SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 1, 1862.

A SOUTHERN ENTERPRISE.

A very intelligent correspondent of the Atlanta (Ga.) Confederacy, after describing Pensacola and its surroundings, alludes in these terms to an enterprise which has frequently received favorable mention in our columns:

Pensacola is an old town, situated on one of the noblest bays in the world. The streets, which are narrow and sandy, are regularly laid off, intersecting at right angles. There are no very costly buildings of fine buildings. There is a foundry which turns out good work. The object of most interest to me is a factory for the manufacture of oil [illegible] ... barrels of resin per day ... [illegible] ... eight hundred gallons of oil. The gentleman who showed us the premises informed us that the oil could be sold at wholesale for $1 per gallon, and that the resin is ... at 75c. per barrel. The machinery is rather costly, but, if I am correctly informed, the profit is great. I saw some specimens of the oil, and found it very good.

The Florida Oil Company, although separate from the Southern Oil Company, is the direct fruit of that enterprise, and is destined to become, we believe, as useful and prosperous as its progenitor. Indeed, we understand that the latter Company, by regular arrangement, sells most of the products of the former. This agreement has proved mutually beneficial, and in two ways: In the first place, it has enabled the parent Company to supply a larger proportion of oils than it could otherwise have done, to meet the great demand that sprung up and which has been constantly increasing; and in the second place, the more the use of the oil is diffused the greater its popularity. Experience has demonstrated that the greater the sphere of its diffusion the heavier the demand for it. This is the best evidence of its value; and the fact is, when properly applied, it has shown itself to be the best car-box oil in the country, and is afforded at about one-third the price of similar oils. The future of these Companies is brilliant. They are destined not only to make large returns to their stockholders, but they will render the Confederate States independent of foreign supplies of an article of indispensable use.

EXPENSES OF THE GORILLA.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Express, speaking of the war expense calculations of a contemporary, says that the Tribune is not far out of the way, after all, in estimating the present expenditures of the Government at three millions per day, as follows: For Quartermaster's Department of the army, two millions per day, as shown by Gen. Meigs' report to the Secretary of War; for Paymaster, $700,000 per day; for Commissary General's Department, $140,000 per day; for Ordnance Department, $31,600 per day; making a total for these departments of the military service alone of $2,[illegible].

The daily expenditures of the Navy Department cannot be much less than $140,000 per day, and of the other departments of the Government, say $[illegible] per day. The aggregate, many think, is $3,120,000, as the daily expense of the United States Government, or an annual expenditure of $[illegible].

Well, if at such an extravagant rate of expenditure the Lincoln Administration does not soon find itself in the poor house, we shall be much mistaken. It is on the verge of vagrancy already, and if some good luck does not attend it, will speedily be regarded as a dangerous and suspicious character, without any visible means of support."

NOT APPRECIATED.—The Cincinnati Commercial says that the conduct of England in the affair of the Trent should make the Northern people cut loose from the English people, and hereafter hold commerce only with those nations which have some appreciation of high-toned honor and magnanimity." The writer's apparent earnestness adds to the effect of his cruel irony.

We hope the English will be able to survive the terrible infliction proposed, if ever it be reduced to practice. But, what will become of the Gorilla? Cut off from intercourse with all the nations of Christendom, they can only look for appreciation among the Fejees, Hottentots and wild Indians, whom they most resemble in word and deed. But, should they enter into close alliances with the Fejees, etc., the Fejees, etc., will be entitled to universal pity and commiseration. The Gorillas will swindle them, one way or another, sure!

NO MORE PERMITS TO OYSTERMEN.—Gen. Lovell gives notice in another column, that in consequence of the traitorous conduct of many parties engaged in navigating the lakes, he will not issue any more permits to oystermen and others until he becomes satisfied that no more information is carried to the enemy. We advise all parties concerned to read the order.

MILITARY NOTICES.—We direct attention to the military advertisements and orders which will be found under the proper head in our paper this morning.

MRS. CHIPPENDALE'S BENEFIT.—We regret to learn of the sudden indisposition of this lady, thereby necessitating a postponement of her complimentary benefit until further notice.

