What is Said About The Sun.

It will interest our readers, we believe, to know something of the current of public opinion about our and their terrestrial luminary, as well as some facts bearing upon its present success and future prospects. A stream of congratulations, written and verbal, from personal friends and from leading men in public and private life, has poured, incessantly, upon the present Proprietor, since his return to the management of the SUN was made public, and we regret that the confidential nature of those communications prevents their reproduction here. They are, however, measurably symbolized in extracts presented below from the remarks of our brethren of the press—selected only as specimens from a supply large enough to fill our whole sheet, were we disposed to print them all.

The extraordinary demand for copies of the SUN since the New Year commenced is not less an evidence of immediate success than of the good faith in which the many congratulations to which we refer were tendered. Scarcely a copy of any day's issue remains unsold, notwithstanding a large and increasing addition was daily made to the number printed, and already the increase of circulation numbers by thousands. From such a starting point, the SUN has a magnificent outlook upon the New Year. Its manager need only make good his very moderate promise at the outset, to secure a success unlooked for by him, and undreamed of even by the most sanguine of the SUN's myriad-numbered friends.

That the promise will be fulfilled, we, who look behind the scenes positively know. We make no idle boast in saying that one of the most reliable and intelligent correspondents who ever dated a letter at Washington, is he who furnishes the communications from Gold, in our columns. His name and fame are known to thousands in New-York and Brooklyn. And if our correspondent on the Burnside Expedition fails deeply to interest all in his graphic descriptions of passing events, he will fell in that wherein he has been invariably successful in years gone by. At Port Royal and at Ship Island are also representatives of the SUN, who do us no discredit, while Iris, who accompanies Gen. Butler's Expedition, and has lately written from Camp Chase and Boston, has in other times made the reader's acquaintance from various parts of the Union. The reportorial experience of the two gentlemen who represent the SUN in the great Mississippi Expedition warrant, also, no little expectation in that quarter.

To these arrangements we might add the assignment to a gentleman of high standing, both here and at home, of the duty of preparing for the SUN all items of Irish news, and the prospective engagement of another for the German department, etc., etc., but we forbear. We have said enough to show that the SUN undertakes the same expenses for obtaining its news, by telegraph and correspondence, as its larger-sheeted and high-priced competitors, and, in some respects, exceeds them. Nor does the labor end with the collection of the news. Our space is limited, and for that reason, as well as for the convenience of our readers, we boil it down—rejecting the "bosh" and matters of indignificance, as well as mere unfounded rumors and speculations, we present every morning the most condensed form, so as to be taken in by, comparatively, a single glance, all of the news of the day, for ONE CENT PER COPY, or served by carriers at house or store for SIXPENCE A WEEK.

From The N. Y. Daily Times.

THE NEW-YORK SUN IS OLD BACON.—Among the many changes brought to our notice by the incoming of the New Year, none has been more gratifying than the resumption by Moses S. Beach of the entire control, pecuniary and editorial, of The Sun. During many years there was no more thoroughly conscientious or laborious member of the editorial fraternity than he, and when, a year since, he announced his retirement from the management of his paper, and his determination thenceforth to devote his life to rural enjoyment and domestic repose, he met with sincere congratulations at all hands, that the fruits of his labor had been so plentiful as to permit him to act thus wisely. Circumstances not necessary to notice have altered his determination, and with the New Year he came again, and has formally written himself Editor and Sole Proprietor of The New-York Sun. Of his new career we have a brief programme in the announcement of various improvements in the character of the paper, among others, one of those continued tales which were among its most popular characteristics in the days of its highest popularity. The name of the writer, Mrs. Stephens, is a warrant that the story of "The Hunted Down" will be of the utmost melodramatic interest.

From The New-Yorker.

His multitude of friends and the myriad friends of the establishment, are vastly pleased with the return to The Sun as Editor and Sole Proprietor, of Moses S. Beach, whose name is identified with the most brilliant periods in the career of that popular luminary. Long may he, it and they shine, all together.

From The Commercial Advertiser.

THE NEW-YORK SUN.—Mr. Moses S. Beach yesterday announced that he had resumed the sole proprietorship and editorial charge of The New-York Sun. We welcome his return to the ranks of a profession of which he has heretofore been an honored member, and wish him unmixed prosperity.

From The New-York Mercury.

AGAIN IN HARNESS.—Moses S. Beach, esq., the former energetic and enterprising proprietor of The New-York Sun, has, we are glad to learn, again resumed the editorial and business management of that old established journal. Under Mr. Beach's experienced control, The Sun will speedily excel even the astonishing popularity it enjoyed prior to his retirement from the business, and the daily press of this city will again have a leader worthy of the name. Mr. Beach has entered upon the arduous labors before him with all the energy which characterizes him as a man of business; and while we congratulate the readers of The Sun upon the great acquisition to their favorite journal, we feel gratified in again numbering Mr. Beach in the list of New-York publishers. He possesses all the ability requisite to his profession, added to the good graces of a finished gentleman and a scholar. It is a fact, alike complimentary to Mr. Beach's extraordinary business tact, that during his former connection with The New-York Sun, it reached a larger city circulation than was ever attained by any other daily paper, either before or since; and the enormous demand for yesterday's issue indicates that his future efforts will be even more brilliantly successful.

