TALK ON CHANGE.

The movements on Carondelet street yesterday, though active, were not to the extent of the day before. The weather was not altogether favorable for the usual gatherings and confabs. The shipping interest appears to be well represented on the stage, through owners in person, captains in command, agents and brokers to do the running about, and the mate to carry out the contracts and agreements. Shippers, of course, must be consulted now and then. It is something of interest to observe from fifty to one hundred captains on the stage as they congregate informally daily. Some of them appear to be extremely well posted up about cotton and its yield; they can figure up and figure away equal to the best mathematician, particularly about 1d. at this time. Although we have a goodly addition of tonnage to the quantity in port last week, there is not much prospect of an increase for the present.

There was some talk about the self-constituted Board of Currency in New York issuing its manifesto in regard to the present crisis. An extract from the same will be found under our financial head. We are asked, if it's possible that our former fellow-citizen, Matthew Morgan, is identified and in consultation with some of the most noted Black Republicans of the North, supporters of Lincoln? We find Mr. Morgan's name associated with these enemies of the South, and as Mr. Morgan's house in Wall street (M. Morgan & Sons) is the agent of two of our banks, it is suggested that Mr. Morgan ought to clear himself of the charges and explain how he got into such bad company. The report of this so-called Board of Currency taunts and sneers at the movement in the South, in about the same strain as the vilest of the Black Republican newspapers. This will not answer, Mr. Morgan; you have pocketed too much money, accumulated too many gains in this very city of New Orleans to take part in the crusade against it.

It is manifest that the New York movement will end in just nothing. As soon as gold begins to flow South, there will be another disruption in exchange, and unless gold arrives from England, there will be another dead lock in the New York market. In anticipation of this, there has been some private talk among some of the frequenters of our flags; that as cotton is our basis of value and prosperity, all parties are interested to prevent its depreciation, that is, except some buyers. Cotton has been shipped lately under advance for account of planters, and advances received thereon from the agents of foreign houses. Sterling exchange has been taken by the banks drawn against this cotton. The planters will lose 8 pct. of the ordinary rate or par of exchange, or say his cotton goes at one cent 2d lb less.

It is talked of, if all the banks were to appoint a committee, or such of them as deal in foreign exchange, to have a committee, say of three factors, with a committee from the banks, to present their lists; these committees to value the cotton, take control of shipment, take charge of insurance and other incidental requirements, and in transfers being made, 3½ pct. (more or less) to be advanced in certificates of scrip of sums of $500, $1000 or more; the banks to receive these certificates in payment of dues, notes and obligations, which are in their portfolios, it would prevent many suspensions, in the event of the cotton market coming again to a dead halt, and save the portfolios from loss. It would prevent the sacrifice of produce, and in a great measure protect many interests which might and will otherwise suffer. Arrangements to be made in England, which can be easily done, so that the cotton, when placed on the market, shall not be sacrificed. The credit of our banks would sustain the operations, and carry the transactions through smoothly. The proceeds of the cotton to be returned in gold, as there is no probability of exchange ruling in favor of England; but the entire proceedings would, and to be subject to the committees of the banks and factors, though after a bank received the certificates of scrip it would await the action or sales of the cotton. If this could be arranged so as to meet the requirements of the Bank statutes, well and good, as such certificates or scrip would have to be recognized as bills receivable, and be applied perhaps to the active movement.

If some such plan could be adopted and carried out it would influence all the cotton from Memphis hither—much is held back there for the present. The further talk is, that many factors have advised their planting friends to hold back their cotton until a change takes place. It is presumed this only applies to those who are out of debt and received no advances, or who have sent forward sufficient to meet the advances made during the summer.

If New York folks can issue $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 of scrip, based on stocks, depreciated bonds, and what not, which will pass as money in Wall street, we can in New Orleans raise equally as much, based on something much more solid. By introducing the system as here talked of, we would be receiving the gold direct by steamer and express for our cotton, in forty to sixty days after shipment. The certificates would be canceled by each special transaction. In all probability there will be another pause in our great cotton market. There is no dependence on New York; they are too excitable, and general negotiations may come to a lock again. Though there are parties here dealing and operating in exchange based on cotton, yet exchange may recede to a much lower point. Quien sabe? Is it not well enough to be preparing for a little direct trade?

