New York Stock Market

New York, October 11.—The speculation in stocks threw off some of the restraint to-day which has kept it in check. The fresh activity was most conspicuous in a variety of specialties not usually prominent in the dealings, and many of these were of the low-priced, non-dividend paying class. A reason for this was found in the narrow resources of the money market and the smaller supply of credits requisite for carrying on operations in the low-priced stocks. In most of these movements, specific explanations were lacking, and it was generally assumed that newly-formed market pools were responsible for most of the demonstrations. The supposition that powerful private bankers were supplying resources and influence to help the advance encouraged a following by the professional element. The spotty character of the market and the unresponsiveness of a number of important railroad and industrial stocks to the movement were significant of the lack of full accord among the great banks in furthering the movement.

The explanation of the reluctance of the banking community as a whole to see active speculation is found in the continuance of the decline of cash holdings, and the consequent impairment of lending power of banks. The Subtreasury is making heavy demands again on the banks, the withdrawals of cash by that institution for the banking week already having reached $3,181,000. Shipments to the interior, also, are going forward by express. October 15 finds some large dividend payments to be met, for which special provision is to be made. The call loan rate to-day touched 3 1-2 per cent, as an effect of the slightly increased demand incident to the day's speculative requirements.

The foreign exchange market was less affected by the offerings of cotton bills, although the time is short when these can be sent forward for collection before the action of the objection raised by foreign bankers to the present method.

The September exports of agricultural products reported from Washington show only a slight increase over those of last year, less than $1,000,000 on all accounts, the $8,718,301 increase in cotton exports being neutralized by the $5,560,850 decrease in wheat and flour values and by smaller decreases in all other items. The showing disappoints the hope that any radical change had occurred in the abnormal balance of the imports over exports.

Yesterday's government crop report furnished the broad general inspiration for the stirring of speculative confidence. The certainty of agriculture exceeding in value any that have been garnered makes an insurance for the materials of prosperity which is expected to affect the whole industrial and business movement in the future. The special promise of the spring wheat and corn crops as they were affected by yesterday's report found reflection in the strength of the grangers, International Harvester, Corn Products and other stocks. The Northwestern Railroad group got the benefit of criticisms leveled at the lumber rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a judicial decision by the Federal Circuit Court in St. Paul, disallowing the rates. A belief that an agreement had been reached of the cotton bill of lading controversy helped the late stock market and also caused a fresh decline in the foreign exchange market.

Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $2,630,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Total sales of stocks for the day were 404,200 shares.

New York, October 11.—Money on call steady, 2 3-4@3; closing bid, 3; offered at 3 per cent. COTTON MARKETS.

New York, October 11.—An early decline in the cotton market was followed by a sharp advance, some contracts making a new high record for the season, and with the close firm at a net gain of 6@13 points for the day. The opening was steady at an advance of 5 points for October, but generally 2@7 points lower, and during the early trading the market sold off to a net loss of 12@15 points under heavy realizing and local bear pressure, inspired by indifferent cables, continued good weather in the South, aside from further precipitation in Texas and predictions of a falling of spot demand following the completion of October engagements. Big blocks changed hands on the decline, and while prices worked lower there was aggressive selling for a reaction, but the trade interests were large buyers on a scale down, and as soon as offerings for long account became smaller many of the early sellers turned for cover with the result that prices soon firmed up from the lowest. At first there did not appear to be a great deal of snap to the buying on the advance, but there was a continued demand from some of the big spot houses, while brokers, believed to be operating for one of last season's bull leaders, gave the market a good deal of support, and shortly after midday general business became more active on reports of a firmer market for cotton goods, claims of a better demand for goods from China and private cables from London reporting that the bill of lading controversy had been practically settled. Later reports from the South were rather bullish as to spot conditions also, and in the late trading the market sold up to a net advance of 11@14 points. The close was only a shade off from the best under realizing. Southern spot markets officially reported early were unchanged to ¼c. higher, failing to confirm some of the early advices from the South claiming a slightly easier market. The price of one of the leading brands of cotton goods was reported to have been advanced ¼c. to-day.

Receipts at the ports to-day were 92,275 bales against 80,656 last week and 102,064 last year; for the week 340,600 bales against 345,700 last week and 440,508 last year. To-day's receipts at New Orleans 5,880 bales against 11,344 last year. To-day's receipts at Houston 28,078 bales against 11,358 last year.

Around the middle of the morning the market began to show strength in prices, and from then on until noon made a gradual advance until almost a complete recovery had been brought about. During the afternoon session the market was firmer on rumors from London that the bills of lading question had been settled and on the forecast from unofficial sources of another cold wave to follow the present wet weather in the western half of the cotton country.
