GODEY for SEPTEMBER.
GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN FASHION-PLATES.
A NEW ERA.
It has long been a favorite idea of ours that the engraving and coloring of fashion-plates might be greatly improved by the use of machinery, and we present the plate in this number as an evidence. We think this is certainly the best specimen of a fashion ever presented to the public of any country. Although machinery is used in the coloring, still females are employed in that department. Under what other hands could such effects be produced? We feel proud of the invention, especially when such are the results. We ask a careful examination of this plate, whether as regards the design, engraving, or coloring. It is barely necessary for us to add, that all our future fashion-plates will be equally as beautiful.

"THE GLEANERS"—OUR STEEL PLATE.
This is a month that publishers, in general, do not seem to care much about. "Oh," they say, "it is one of the Summer months; everybody is out of town, and none but regular subscribers see the work." But we have taken especial pains with this month's number, in the first place, by giving one of the most superb plates ever published anywhere, in magazine, or in an annual. The "Gleaners," we unhesitatingly say, is the prettiest plate ever published. We know what we say, and we invite criticism.

MASON BROTHERS,
Nos. 5 and 7 MERCER-ST., New-York, have just published
"A JOURNEY IN THE BACK COUNTRY.
By Frederick Law Olmsted, author of "A Journey in the Seaboard Slave States," "A Journey in Texas," "Walks and Talks of an American Farmer in England," &c. 492 pp. 12mo., cloth. $1 25.
This is the third and last of Mr. Olmsted's series of volumes on our Slave States.
From The New-York Tribune.
"Mr. Olmsted certainly possessed many peculiar advantages for the preparation of an imposing and authentic work on this subject. Combining a singular fairness of mind with exact and effective habits of thought, a rare degree of intellectual integrity with great practical experience, he was well qualified to obtain an accurate view of the field which he had undertaken to explore, and to present a true report of his impressions, without concealment or exaggeration. * * * The results, which he has described with such graphic distinctness of portraiture, are not of a character to gratify the advocates of Slavery; but no one can justly complain of the spirit and manner with which he engages in the discussion. * * * The natural simplicity and quaint humor of his narrative are adapted to disarm even the most inveterate prejudice of hostility. * * * In addition to the racy account of personal adventure—if that term may be applied to the experience of the writer, on his often perilous and always exciting journey, and the fund of entertainment, illustrative anecdote with which this volume abounds—it contains much grave discussion on the moral and political aspects of Slavery, which affords perpetual food for reflection, even if its results may not always be destining conclusions."
From The Boston Transcript.
"It is a record by a shrewd, calm, and thoroughly trustworthy person, of an extensive series of observations made during a tour through the interior Cotton States. Common sense is the inspiration of the book, and its statements must influence the opinions of all men who make a boast of possessing that quality."
The previous volumes of this series, "A JOURNEY IN THE SEABOARD SLAVE STATES," and "A JOURNEY THROUGH TEXAS," have obtained a standard position in their department of literature, and are thus spoken of by important periodicals, viz:
"It may be considered one of the most valuable, if not the most valuable, contribution which has yet been made to our knowledge of those States."—[Edinburgh Review.
"But Mr. Olmsted's entire volume abounds with such suggestive statements, and our American friends would do well to consider them closely."—[London Times.
"This book of Mr. Olmsted's proves that an American traveler can give as attractive and entertaining an account of scenery and incidents in his own country, as Stephens and Bayard Taylor of foreign lands, while he gives us, besides, information of a comprehensiveness, soundness, and depth, which could be expected of no one but a native of the Union. This book appears to us among the best of its kind that we have ever met with."
[London Daily News.
"To all those persons, therefore, who look upon the Slavery question as a problem requiring a practical solution, this book comes in as a stepping-stone, which will lift that discussion to a range decidedly higher than it has ever held before."—North American Review.
"Mr. Olmsted's work has received higher praise than almost any similar work ever published"—[Philadelphia North American.
"Never losing sight of a picturesque or comic scene, and always preserving an exuberant good humor, in spite of depressing and provoking circumstances, he is a singularly agreeable traveler."—[New-York Tribune.
LIFE IN THE DESERT;
OR, RECOLLECTIONS OF TRAVEL IN ASIA AND AFRICA.
From the French of Col. L. Du Couret, Hadj Abd'el Hamid Bey, ex-Lieutenant of the Emirs of Mecca, Yemen, and Persia; Delegate of the French Government to Central Africa, Member of the Societe Orientale, Academie Nationale, &c. 502 pages, 12mo., cloth. Price $1 25.
One of the most interesting of books of its class, and has met with great success in Paris.
"We do not remember to have seen, in all our varied readings upon the East, the camel, the caravan, the desert, the encampment, so accurately and graphically pictured. It is a book of remarkable vivacity and freshness—entertaining, instructive, sometimes highly exciting, as some thrilling adventure is portrayed, but ordinarity bearing the quiet beauty and the majestic stillness of the scenes through which the author traveled."—[New-York Independent.
"No other book with which we are acquainted gives so vivid an account of desert life and travel, and of the disposition, habits, and manners of the Arabs. Not the least attractive portion of the volume consists of the Arab tales which the author collected in his wanderings, and which never before have been in print."—[Boston Transcript.
"One of the most interesting and startling books of travel we have read since the publication of M. Huc's extraordinary narrative of his adventures in China. Indeed, we prefer Du Couret to Huc. His style is quite as simple, and he is more instructive and curious."—[New-York Dispatch.
"As original as any book well can be in this weary old age of the world."—[Boston Traveler.
"One of the most interesting books of travel, adventures, tradition, and fiction, ever offered to the public."—[Boston Express.
"A genuine contribution to the literature of travel. * * * Original in manner and matter. * * * The most complete representative of the life of the children of the desert ever afforded."—[New-York Evening Post.
"Witty, poetical, new, various, strange, and instructive"
[Philadelphia American.