We want the contemplated line of steamers organized at once between this and Liverpool. It appears the terms of subscription are more favorable than talked of in our last. The shares are £10. A deposit of only five dollars per share is required, after a sufficient sum is subscribed and the shares allotted, not before. If the company is not formed no deposit is required, no money expected. The European mails by the Africa came through in part yesterday. The private correspondence is on the so-so order—great discretion allowed in some orders; but money is tightening on Threadneedle street. A further advance in the rates of interest may be expected on the part of the Bank of England.

Closing of the Insurance Offices To-day.—The Board of Underwriters give notice this morning that all the insurance offices comprising this Board will close their offices to-day at 11 o'clock A. M., it being Thanksgiving day.

Attention Company A., Mitchell Men.—A meeting for drill is called at the Armory Hall at 7 o'clock this evening. Be punctual.

Gamble's Cosmos Clothing Store.—How any body will be able, after reading Mr. Gamble's advertisement this morning, to pass the corner without stopping in and such a purchase, we cannot understand. He goes on the principle that people should know exactly what he means when he says he will sell low. Therefore he gives the prices of all the leading articles kept in stock. It is unnecessary for us to say that these prices are low, indeed. Everybody can see that for themselves.

Southern Machinery.—We invite attention to the advertisement of Mr. Willis P. Coleman, which appears in another column. It speaks for itself and we hope will meet with a response from our planters and manufacturers.

A SPECIMEN OF NORTHERN POLITICAL ECONOMY.

There is a paper in Philadelphia called the Evening Bulletin, which has undertaken to enlighten the world with regard to the present political troubles of the country. In an article entitled "Common Sense About the Money Panic," it gives us a dissertation which may be regarded as "common sense" in the latitude in which it is printed, but is certainly very uncommon sense, when read by those who are not fortunate enough to be as well versed in the principles of political economy as the modern Adam Smith of the city of Brotherly Love.

Here is a specimen:

But even this political trouble, what can it amount to financially? Provided we do not absolutely go to cutting each other's throats, it can amount to but little, unless we all lose our common sense. There are two points here and only two. First, what the South sell—and second, what they buy.

As to cotton: Suppose the South should undertake not to sell cotton to the North. Very well. They send it all to Europe. But there are a million or so of bales that England does not want. Messrs. Cash & Co., of Lowell, Mass., send to Liverpool an order for cotton and buy it. What is the effect of this operation. Simply this, that the North buys cotton at the market price in Liverpool, added to the carriage to America, which carriage the South pays.

As to what they buy: They must have hats, boots, shoes, negro cloth, locomotives, machinery and a hundred other things which they do not make and which they cannot get abroad. They buy almost all their manufactured articles, clothing and groceries at the North, and must buy them. If they buy in Baltimore, they are Northern goods all the same.

It will thus be seen how easily the difficulty will be gotten over by the Northern consumers of cotton, if the South should establish commercial non-intercourse. They will simply send to Liverpool, buy the cotton there, and bring it back to Massachusetts.

The hitch in the argument, though, consists in the assertion that the South will have to pay the "carriage" of this cotton from Liverpool to Lowell. If this erudite economist had taken the trouble to explain this, his argument would have been much more satisfactory.

Of course, the cost is greater to carry cotton from New Orleans to Liverpool than from New Orleans to Boston. If then no more cotton goes to Boston, but the Lowell manufacturers have to send to Liverpool after it, and have to pay the cost in the Liverpool market, the commissions and expenses, and the freight and insurance back to Boston, we do not see that they will get the cotton as cheaply as if they brought it direct from New Orleans. It may be our own fault that we do not see this in the same light with our Philadelphia contemporary—but this is certainly our "common-sense" view of the matter. If Lowell manufacturers go to Liverpool, compete with English manufacturers, pay Liverpool prices, and then bear all the costs of bringing the cotton back to this country—and still find it to their profit so to do—then the South has no objection. We do not believe, however, the experiment would last long. If they choose to try it, though, let them go ahead. The South sells most of its cotton in foreign markets anyway, and would as soon sell it all there as not.

But, suppose these manufacturers should do as the Bulletin says they will—buy in Liverpool and bring the cotton back to Lowell. Suppose they manufacture it into cloths and calicoes. Where will they then sell the manufactured goods? If the South is driven to the position of not selling cotton to Northern manufacturers, neither will she buy the goods that they make. It is very certain that, taking off the duty, we could buy cotton goods of English manufacturers cheaper than of American manufacturers who had to send to Liverpool for the raw material. So that, even allowing the Bulletin's absurd premise that they could get cotton as cheaply in Liverpool as they now do in the South, it would be folly for them to do it, unless they had a market for their manufactured goods.

