Amusements

Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine in "Dorian's Divorce" at the Amusu Theatre Today.

Lionel Barrymore, who is conceded to be the most versatile member of the great Barrymore-Drew families of noted stage stars, will be seen on the screen here at the Amusu Theatre today in "Dorian's Divorce," a five part Metro wonderplay, produced by Rolfe Photoplays Inc. Grace Valentine, the clever and beautiful young dramatic artist, who has been seen in many previous Metro productions, is starred with Mr. Barrymore.

During the greater part of his stage career Lionel Barrymore was seen in serious and heavy dramatic parts. It was the old story of an artist making a success in a particular role, and of the fellow just outside of this field, so could not do anything quite as good and the public would not want to see him. It remained for motion pictures to bring out the true worth of this great artist. It was found that he was equally as good in light comedy roles as his brothers Jack Barrymore, and his illustrious aunt John Drew. At the same time he surpassed either in dramatic parts.

Mr. Barrymore's appearance in the stellar role in "A Yellow Streak," that was released by Metro late last season, brought his versatility to the foreground. A serious role was punctuated with comedy bits, and it was found that Mr. Barrymore was a supreme artist in this line. The production created a vast amount of favorable comment, and the editor of one of the leading motion picture publications in the world, declared it to be the finest example of photo-dramatic art produced during the year.

Mr. Barrymore and Miss Valentine are supported by an unusually strong cast, including William Davidson, Edgar L. Davenport, Lindsey Hall, L. R. Wolheim and Buckley Starkey. "Dorian's Divorce" will prove one of the most popular screen offerings of the present season.

The Rosary.

"The Rosary," the seven-reel Bolg Red Seal Play will be shown at the Amusu Theatre Sunday. Kathlyn Williams has the leading woman's part in this picture and in the other roles Charles Cherry, Wheeler Oakman and many other Bolg favorites appear. The story is of [illegible] was play by Edward E. Rose and is filled with dramatic action and heart interest through the seven reels. Critics have been lavish in their praise of this film drama, some of them going so far as to say that it marked a new era in the production of motion pictures.

TALKS WITH SCREEN-STRUCK GIRLS

By Beatriz Michelena

NO. 24.

Mixed in with the hundreds of letters I received from "screen struck girls" have been a considerable number from mothers who are anxious to get their kiddies into pictures.

While this is scarcely in line with my declared purpose of giving my bits of advice to the "screen struck" directly, I think I may this once allow myself to neglect my "girls" to the extent of chatting more particularly with the mothers about the demand for child actors and actresses.

There are a few companies which make a specialty of youngster plays, but they are so few that they are but a drop in a bucket as compared to the multitude of kiddies whose parents would like to see them in pictures. All companies, however, have more or less call for child performers, the extent of the demand depending, of course, on the particular plays under production. It is never as great as the applications on file.

The large concerns, which operate a number of producing companies at a time, often find it advisable to keep two or three children permanently engaged. Naturally they select from the large number they have used at various times those who are the most apt and easily directed.

The way to first "break in" is to make personal application with as many different producing firms as possible. Let the party, who has charge of the engaging, see the child, and be sure to leave a good photograph with the child's name and the telephone number plainly written on the back. These photographs are most useful when a director is hurrying through his files to find a kiddie for some small part that has suddenly developed. I believe that he finds a naturally posed picture always the most instructive. Consequently it is the most liable to bring employment.

There are many considerations that enter into the selecting of children for motion picture roles. For instance the last youngster, a little girl, who appeared in a cast with me, had to play with my Russian Wolf hound. While the pooch of amiability, the dog is monstrous and a bit terrifying to the average four-and-a-half-year old. As a result we had five tots over to the studio before we found one with the courage for the role.

Beside being bright and attractive, a child performer must be obedient. This is most important, since other wise there would be no possibility of getting the scenes rightly done. Good home training will go a long way toward getting a child a chance in pictures. If the impression at first makes it one of stubbornness or disobedience in you, it is extra rude or unruly the director will want to keep it as far away from the stage as possible.

DEATH FROM HUNGER IS FATE CONFRONTING A MILLION CHINESE

FLOODS IN HWAI RIVER AGAIN SPREAD WOE OVER GREAT AREA.

AID MUST BE PROMPT

NANKING, China, Sept. 5.—One million persons are threatened with starvation and several hundred thousand have been rendered homeless as a result of floods which are raging along the Hwai river in Anhwei province.

President Li Yuan-hong has personally contributed $100,000 silver for relief and parliament will doubtless make an effort to appropriate money for the same purpose. However, the Chinese government is practically without funds as a result of the bitter political situation, and Chinese papers say there will be an appalling death list from starvation if the American Red Cross shall not again come to the relief of the stricken.

The flooded district is approximately two hundred miles long, and has an average width of twenty miles. It is flat plain given over largely to wheat cultivation.

The residents of the Hwai river valley have been the object of charity for many years. The American Red Cross has been endeavoring to better their condition, by interesting financiers in a reclamation plan which would afford safe outlet for the flood water through the Grand Canal. Chas. D. Jameson, an American engineer, studied the conditions for many years under the direction of the American Red Cross, and in 1914 a commission of engineers from America visited the Hwai river valley and approved plans for its reclamation. These plans contemplate the draining of Hunter Lake and the diversion of the water of the Hwai river into Paoying Lake, and thence through the Grand Canal to the Yangtze river.

It has been estimated this would cost thirty million dollars gold, and it could be completed in six years. So far no financiers have been interested in the general plans for reclaiming the river basin, but an American concern, Bloms Carey Company, of St. Paul, Minn. has been granted a concession to reclaim the Grand Canal. The reclamation of this is the first step in the Hwai river conservatory plan, as the building of the Grand Canal has much to do with closing the outlet of flood water from the Hwai river basin, and if the Grand Canal be deepened and kept in a perfect condition the duration of flood in the Hwai river basin will be considerably shortened.

The present flood is reported to be the most serious the district has suffered since 1903. At some points the Hwai river rose ten feet within a few days. Refugees are fleeing from the flooded district in all directions, because of the lack of food and the uncertainties of remaining in a district where no further crops can be produced this year.

KINGSVILLE WATER SYSTEM PASSES INTO CONTROL OF THE CITY

KINGSVILLE, Sept. 5.—The city of Kingsville today completed the purchase of the water works plant from the Texas Southern Electric Co. The consideration was $20,000. The laying of larger water mains will begin at once and the whole city will be given protection against fire, as well as a better supply of artesian water for family use. The meter system will be installed. Arrangements will be made at once to procure an automobile fire engine and a paid fire department will be created on the arrival. This is expected to lower the rate of insurance.

The Texas Southern Electric Co. is spending about $50,000 in erection of a brick power house and a reinforced concrete smokestack. The building is nearly completed. The stack is now 80 feet high and will be 175 feet when finished.