From The Evening Express.

The Sun newspaper is now announced to be exclusively under the control of its old proprietor, Moses S. Beach—as the new spirit in it, and sound principles advocated, indicate.

From the Springfield Republican.

Moses S. Beach, for a long time connected with the New-York Sun, and who retired from it about a year since, has again become the editor and proprietor of that journal which already bears evidence of an improved change in its management.

From Cor. of Boston Watchman—"Herbert."

You have probably heard that one of our city journals, the New-York Sun, has moved with pity the heart of its former proprietor, Mr. Beach, and has been taken again under his fostering care. It moves briskly about the streets, meets us at every corner, gives us a kind word as we pass, and appears about as happy as ever. Within a few days it has received an addition, we learn, of 7,000 subscribers.

Journalism, surely, has its secrets, and it is not every sagacious man that can tell where lie its points of strength or weakness. "The right man in the right place" is the one thing essential to success. When Mr. Beach left the Sun, the world would have said that fifty men could be found to step into his position and manage a penny-paper as well as he. But it was not so. The old proverb says, "There are good fish in the sea as were ever caught." This is true literally, as applied to lake or ocean; but it is false in relation to the great human sea, where the "fishers of men" ply their baits and try their skill.

From The New-York Dispatch.

THE NEW-YORK SUN.—We congratulate the readers of that old and staunch journal, The New-York Sun, on the return of its former manager and editor, Moses S. Beach, esq., to the post which, previous to his retirement, he filled with satisfaction to thousands of readers. As evidences of the energy which Mr. Beach brings to the laborious and oftentimes thankless task he has assumed, we notice a marked improvement in the columns of The Sun. In the issue of January 6th it furnished each of its readers with a complete map of the Southern States—a map that will be found exceedingly useful during the progress of our arades in putting down an insurrection which is destroying property and upsetting law and order in so vast a three unhappy section of our country. There was also commenced in the same paper, an original story, entitled "Hunted Down," written expressly for its columns, by the celebrated authoress, Mrs. Ann S. Stephens. With Mr. Beach as editor, and Mrs. Stephens as literary contributor, there is no just reason why The Sun should not regain its ancient prestige with its Gothamites.

From The Journal of Commerce.

Mr. Moses S. Beach appears in a salutatory in the New-York Sun of Jan 1, announcing his return from his rural retreat to the editorship and proprietorship of that journal, and promises to be a co-laborer in the work of suppressing the insurrection.

From The Brooklyn Eve.

THE SUN.—The Hon. M. S. Beach again assumes the sole editorship and control of the New-York Sun. Mr. Beach is a gentleman of ability and superior business management, and he will again win to his paper all its old influence and reputation. Success to him.

From The Leader.

Mr. Moses S. Beach, having resumed the editorial control of the daily Sun, announces many important changes and new features in the management of that paper. The business and editorial qualifications of Mr. Beach are a sufficient guaranty that the Sun will "shine for all" in renewed splendor.

From The Sun.

The Sun, after long wandering in the wilderness, returns with the new year to the management of its old and well-known editor, Mr. Moses S. Beach, who will doubtless soon restore it to its former prosperous lustre.

From The New-York Atlas.

We take this occasion warmly to welcome Mr. Beach and his assistants back to the field of journalism, and to congratulate The Sun in breaking once more through the temporary clouds which have enveloped it, into the broad sunshine of usefulness and prosperity.

From The Daily Tribune.

THE NEW-YORK SUN.—Mr. Moses S. Beach announces with the New Year that he has once more become the editor and sole proprietor of The Sun. What he intends to do for his readers and patrons, how hopeful he is of earning the continued good-will of his hosts of readers, and how sanguine he feels of his ability to win new friends, and warm supporters, may be seen by his announcement in our advertising columns.

CORN BREAD 40 Cents worth of Corn furnishes more good nourishing food than 100 cts. worth of Wheat. Europe wants all our wheat, but not a quarter of our corn. Query: Why don't Americans eat more CORN, and sell their WHEAT? Answer: Because they have not learned to cook it rightly for every day use. To draw out information, the Editor of The American Agriculturist, at New-York, offered large premiums for the best specimens of Corn Bread—223 loaves from all parts of the country (from Maine to Illinois), were sent in, with directions for making each loaf. The premiums were awarded, and the receipts for making are now being published in The Agriculturist. The directions for the premium loaves of Corn Bread and Cake were given in January, and 5 1 more kinds will be given February 1st, and more thereafter.
These Corn Bread directions are worth tenfold the price of the paper, to every family in the land yet they occupy less than one-fifteenth part of a few numbers. The rest of the paper is devoted to PLAIN, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE INFORMATION for the FARM, GARDEN, AND HOUSEHOLD, including many fine large engravings, maps of the seats of war (beautiful and well printed), etc., etc. Nowhere else can so much really useful information be obtained for the same money. The circulation of The Agriculturist is greater by far, than that of any other similar journal in the world, and on this account it can be furnished at the low price of one dollar a year (6 copies $5). It is worth a trial. It will PAY.