THE GREAT TROTTING RACES.—Those interested will note, upon reference to the advertisement of the races, that the third day is for all small horses which have never made a mile in 2:40 in public, and that to-day is the last day for entries.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—To-night will be the last but one of the engagement of that versatile performer, Mr. C. H. Morton, and, in addition to the usual attractions, he will sing several of his most popular songs, among which will be Mr. Randall's fine patriotic one of "My Maryland." This alone will be worth the entrance money, as it is beautiful and thrilling.

NEWS ABOUT THE CAIRO FLEET.—The Cairo correspondent of the Missouri Republican is quite down in the mouth at the vast army which marched so triumphantly from that place some ten days ago. Hear him:

Fifteen thousand men, drawn from the different posts of Paducah, Cairo, Bird's Point and Fort Holt, had taken up the line of march into a hostile country, and it seemed as if a glorious inactivity had given way to active operations. But while the people were congratulating each other a change more remarkable than the sudden start occurred, and the army, retracing their steps, are to-night back at Camp Jefferson. The public will look eagerly for an explanation of this movement.

MACHINERY.—Mr. Geo. W. Ward, Confederate States Receiver, offers for sale a lot of valuable machinery, which has been sequestered by the Confederate States, and persons who desire such articles would no doubt find it to their interest to give him a call. See advertisement.

DRY GOODS FOR SALE CHEAP.—Messrs. J. Levois & Co., corner of Canal and Bourbon streets, are offering their splendid stock of foreign dry goods extremely low, so that they can close them out, as they are in liquidation. Ladies who want supplies in this line should not miss this chance, as these bargains are to be had, [illegible].

WANTED.—A cook, washer and ironer is wanted. See advertisement.

PORTER AND ALE AT AUCTION.—The fine lot of porter and ale advertised by D. E. Morphy, auctioneer, will positively be sold this day at [illegible] A. M., at No. 47 Magazine street. See advertisement.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—We are requested to call attention to the sale to be made this day, at noon, in the Merchants' Exchange, Royal street, by the Sheriff, of the lot of ground, with the brick buildings and other improvements thereon, situated on Notre Dame street, between Magazine and Tchoupitoulas streets, First District. For particulars see the advertisement.

CANADIAN FEELING.

The prevailing feeling in Canada—which may be regarded as a faithful reflex of public sentiment in the Mother Country—is well set forth in the following extracts from a letter, written by a Northerner sojourning in Coburg, under date 27th December, and published in the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat, a strong Lincoln journal. It fully corroborates what has been learned from English and Canadian sources; and, as the writer is an enemy, his statements may be taken without many grains of salt. Here are the extracts:

Canada is still alive and full of fight. Everything as regards the Slidell and Mason affair remains still in uncertainty to us; but I give you my opinion that this preparation for war in England was not on account of the Trent. Before that came up I heard that extraordinary preparations were making in England, and that by the close of navigation there would be an addition to the army in Canada. In the spring a large fleet was to be sent over. From what I can learn, England has for a long time intended to raise the blockade and take the cotton out. Then the intention was to seize Maine. For myself, I make no doubt this is their real intention. Orders were long ago given to organize the militia, and many other preparations have been made. * * * * * * * * * *

My opinions are formed from what I am told by men in power and connected with the Government. To-day the Colonel of this battalion informed me that the commander of the forces had given orders to draft 50,000 men from the first service men—that is, unmarried men under 45—and Mr. W—— informed me that immense quantities of arms are daily going up the road. In fact, things are in such a state that this is not the most desirable place for an American. When you write to me, make no mention of the contents of this letter, for I shall not be surprised to see an order to postmasters to open all letters from the States. * *

I hope your people are alive to the fact that the time has come to place the frontiers in a proper state of defense, for I feel sure that you will have use for all the patriotism that your country affords, and that before long. Rest assured that England is bound to pick a quarrel with the States. She wants the State of Maine.

