Gazette & Sentinel.

THE SECEDED STATES.—Referring to the resources of the seceded States in order to meet the burdens of their Government, Vice-President Stephens, in his recent speech at Savannah, held the following language :—

"The taxable property of the Confederate States cannot be less than $22,000,000,000. This, I think, I venture but little in saying, may be considered as five times more than the colonies possessed at the time they achieved their independence Georgia alone possessed last year, according to the report of our Comptroller General, $672,000,000 of taxable property. The debts of the seven Confederate States sum up in the aggregate less than $18,000,000; while the existing debts of the other of the late United States, sum up in the aggregste the enormous amount of $174,000,000. This is without taking into consideration the heavy city debts, corporation debts, and railroad debts, which press, and will continue to press, a heavy incubus upon the resources of those States. These debts, added to others, make a sum total not much under $500,000,000. With such an area of territorry, with such an amount of population, with a climate and soil unsurpassed by any on the face of the earth, with such resources already at our command, with productions which control the commerce of the world, who can entertain apprehensions as to our success, whether others join us or not."

WORDS FITLEY SPOKEN.—We subjoin a paragraph from the New York News, which contains home truths well entitled to the soberest reflection of every Northern man. Most truly does it say :

One thing is certain, the North cannot expect to come out of this controversy with the spoils of iniquity in their hands. We must do justice. If we had done so earlier, secession would never have occurred, and all the sections of the country would have enjoyed their constitutional rights ; if we do so now, the Union may be reformed and reconstructed. If the pacific overtures of the border States, acting as mediators, be rejected, and we insist besides on holding the effects of the partnership, like a vast community of knaves, we may be certain that our punishment will be inevitable, and that if nothing more formidable befalls us, the Northern United States will be the reproach and hissing of the world.

A HOT BED IN THE KITCHEN.—A peck measure, an old box or earthen pot may be filled with proper soil, and tomatoes, lattuce, radishes, cabbages, and other edibles started successfully without the cost of anything but a little pleasant care—and the pleasure of seeing them burst into life, and grow, will repay all this, to say nothing of the fun of eating them. Will the women see that this is done ?

MISCLANELEOUS.

CHARLES BYRNE,

No. 46 Tchoupitoulas st., between Poydras and Gravier,

Manufacturer of Copper, Sheet Iron and Tinware, etc., Dealer in Stoves and Stove Pipe.

MAKES every description of Copper Work, including STILLS, of from 20 to 2000 gallons, and Sheet Iron Work and Tinware, etc; Blacksmithing and General Jobbing and repairing in the metallic line attended to. He keeps a good assortment of TINWARE on hand, which is offered at very low prices, both by wholesale and retail.

CHARLES BYRNE would also state that he keeps constantly as good a supply and assortment of the best description of both Heating and Cooking Stoves as can be found elsewhere, one description of which, entirely of his own manufacture, the BYRNE STOVE, would cook for from 30 persons to 300, or even up to 800 or 900, according to size, there being seven sizes. This description of Stove is extraordinary for simplicity, strength, compactness and convenience of being moved from place to place without liability to injure, also for durability. No stove can excel it for baking, frying, boiling or broiling; its capacious oven has an apparatus, easily managed, and not liable to get out of order, that when properly used, causes meat of all descriptions, so well as fish, vegetables, fruit, pastry and bread, etc., which may be put in it, at the same time, to be baked, or more poperly speaking roasted, in the best possible manner, and to be dry and crisped on the surface, as if cooked before an open fire, and each article retaining its own particular flavor, all the damp sweat and fumes arising from the different articles undergoing the process of cooking, being carried entirely off the moment they arise. It can also be made to have the power to consume nearly its own smoke; it has besides a draft regulator to govern the fire. "THE BYRNE STOVE" will either suit for wood or coal, and besides has the advantage of admitting of another stove being attached, or hitched on to it, which can be done with very little trouble, and without any alteration or change in its form or construction. When put together the two form a splendid Range, and ARE WORKED WITH ONLY THE ONE FIRE, that of the first. The additional stove, serving in conjunction with the first, to do all descriptions of baking, as well as for heating purpose, etc. The furnaces or fire-box being lined all round with heavy separate cast iron plates, and separate heavy grate bars. Should they get warped or burned from the constant action of the fire, all or any of them can be renewed by the maker (who retains all the original patterns) at very trifling expense, which will render the stove as good as new. These guard plates have very seldom to be renewed before the expiration of two years, and from that up to three or four years, and the sheet iron part, if the foregoing is attended to, will easily last from eight to ten years. This stove is now in use on steamships, steamboats, in hotels, boarding-houses and on many plantations, where large numbers are to be cooked for, and in several private families.

C. B. offers the above and all his other descriptions of excellent heating and cooking stoves, and other articles to the public at reasonable prices, he refrains from exagerating or overrating the quality of his goods. All his goods, and particularly his stoves, being marked at the lowest prices, he cannot allow ten per cent deduction to commission merchants or agents.

THE undersigned informs his friends and the public, that he has removed from his old stand on the corner of Main and Seminary sts., to the corner opposite, in the new Brick House built by Mr. Avet, where he will always have Good Liquors and Fine Lager.

Thankful for past patronage, he trusts to receive a continuance of the same from his old friends and the public in general. jy21-m12

BIEHLER BROS.,

Merchant Tailors.

Have just received the most superb stock of Goods for Gentlemen's Fall and Winter

Coats, Vests and Pants, that was ever brought to this market.

"Seeing is Believing."

They thank the public for its support hitherto and will endeavor still to be worthy of it. To their old and punctual customers they give the usual credit.

☞ They respectfully state to their friends that their shop is now in the house on Bank st., formerly occupied by Mr. J. McWilliams as a Grocery Establishment, where their Saloon, in the rear, is also located, and where they hope to see their friends and the public as usual.
