BEST OF PROOF.

That Hyomei Will Cure All Forms of Catarrhal Diseases.

Testimonials could be printed by the thousands, many of them from Barre and nearby towns, that Hyomei is an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles, but the best proof of its unusual curative powers is the guarantee that the Red Cross pharmacy give with every outfit that they sell, "Money back if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it."

Hyomei is not a secret remedy. Its formula is given freely to physicians who want to know what they use when they prescribe Hyomei. It is a guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Law by serial No. 1,418.

By breathing Hyomei, the healing medication goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages where the catarrhal germs may lurk, and disinfects and heals. To be convinced of this you have only to give it a trial, remembering that if it does not cure, Rickert & Wells will refund your money.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and in most cases is sufficient to cure the disease, making it not only a scientific treatment but one that is highly economical. Get an outfit today from Rickert & Wells if you have any catarrh.

An Undeserved Reflection.

A New York clergyman who often spends his vacation in fishing in the streams of the Adirondacks, was on one trip adopted by a handsome setter dog, which insisted on following him from camp to camp, as he moved along the stream.

One day he met a party of men working up stream with a native guide. The guide immediately recognized the dog as his own property.

"Trying to steal my setter, are you?" he shouted at the clergyman. "I'll have you to jail for that. There's a law in the city."

The clergyman tried to explain that he was an unwilling companion of the dog, which had refused to be driven away but to little effect, until he added a $2 bill to his argument.

"It's strange what queer things happen to a man up here," he said to the stage-driver who later carried him away from the woods. "That is the first time I was ever accused of stealing a dog."

"Yes, sir, replied the driver, sympathetically, and added, after a moment's pause, "for myself I have never been accused of stealing anything."—Youth's Companion.

AMBIGUOUS FAREWELL.

My Sophy read how ladies all,
Who wanted to ingratiate,
Would make their modish forms this fall,
More symphlike and emaciate.

And always keen for comme il faut's,
Most transient protuberance,
She seized the idea with—Lord knows!—
Extravagant exuberance.

Hence, when I saw her next, I said:
"Ah me, the saints palaver us!
Sophie, is it you?—why blast my head!
How came you so cadaverous?"

She told me, then how savoir faire
Had made embonpoint second class,
And how she'd banted then and there
Into a higher-reckoned class.

Cried I: "Ah what a thing to do!
Your weight's down to a decimal!
Your figure from this profile view
Is—well, infinitesimal!"

She said: "You like it, don't you dear!
Indeed, I feel quite sure of you!"
"Good-by," said I, and dropped a tear—
"I hope to see much more of you."
—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy. 25c.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Canty, of Rutland, both 70 years old, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Thursday night. They were married in Castleton by the Rev. Father Peter. Ten children, twenty-five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren were all present at the celebration.

On the second day of the Sullivan county fair at Claremont, N. H., in the third heat of the 2:25 pace, H. O. Page, of Bennington, driver of "Scout," was thrown, the result of a collision that crippled his sulky. His foot caught in the reins and he was dragged several hundred feet before the horse was caught and Page picked up unconscious. At the hospital his head was found badly cut, but it is thought his injuries are not serious.

Several policemen raided Cubby Milligan's place on Battery street in Burlington early Saturday morning with a warrant charging him with having liquor on hand with intent to sell. They found the door heavily barricaded, but forced it open in time to see Cubby escaping over the nearby roof. He was chased to the street, where he was lost in the darkness.

GOLF CAME FROM HOLLAND.

Andrew Lang Gives Up the Claim of Scotland.

Visiting Holland in 1899, Mr. Cunningham observed in the Rotterdam gallery a picture by Jan Steen (1626-79), a picture in which a little Dutch boy is swinging can undoubted golf club," a club in all respects identical with the practicing type of driver. This picture led Mr. Cunningham to investigate Dutch golf. Of course, the date of Jan Steen is late, in relation to Scottish golf. We know that the game was so popular in Scotland two centuries before Jan Steen that Parliament pronounced it illegal. Men ought to be practicing archery and learning to hold their own against the English bowmen, not playing golf. But in Scotland no man paid any attention to acts of Parliament, and golf went on merrily. We do not know how much older it is than 1450, but it is pretty certain that the balls and clubs were at first brought from Holland. Rev. Mr. Blair drew a parable from the making of a golf club, for Mr. Blair was a St. Andrews preacher, and rather an irreverend ass than otherwise. Patriots may argue that Scotland might have lent the game to Holland, but Mr. Cunningham proves that the phrase "stimy" is Dutch, while het kulfen is Dutch for "the golf," and our "tee" is the Dutch tuitje, pronounced "toytee." Clearly, if Scotland borrowed the terms of the game from Holland, as all Europe borrowed the terms of tennis from France, Holland is the cradle of golf, at France is the cradle of tennis. I am greatly guilty of having stated that James VI clapped a heavy tariff on Dutch golf balls, and so enabled the Scots to make their own. Mr. Cunningham quotes my history of golf, in the "Badminton Book," for this piece of tariff reform, but who was my authority? Mr. Cunningham should have verified my fact in our acts of Parliament or in the records of our privy council. I am not sure of my own fact, though I think I have made it clear that in 1614 Scots golf balls were of wood, like the balls used at jeu de mail in the 18th century. When balls stuffed with feathers came in (they lasted until about 1850) we do not precisely know. In the Netherlands golf was full grown by 1500, but it declined into a bastard game no better than croquet, and Mr. Cunningham finds that even this form is decadent. The Dutch, however, are the fathers of golf. Mr. Cunningham has placed that fact beyond doubt.—From a Review of the St. Andrews Golf Club History.