We should not be surprised if there was a heap of truth in the foregoing. We feel quite confident of it. England has never been satisfied with the settlement of the North-eastern boundary question, under the Ashburton treaty; and she may probably conclude that this is a first-rate time to vindicate her alleged rights and restore her boundaries in accordance therewith. England is a sagacious nation, and seldom lets a good opportunity pass out of her hands. She has a good chance now—an opportunity that may not occur again in a quarter of a century. Besides, she wants the harbor of Portland as a winter haven for her ships. It would be of immense advantage to her to take and retain possession of the port and city of Portland—that part of Maine depending upon Portland—and the railroads which converge North, West and South at that point. If this should be done we might congratulate a portion of the people of Maine on their being at last under the sway of a decent Government, although candor compels us to say that we could not congratulate the British cabinet on such an acquisition of population! Still, as we wish good to all, and as we believe the Mainaites would be benefited, and the British would obtain a port almost indispensable to them, we trust the latter will step in and take possession. We of the South will not interpose the slightest objection.

As for raising the blockade and taking "the cotton out," that is altogether a different affair. We have got pretty well used to the blockade—are working our way through all the difficulties splendidly—and if foreign nations choose to break the blockade before we get ready to break it, well and good. If they don't, we shall not presume to interfere with their business. We can afford to wait as long for their trade as they can for our trade—in fact, much longer. The rapid manner in which the development of home resources is going on will render us entirely self-sustaining in less than twelve months.

TALK ON 'CHANGE.

The flags of Carondelet were yesterday, after the sun came out, tolerably well thronged. There was nothing but gossip going on until towards 2 o'clock, when it was announced that the telegraph had resumed its diurnal movements of inflicting on our community a column of accounts, about three-fourths of which may be contradicted to-day. There is no doubt, however, that the great Burnside expedition has met with disaster from the elements. Yet, if there are forty or fifty of the vessels of the grand armada arrived safe in some of the bays and inlets of the North Carolina coast, they will give the Confederates something to do in the way of skirmishing and light fighting. The complexion of the foreign advices, those from England particularly, indicate that the British Government is satisfied with the surrender of Mr. Slidell and Mr. Mason. As for the recognition of the Southern Confederacy, we have nothing of importance. We never entertained any great opinion of this hoped for recognizance. Recognizance, as we have frequently informed our readers, will not raise the blockade of our ports. The commercial advices are of a very firm cotton market, confirming the large sales of 168,000 bales for the week ending the 11th January, closing with the high prices of 13½d. for Middling Orleans. This is a very unfavorable augury for those anticipations which have been cherished that the blockade would be interrupted by Great Britain by this date, or the 1st of March. It will be recollected that in November we talked of one shilling per pound for cotton by the last of that month; that if the blockade continued, it would advance to 15d. by the close of January. It has now crept up to 13½, and some advices say 14d. had been paid, with England apparently satisfied with the delivery of our Ambassadors, and indicating that the blockade will be respected, for the nonce only, it is hoped. We have now merely to repeat that had it not been for the inefficiency and weakness of the Navy Department of the Confederate States, the port of New Orleans might, on this day, have been opened to the commerce of the world. As it is, all we have to do is to go to work and do the opening ourselves.

There have been some financial and commercial letters received lately from New York city, from prominent parties there, confirming the general suspension of coin payments on the part of the banks of that city, with three or four exceptions. Among them was the Chemical Bank. The tone of this correspondence is gloomy and disheartening. A few months ago the communications from the same source were of a defiant and contemptuous character towards the Southern people. The words rebels and traitors were freely, in fact altogether, used in allusion to President Davis, Slidell, Governor Moore and others. Now they consent, in alluding to us, to call us Confederates. Wall street, the great center, is shaking under the gigantic and appalling indebtedness which it is called on, week after week, to support through the Gorilla Government. The impression is general that not one-half of the distress, bankruptcy and pressure is allowed to be made known through the medium of the public prints; that there is much suppressed and much more that will never be made known. Yet there are some capitalists in the North who still think that the South can be subdued.