Compiled By
HORACE GREELEY AND JOHN F. CLEVELAND.
EDITORS' PREFACE.
The single end of this book is the presentation, in a compact and convenient form, of the more important facts, votes, resolves, letters, speeches, reports, and other documents, which elucidate the political contest now agitating this country. It has been our aim to let every candidate and other important personage speak for himself, make his own platform, and vindicate (if he may) his own consistency and the soundness of his views on the great questions which underlie our current politics.
Of course, such a work can have but a comparative merit. Make it ever so large, and still many things must be omitted that the compiler would wish to insert; and every critic will plausibly ask, "Why insert this and omit that? Why give so much of A and so little of B?" Besides, it is not always possible to remember, or, if remembered, to find, all that would be valued in a work like this. We can only say that we have done our best: let him do better who can.
Inaccuracy of citation is one of the chief vices of our political discussions. You can hardly listen to a set speech, even from a well-informed and truthful canvasser, which is not marred by some misapprehension or unconscious misstatement of the position and views of this or that prominent statesman. Documents, heedlessly read and long since lost or mislaid, are quoted from with fluency and confidence, as though with indubitable accuracy, when the citations so made do gross injustice to their author, and tend to mislead the hearer. We believe the documents collected in this work are so printed that their general accuracy may be safely relied on.
By canvassers of all parties, we trust our Text-Book will be found convenient, not to say indispensable. But those who only listen, and read, and reflect, will also find it a manifest help to a clear understanding of the issues and contentions of the day. They will be interested in comparing the actual positions taken by Mr. Lincoln, or Mr Douglas, or Gen. Cass, or Mr. Everett, as faithfully set forth in this work, with those confidently attributed to that statesman in the fluent harangue of some political opponent, who is intent on blazoning his inconsistency or proving his insincerity. To verify and correct the citations of a frothy declaimer is sometimes the easiest and most convincing refutation of his speech. Without
If a trace of partisan bias is betrayed in the thread of narrative which partially unites the successive reports, bills, votes, etc., presented in this work, the error is unintentional and regretted. Our purpose was to compile a record acceptable and convenient to men of all parties, and which might be consulted and trusted by all. Whatever is original herein is regarded as of no use or merit, save as a necessary elucidation of the residue. Without apology, therefore, or further explanation, the Text-Book is commended to the favor of the American public.
