. I had been convinced of its impossibility by many trials of remedies, and not even your position as editor of a journal whose candid teachings had for many years been my delight, gave me any convictions of truth. But I am now convinced, by a thorough and complete renovation of my constitution, that by your method, comparatively painless, and with but little or no detention from business, the most aggravated cases of this disease may be removed.

Your obedient servant, D. C. McCALLUM,
(Late Actuary of the Erie Railroad).

Dr. D. refers to N. G. Bradford, late Cashier of Bowery Bank; H. Ford, esq., Storage, Brooklyn, L. I.; Maurice Barnett, Auctioneer, New-Orleans; J. P. Hays (Horner, Hays & Co.), Beekman-st., New-York; John Linn, esq., Newton, N. J.; and a great number of patients in every part of the Union, all of whom have been permanently cured by this process during the past ten years.

The presence of the patient, in all cases in which a cure is sought, is indispensable. All letters of inquiry must contain a postage stamp. Letters requiring advice must contain $5, and be addressed to Box No. 3,121, Post Office. Personal applications at Dr. DIXON'S residence No. 42 5th-av. between 10th and 11th-sts. Office hours for general consultation, from 8 to 9 mornings, 12 to 3 daily, and 7 to 9 evenings; at all other hours he is at the Hospital, and cannot be seen.

Post-Office Notice.—The MAILS for EUROPE, via SOUTHAMPTON and HAVRE, per United States steamer VANDERBILT, will close at this office on SATURDAY, the 14th day of August, at 10½ o'clock a. m.

Celebration of the Laying of the Atlantic Cable.—The Joint Committee of the Common Council to commemorate the successful laying of the submarine cable connecting the New with the Old World, give notice.

That the receipt of the reply of his Excellency, James Buchanan, President of the United States, to the message of her Majesty, Queen Victoria, will be announced by a salvo of 100 guns from the Park, and a national salute from the Battery and Central Park.

It is requested that upon the commencement of the firing of the salvo and salute the bells of all the churches in the city be rung continuously for one hour.

On the evening of the day upon which such announcement is made, the City Hall and public buildings will be illuminated, and an appropriate display of fireworks will be made in front of the City Hall.

The Committee would earnestly request the citizens generally to unite in such celebration by illuminating, upon the same evening, their stores and dwellings.

The Committee also propose upon the arrival of the Niagara, with Cyrus W. Field, esq., and Captain Hudson, and simultaneously with the festivities in the City of London, to give them a grand civil and military reception, with appropriate ceremonies;—the notice of which, with a full programme, will be given—and they would request that all the societies, civil and military, of the city and neighborhood who desire to join in such reception would give notice at as early a day as possible, to

GREAT EVENT OF THE CENTURY!
Published in a few days:
THE HISTORY OF
THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.
"Their line is gone out through all the earth,
And their words to the end of the world."
Psalms xix, 4.
Compiled from Authentic Sources, by Charles F. Briggs and Augustus Maverick. One elegant volume. Large 12mo. Muslin. Price, $1.
ABUNDANTLY AND BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED with numerous Woodcuts, Steel Engravings, Diagrams, and a superb Folding Colored Map, which presents, in a clear and intelligible manner, a plan of the Submarine Telegraph, together with the relative positions of Europe and America, nearly every telegraph line in both countries, and is, of itself, worth the price of the book.
CONTAINING A COMPLETE RECORD OF THE INCEPTION, PROGRESS, AND FINAL SUCCESS OF THAT NOBLE UNDERTAKING. A GENERAL HISTORY OF LAND AND OCEANIC TELEGRAPHS. DESCRIPTIONS OF TELEGRAPHIC APPARATUS, AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF THE PRINCIPAL PERSONS CONNECTED WITH THE GREAT WORK.
Dedicated to and embellished with a magnificent Steel Portrait of
CYRUS W. FIELD, ESQ.,
To whose indomitable energy and unfaltering perseverance the civilized globe is indebted for the accomplishment of this triumphant enterprise.
The volume comprises a complete and authentic narrative of the various steps in the progress of this great work of the age. It embodies a sketch of the early history of Telegraphic operations in the United States, gives a general view of the previous attempts to introduce the use of Submarine Cables in different parts of the world, and proceeds to give a complete record of the inception, progress and successful termination of the Atlantic Telegraph enterprise. In the course of this narrative there are comprehensive memoirs of Mr. Cyrus W. Field, of whom an excellent steel portrait is given; of Prof. Samuel B. Morse, and other gentlemen whose names have been intimately associated with the work.
Throughout the volume, great care has been exercised in regard to accuracy of dates and the arrangement of events in chronological order, while in the preparation of the preliminary history of the Magnetic Telegraph a proper degree of attention has been given to the collection and classification of useful information from many different sources.
The necessity of a Hand-Book of this character became so apparent to the publishers that they have spared no pains to present the work in attractive style, in the belief that its permanent value as a volume of reference will be recognized. The universal interest which attaches to the history of the Atlantic Telegraph—the exultant joy with which the news of its success was received in all parts of the country—the direct share of every man in the wonderful effort which this linking of Europe and America must produce, render an authentic record of the great event most desirable.