Our cotemporary, the Delta, in its issue last evening, accuses us of unfairness in intimating that the permits for receiving cotton were given as special favors. We have seen only one permit of the kind, and that was for two hundred bales; but it said nothing about the proceeds being returned in munitions of war, though the parties had been known to favor the Confederate cause. But from two hundred bales by one conveyance, the permits have extended to one thousand and two thousand bales. We hope our neighbor will obtain two or three of these permits, publish them and let the planting interest know how they read. It is manifest that the general proceeds of these shipments are not returned in munitions of war, or coffee, cigars and other merchandise would not form a share of the return cargoes. In the meantime, shippers, buyers of cotton and planters can have vessels go direct to Natchez and Vicksburg, load with cotton and clear direct for Cuba or Europe, both ports (Vicksburg and Natchez) being ports of entry and delivery. Our authorities cannot interrupt the navigation of the Mississippi. We begin to think that the blockaders are, by this time, aware of the many evasions of their ineffectual attempts to keep the port closed, and are taking enlarged measures to close the mouths of the river, so that the shipment of cotton will be attended with great hazard, particularly as the underwriters have declined, since the loss of the Calhoun, to assume any more risks. A steamer leaves to-day for a neutral port, said to be for Europe. We doubt, however, if she returns with a cargo of munitions of war. The steamer in question was seized or sequestrated, and released under conditions that the proceeds of sale should be subject to the order of the Confederate Court. Will this steamer, after arriving at the intended port, be arrested by the former owner, who is a resident of Lincolndom? From the fate of the Calhoun, now captured, armed and used against us by the enemy, we come to the conclusion that it is unwise and impolitic for our authorities to allow any more steamers to leave our port until we can keep the mouths of the river free of the blockaders.

The telegraphic advices of last evening quote the stock of cotton in Liverpool on the 11th inst. at 665,000 bales. This is wrong, and should read, we predict, 565,000 bales. Of the balance of the dispatches, all round, very little can be made of them. There was talk that the storm of rain ceased yesterday morning, as the after part of the day was clear, to continue perhaps till this morning. It was talked of that Shufeldt, the Lincoln Consul at Havana, had sent a message to the commander of the squadron off the Balize, notifying him of the evasions of the blockade. This Shufeldt will undoubtedly be remembered by members of one of our private clubs, of which he was a guest for several weeks, winter before last.

LARGE SALE OF HARDWARE.—The extensive sale of hardware will be continued this day at 10½ o'clock. See D. E. Morphy's auction advertisement.

What is the object of an education but to qualify persons for the business of life? Parents who wish to have their sons ready for business as soon as the blockade is open, should apply immediately at DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, No. 174 Canal street. In future, New Orleans will be an importing and exporting city, and its business doubled. The places of those who have gone to the war must be filled, and people cannot send to Boston and New York for clerks, as formerly; hence there is a splendid future open for Southern young men who are qualified for business. There are Professors for Languages, Mathematics, Bookkeeping, Penmanship, etc. Merchants apply here for clerks and bookkeepers. A hint to the thinking is sufficient.

To the Friends

—OF THE—

SICK AND WOUNDED SOLDIERS OF THE SOUTH.

The Soldiers' Relief Society of Tennessee having been authorized and desired by the Secretary of War and by the Medical Director of this Division of our army, to perform the services in the Confederate States Hospitals, which they have discharged under the direction of the Governor in the State Hospital, have assumed a similar charge and supervision of the following Hospitals, viz: State Hospital, First College Street Hospital, Second College Street Hospital, Front Street Hospital, Cedar Street Hospital, Elliott Hospital. These are now filled with patients from the armies of the Confederacy, and every effort is being made to provide others as fast as the increasing necessities of the service demand additional accommodation. We have entered upon the discharge of our duties with a determination to do all in our power, at whatever cost, of personal comfort or convenience, to alleviate the misfortunes, and to contribute to the wants and comforts of the gallant defenders of our soil, who may be stricken down by disease, or by the casualties of war.

We are receiving liberal contributions to aid us in our work from every portion of the Confederacy; but the demands upon us are daily increasing, and we send forth this appeal to the generous citizens of the South for further assistance, with the confident expectation that it will be promptly and favorably responded to by every Southern heart. The contributions most needed are money, cotton for mattresses, blankets, flannel, under clothing, provisions, sugar and molasses, or any articles which may be useful or necessary for the sick, the wounded or convalescent. Those when received are distributed to the different Hospitals under the supervision of the eminent Medical Director, Dr. Yandell. However small may be the intrinsic value of articles contributed, let it be borne in mind that if there is a multitude of contributors the aggregate will be large.

Contributions should be addressed to Mrs. Felicia G. Porter, No. 38 Cedar street, Nashville, Tennessee, and where it is practicable and proper to do so, the wishes of the donors in regard to the disposition thereof will be complied with.

