The Chicago Tribune has the annexed information upon the subject of Sorghum:

O. N. Brainard & Co. of this city are embarking quite extensively in the sugar cane business. They have made arrangements to put up large manufacturing establishments at several points in Iroquois and Champaign Counties. Their plan of business is to put up the mills, evaporators, and fixtures, and to contract with the farmers to plant a certain number of acres of cane, and to top and deliver it at the mill as it is wanted for manufacturing—Brainard & Co. binding themselves to pay 15 cents per gallon for the sirup made from the cane. One thousand acres have thus been guaranteed at Peru, 800 at Buckley, 600 at Onarga, 400 at Kankakee, and 600 at Clifton. Probably similar arrangements will be made at other points.

It is intended, we understand, to boil the juice to from 21° to 25° Beaume, and ship it to the refinery at Chicago. The mills will be run by steam, using portable boilers, and steam and fire will be used in evaporating. The work will be carried on under open sheds. Each establishment will cost something in the neighborhood of $3,000. It is supposed by competent judges that, should the season be favorable, the yield of sorghum in Illinois this year will reach 100,000 bbls.