FOUR BANDS NOT IN IT.

Declined to Parade With a Non-Union Organization at Providence.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 14.—As the result of the presence of the Seventh Artillery band from Fort Adams in the Knights of Columbus parade here yesterday, four other bands which had been engaged for the parade, being union organizations, dropped out upon orders from the president of the local musicians' union, T. W. Gambell, who refused to allow the men to parade with a non-union band.

The Seventh Artillery band came here with the Newport council of Knights of Columbus, and 2,000 knights from all over the state and cities in Massachusetts and Connecticut were gathered for the annual field day.

As the parade was about to stare from Exchange place President Gambell went down the line and ordered the four union bands to withdraw as the non-union band from Fort Adams was to have a place in the parade.

The parade was held with but one band officiating, that from Fort Adams.

A Little Bit Mixed.

Three tired citizens—a lawyer, a doctor and a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the cold gray light of the early morn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the room into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke.

"I know what you fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I saw a rat, but I didn't."—Boston Record.

The Essential.

At a Mid-Sussex elementary school the teacher closed some pregnant remarks on the effects of sunshine on ripening corn, with the question, "And now can anyone tell me what is the most necessary thing for the harvest and the thing that the farmer pays for, the thing the laborer must have if his work is not to be valueless? Thomas Buddington, you raised your hand first. It is for you to tell the class what, of course, they already know. Speak, now Thomas, speak." "Beer," said Thomas.—London Globe.

And If He Did?

An irascible old gentleman was waiting for a friends with whom he had made an appointment at a cafe. Time went by the friends did not turn up.

"He won't come now," said someone.

"Well, he'd better look out," said the old gentleman furiously, "if he doesn't come he'll get a warm reception from me."—Nos Loisirs.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "the style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Wasted Oratory.

A young curate who had recently taken orders was appointed to a church where the vicar was extremely energetic, so much so that when he had been there six months he had never had a chance of preaching. This, he thought, was very hard lines, as he felt sure that he had the making of a great orator in him. One day, however, his vicar told him that there would be a child to christen the next Sunday afternoon, and that as he (the vicar) would be engaged elsewhere, it would be left to the curate to conduct the service. "Now," he thought to himself, "if I am not allowed to preach, I will at least avail myself of this opportunity to let some portion of the congregation know what my oratorical powers are."

The eventful afternoon arrived; the child's father, mother, uncles and aunts, godfather and god-mother stood round the front. The service went very well until he had to take the child in his arms. He took hold of it as if it were a torpedo, and then delivered himself of this oration:

"My dear brethren, before I proceed to christen this child, I would like to address a few words to the sponsors as to its future welfare. It is an old saying and a true one, that the child is father to the man. Now, this infant I hold in my arms may, if properly trained, rise to great eminence. He might one day, if well brought up, get into Parliament and become a second Balfour or Campbell-Bannerman, and pass such laws as would be of benefit to the whole British empire; or, again, he might become a great soldier and emulate the deeds of Kitchener or Lord Roberts. Should he go into the church he might eventually become archbishop of Canterbury or a great missionary, and be the means of converting thousands of souls.

"If he enter the medical profession, why should he not be a Jenner or a Pasteur, or a man like Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood? Should he turn his attention to commerce, what is there to prevent him becoming lord mayor of London?

"As a scientific man he might be a Newton or an Edison. What is the child's name?"

"Mary Anne, please, sir."

The baby fell into the font.—Tit-Bits.

Hard Labor.

Profiting by a temporary dearth of visitors in front of his cage, the wild man of Borneo in the dime museum pulled off his grizzly tousled wig and wiped his closely cropped head.

"Be Jarge!" he muttered, "this nayther fakin' is ha-ard wurruk!"—Chicago Tribune.

Music Hall.

Miles' brick block has been put in fine shape, and is ready to let for dancing parties, meetings and other entertainments. An excellent and safe fire escape has been erected at the rear of the building, with entrance into the Gordon block. Orders for the hall will be left at coal office of D. M. Miles, 122 North Main street, in Moore & Owens' store.
