The Imperishable Perfume.

As a rule, the perfumes now in use have no permanency. An hour or two after their use, there is no trace of perfume left. How different is the result succeeding the use of Murry and Lanman's Florida Water. Days after its application the handkerchief exhales a most delightful, delicate and agreeable fragrance. marbleodly

The Bulletin.

A Highly Important Movement of Marshal McMahon.

[Special to the New York Tribune.]

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Our special correspondent from Rheims, Tuesday, sends very important and late news of French movements, which was not allowed to be telegraphed yesterday evening:

There were about 150,000 troops in and about Rheims, under McMahon. During the night they began to move toward Ardennes, and are still moving in that direction. By noon this place will be entirely evacuated. They take the road to Bethel and Meniers, but even officers do not know how far they will go in that direction. If what is believed here about Bazaine be true, the two armies will soon be united. Bazaine is reported at headquarters to have said he could beat the enemy on the 20th, but if he waited till the 25th he could annihilate him.

This evening the march of troops which began last night continues. Artillery, infantry and calvary came pouring in uninterruptedly through town. It is raining hard to-day. I compute that nearly 200,000 men in all have passed. There is no longer any doubt about the direction of this movement. From the officers of the baggage and supply train I learn that they have orders to go direct to Montmedy. Two baggage men who had tried to get towards Verdun had been stopped by the Uhlans, and all reports agree that every road thither is picketed by the Prussians.

Reorganization proceeds with the utmost dispatch. As one example, a train of 500 wagons, fully equipped, was organized and reached Rheims, from Verdun, in three days. High officers here are positive that a part of Bazaine's forces are between Briey and Estin. Our own movements from Rheims to join him are made with the utmost secrecy. The second army of reserve, now forming near Chalons, composed of old soldiers, will reach 350,000 men. The Emperor will command the Imperial Guard in person.

Enormous Extent of the Prussian Invasion.

Our correspondent from the Crown Prince's headquarters, under date of 17th says: No delay of advance. Town after town is occupied. You may hear of, but you can scarcely realize the extent of the invasion. While the Crown Prince has advanced through Northern Alsace into Lorraine, two other German armies have entered French territory from Rhenish Prussia, and the reserves are ever increasing. It is no exaggeration to say that the conquered provinces will scarcely hold the troops poured into them.

Pfalzburg holds out. Gen. Lolhout received a flag of truce with a firm refusal to surrender, adding that he should next day (15th) fire a salute of twenty-five guns in honor of the Emperor.

Raising the Chalons Camp.

Our special correspondent at Paris writes on Wednesday, before the Chalons camp was raised, it was fired to prevent the Prussians from occupying it, to destroy a great quantity of stores which they had no time to remove. Telegraph clerks and other officials say they got orders the previous evening to pack up.

The bombardment of Strasburg is said to have inflicted but little damage thus far. Heavy siege artillery is coming up from Landau, Rastadt, Mayence and other Prussian fortresses.

A Review of the Situation.

The following is a special to the Courier des Etats Unis:

PARIS, August 24.—A decided change is apparent in our situation within the last forty-eight hours. We look back on ourselves after three weeks of disappointment, and to-morrow, perhaps, we shall take the offensive. Such at least is the opinion which prevails at the War Department and throughout official circles.

This is the intelligence which I have obtained: After the defeat at Froschweiler the debris of the corps engaged retreated in pretty good order upon Saverne and Nancy, whence they were transported to Chalons by the Strasbourg railway as rapidly as the disorganized service of that line would permit. On the other hand, a part of the troops encamped in the center and south of Alsace, as well as the large garrison of Belfort, were sent forward to Chalons by the Paris and Muhlhausen railway. At the same time the expeditionary force concentrated at Cherbourg in order to operate on the shores of the Baltic and nearly forty thousand troops of the line were also dispatched to Chalons, where they all arrived in five days. These forces, added to the fifteen thousand regulars from Paris and the frontier towns of Belgium, made up an effective army of one hundred thousand men. Thirty-five thousand of the Garde Mobile were also added to them under the able direction of General Trochu. These forces, lately entirely distinct, have been slow to consolidate into an army, homogeneous and not unused to war, and provided with all necessary material for the campaign.

After completing the formation of this army, Gen. Trochu went to Paris to organize and create another new army. After having rallied, with considerable loss, the last detatchment of the corps beaten in the battle of the 6th of August, General McMahon arrived at Chalons, and has been placed at the head of the army raised by Trochu. His first care was to secure his communications with Bazaine, who had been almost hemmed in at Metz by the Prussians. He succeeded. I am assured, and his advanced posts extended as far as Mezieres and Monimedy and covered the Ardennes railroad and a line parallel with the frontier, which proves that communications with Metz are in fact, as also the arrival yesterday at Soisons of a great number of Prussians, made prisoners at Gravelotte. Another convoy is on its way. This fact proves that this day, so fiercely disputed, was not without glory for us, since we have leisure to make and guard prisoners.

As for the plans of McMahon nothing is published. I know the Ministry is inflexible on this point. The Prince Royal of Prussia seems to realize the risks which he is running, and will try eventually, to go to the aid of his confederates in the Champaigne, for it is affirmed here that he has retraced his steps, and retreated on St. Mihiel. It may be true, however, according to another report, that he continues his march on Paris by the Valley of the Aube. In any case we are ready to receive him.

Another battle, which occurred at Metz on Sunday, ended in our favor. Something decisive is preparing in that quarter.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

The symptoms of liver complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. One complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes, some of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most involved. Cure the Liver with

Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator

A preparation of roots and herbs, warranted to be strictly vegetable, and can do no injury to any one.

It has been used by hundreds, and known of the last 35 years as one of the most reliable, efficacious and harmless preparations ever offered the suffering. If taken regularly and persistent it is sure to cure.

Dyspepsia, headache, jaundice, costiveness, sick headache, chronic diarrhœa, affections of the bladder, camp dysentery, affections of the kidneys, fever, nervousness, chills, diseases of the skin, impurity of the blood, melancholy, or depression of spirits, heartburn, colic, or pain in the bowels, pain in the head, fever and ague, dropsy, boils, pain in the back and limbs, asthma, erysipelas, female affections, and bilious diseases generally.
