MILITARY OPERATION NOT TO BE EXTENDED

General Maurice in Washington Says He Does Not Look for Continued Battle Over Hungary.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, former director of British military operations, who is here on a lecture tour, declared today that while he thought peace should be completed speedily, he did not believe extensive military operations would result from the bolshevik movement in Hungary and elsewhere. Europe, he said, is so exhausted that a war of magnitude within the next 10 years is impossible.

The Hungarian situation, in the opinion of General Maurice, is "a murmur of despair dictated by hunger at present and uncertainty for the future."

"There must be a stable and powerful government established in Germany," he said, "else the terms we will be able to get in the settlement of peace conditions will not be worth having. And there is grave danger that Germany will lapse into bolshevism if a decision is much longer delayed. Hungary has yielded to the menace and Germany may follow her example if the present conditions of uncertainty continue. But a vast majority of the German people believe in sound government and at present the Spartacan menace is not very dangerous, although undoubtedly it is there.

"I must confess that I am keenly disappointed to find so little progress has been made on the peace treaty."

General Maurice also stated that he was surprised to find so much American opposition to the league of nations, which he believed would be amended and should be adopted in some form.

NEW YORKERS PASS IN REVIEW

The catafalque symbolized 1,972 men "killed in action," or "died of wounds." Behind it marched a squad of 24 honor men bearing a huge banner upon which blazed a star of gold for every man who had fallen.

As the crepe-swathed gun carriage moved slowly past, men uncovered and women sobbed unashamed.

Subdued at first as though the throngs were reluctant to break the church-like stillness, came the sound of cheers blending in a mighty roar.

Wounded Cheer.

The wounded were coming. The thousand motor cars in which they rode made up a heart-wrenching cavalcade, which seemed to have no end. Empty sleeves and turned up trouser legs, crutches and bandaged heads, told of men who had looked into the land of shadows from which the comrades they left "over there" will not return. But on the young faces there was no sign of grief. They laughed and cheered and stuck in their hats the flowers that women tossed to them. They had gambled with death and won.

Beneath the arch rode O'Ryan and his staff. Behind them swept the doughboys of the 54th brigade. On their backs were overseas packs and gas masks were slung at their hips. Topping the rifles bristled a forest of fixed bayonets, giving notice to the world that this was no peace time parade but a review of veterans.

Where the crowds did not surge into the street they marched in massed formation—a long column of compact half battalions, 18 men to the marching front, resembling a moving succession of squares of troops.

DESPISED FOODS AGAIN FAVORED

Correcting Stomach Faults With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Has Revived the Doughnut, Pie and Other Good Home-Made American Dishes.

The shortage of help has taken thousands of women back to their own kitchens to do their own cooking. And how natural they should revive the cookie, doughnut, pie and other distinctly American dishes. But the recipes have been revised; flour is coarser and different; less wheat and more of other kinds, and a lot of indigestion was complained of.

It is gratifying to know you can safely eat any kind of flour food without consequent distress. Simply take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals. Not only does it aid digestion, but it arouses the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve sourness, heartburn, gas, the sense of stuffiness and the drowsiness that so often follow the good things you eat.

Try these tablets and you will then realize what influence they have, not only to assist digestion, but as contributing in a remarkable degree to the sense of comfort and well-being. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold in all drug stores at 50 cents a box, and throughout the United States and Canada.—Adv.

OIL INDUSTRY GIVEN CREDIT FOR VICTORY

Director of Bureau of Mines Praises Petroleum Producers and Refiners in War.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—"We floated to victory on a wave of oil," said a British admiral in the first enthusiastic moments following the armistice.

The truth of this statement, to a certain extent, is proved by Van H. Manning, director of the bureau of mines, department of the interior, in his yearly statement on the production of gasoline in this country, made public today.

In 1916, before the United States entered the war, according to a statement, the production of gas was a little short of 50,000,000 barrels. In 1917, when war actively was accelerated by the entry of the United States into thewar the production of gasoline had increased to nearly 58,000,000 barrels, an increase of more than 50,000 barrels a day.

It was thought by many Manning points out that this must be the peak of American patriotic effort but in 1918 when the war had assumed even greater proportions, the production of gas was over 87,000,000 barrels, an increase for the year of more than 17,000,000 barrels. The daily increase for this year over the record-breaking year of 1917 was about 47,000 barrels for each of the 365 days, or almost as much more as the increase of previous year.

How this country sent an ever increasing flood of this gasoline to the allies and friendly countries is disclosed in the export figures. In 1916 there were 8,473,102 barrels of gasoline sent abroad. In 1917 this amount had increased to 9,901,817 barrels, an increase of about 4,000 barrels a day. In 1918 these exports had reached a total of 13,312,568 barrels, an increase of nearly 10,000 barrels a day over the year 1917.

It is the opinion of Mr. Manning that no single industry in this country of so important a nature ever made such a showing in a single year, and he expresses doubt that the future will ever show a higher record of achievement.

Given Recess Appointment.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Calvin F. McIntosh of Spencer, Ind., has been given a recess appointment as a member of the federal board for vocational education, it was announced today at the white house. He will succeed Charles A. Greathouse of Indianapolis, who resigned.

NOWHERE did tubes cause so much trouble as here in the hot, dry Southwest. The common complaint was that after a short time, tubes lost their life—cracked and stretched. The one tube that overcame this trouble—that kept its life and shape indefinitely in spite of the baking heat—was

BUCKSKIN

"Made for the Southwest Climate"

AFTER two years continuous usage, of the thousands of Buckskins sold, 99 9-10 gave complete satisfaction. Less than 1-10 of 1 percent failed to be as good as extra liberally guaranteed. (The dealer will explain this guarantee.)

Buckskin was made-to-order, for this climate, that is so hard on tubes. Toughened by a special process. Made extra thick. And, unlike other extra thick tubes, Buckskin costs no extra price.