The second branch of the argument—that the South "must" buy hats, shoes, locomotives, etc., in Northern markets—is just as ridiculous as the other. "Must" is a word that implies no alternative. We suppose that this writer is ignorant of the fact that the leather of which boots and shoes are made comes mostly from South America, Mexico and Texas, and that we can get it cheaper that the manufacturers of the North can. We suppose he thinks there is nobody in the South that can make a boot or a shoe or a hat—and that, even if there were none, Southern money would not bring them here. They "must" buy these things in the North, he says—groceries, locomotives and everything else. He is not aware, we presume, that Louisiana produces sugar, South Carolina and Georgia rice, Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri tobacco and breadstuffs—and that our next neighbor, Cuba, produces coffee. All these things go from our midst to the North, or else pass by our doors on their way to the North—and yet we "must" buy them there! Profound economist!

We can make locomotives too. We have been making them in Richmond for years. We can make them anywhere in Virginia, Tennessee or Georgia. The Southern States have inexhaustible beds of iron ore—they have coal, they have labor and they have capital. That they have not manufactured these things before is no reason they should not do it now. There is no obligation upon them to continue to employ their labor in agriculture, when only a small portion it is needed to supply, upon our own soil, every article of manufacture we may need, that we have heretofore been buying in the North. Nor is there any obligation upon them to avoid English and French markets where, under a system of low duties or no duties at all, we might buy everything we did not choose to manufacture for ourselves.

Let the Bulletin put these facts in its pipe and smoke them, and they will do it good. The North has been deceiving itself about the South long enough, and it is time that section were looking at us through the other end of the glass. We have submitted to about all that we are going to stand. To be out and hacked is bad enough; but to have oil of vitriol poured upon the fresh wounds is something which passes the point of endurance.

Will the South Stand Firm

TO HER INTERESTS!

Or will she do as she has heretofore done—sustain the North by buying all her Yankee traps in the shape of MACHINERY, MILLS, etc., that comes along?

This is a question of grave importance to the undersigned, who has spent the best part of his life and energies in conducting a Southern manufactory, and perfecting the best Corn and Flouring Mill that ever turned.

This Mill took the Premium in Gotham, over the best Northern manufactured Mill, of more than double the size, which Premium can be seen at No. 85 St. Charles street, where these celebrated Mills are for sale.

A COMPLETE ASSORTMENT

—OF—

PLANTATION GOODS,

Which we will sell in the same proportion. Such an inducement for buying Goods at such

LOW PRICES,

Will probably never be offered again; but circumstances alter cases, and, consequently, we are obliged to make such sacrifices.

We advise everybody to avail themselves of this opportunity.

Having more Salesmen at present than last week, everybody will be waited upon promptly.

Sewell T. Taylor,

IMPORTER OF FINE OLD WINE, LIQUORS, ETC.,

13 and 15 Royal street,

Has now in store a large supply of the celebrated CREME DE BOUZY CHAMPAGNE, in quarts and pints; also, other brands, viz: CHARLES HEIDSIECK, PIPER HEIDSIECK, PARMENTIER, and other brands of inferior quality. I have a large assortment of the best Old Sherries, such as AMONTILLADO, TOPAZ, SIERRA, GOLDAN, DUFF GORDON and ANCHOR SHERRIES—1858—SOUTHSIDE MADEIRA, of direct importation; other Maderias of lower grade. Superior Old London Dry Dock PORT, and other Ports of less grade. The celebrated SAZARAC BRANDIES—Vintage 1796, 1798, 1802 and 1805—a large supply always on hand. All grades of CLARET and WHITE WINES, in glass and wood. WHISKYS—Scotch and Irish, Old Rye, Bourbon and Wheat Whiskys. SCOTCH ALE and PORTER, in pints and quarts. CORDIALS, etc. My usual assortment of the best WINES, which will be sold on as reasonable terms as any other house in the city.

SEWELL T. TAYLOR.

o7 2p1f Nos. 13 and 15 Royal street.

As to the above Brandies, Sherries, Madeiras, Ports and Champagnes, I am satisfied no house in the city can produce as good, or better, at the same prices. Any house can have a dozen of each named wines if they can produce better at the same price or pay two prices if they cannot; the judges to be disinterested parties; the same is good with anything I have for sale in the same ratio.