From the patriotic citizens of the Confederacy we anticipate a prompt and generous response to this our appeal in behalf of the gallant soldiers who have consecrated their lives to our noble cause, and who have been prostrated while defending our homes from the aggressions of a ruthless invader.

Soldiers' Clothing.

NOTICE FROM THE GOVERNOR TO THOSE PREPARING IT

I am now endeavoring to furnish the Volunteer Troops of Louisiana with suitable winter clothing, and am having prepared uniform suits of woolen cloth and suitable underclothes, to be distributed among them. I am informed that the patriotic citizens of several parishes are also engaged in similar preparations for the benefit of their companies. If these contributions of clothing are sent by them directly to their several companies, without my being aware of the quantity and kind sent, and the companies supplied, great confusion and waste will be the consequence.

A soldier can only carry a certain quantity of clothing. It is of great importance that each one of our soldiers shall have good, substantial woolen suits, as soon as possible; but it is also important that there be concert of action among those supplying them, in order to avoid sending double supplies to companies.

I therefore urgently recommend the citizens of the country parishes to send to me, in this city, such supplies of clothing as they may prepare, with explicit directions as to the companies or individuals for whom they are intended. I will take care that they reach their destination. The clothes should be boxed up or baled, and directed to me in New Orleans, with the name of the company for which they are intended marked on it, and a statement sent to me of its contents, so that I may not duplicate the articles.

I respectfully request the newspapers to give publicity to these suggestions, in consideration of the objects to be effected.

THOS. O. MOORE, Governor.

An Appeal for Small Arms

—TO THE—

CITIZENS OF LOUISIANA AND ADJOINING STATES.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1, 1861.

Having been appointed, by the Secretary of War, an agent to collect, receive, and purchase small arms for the Confederate States, I deem it necessary and expedient to make known the fact as generally as possible, the better to secure cooperation in a work which needs to be done quickly. Citizens! and patriots! Your Government asks for the many thousands of TRIED guns that lie unused in your houses. Recent experiments have proven that any one of your fine Double Barrelled Shot Guns, with the improved Minié ball, is more than a match for the much talked of Minié Musket. Then, bring them forth and place them upon the altar of your country's liberty, that they may at once be consecrated to the noble work of Christian defense. If objection be made to sending away your guns, and it be urged that you MAY need them at home, the reply is, that the surest way to prevent the necessity of using them at home, is to place them in the hands of the many thousands of brave men who are now chafing with anxious desire to stand as a wall of fire between you and the invading foe. If this answer be deemed inconclusive, then the reflection that those high in authority, those in whose judgment we all have confidence, and who, it is but fair to presume, know well our necessities, both at home and on our borders, have, after mature deliberation, inaugurated this movement, should be a sufficient guarantee for the wisdom, utility, and patriotism of the service you are called on to perform. Then, as you desire a short war, a speedy peace, and an acknowledgment of our independence honorable to ourselves, place your weapons at the disposal of your Government. As you desire to strike terror to the hearts of those who are now plotting our subjugation and destruction, let it be known that the trusty Rifle and the death dealing Shot Gun, which you have hitherto so highly prized, are to take part in the next conflict, rendering, if possible, our victory more complete than was their defeat and route on the plains of Manassas.

My instructions contemplate that I shall send forth into our more populous regions, assistant agents, charged with the duty of collecting and forwarding to proper points, all the weapons thus obtained. It may be well here to state, that any one who wishes to do so, even though he be not visited by an Agent, can greatly facilitate this work by sending any guns he has, or can command, to my address, care of Robert Pitkin, No. 13 Camp street, New Orleans.

DR. REYNOLDS,

THE UNRIVALLED CANCER DOCTOR,

Would inform his friends and the public that he has rented and completely fitted up as an Infirmary, the spacious and elegant mansion, No. 19 Baronne street, between Canal and Common streets, where he will devote all his attention to the CURE of CANCERS in their worst forms, Scald Heads, White Swellings, and Ulcers of every description.

He refers, with much pleasure, to the annexed certificate of MADAM A. CHAPPELL, a well-known and highly respectable lady of this city:

[Copy of Certificate.]

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12, 1861.

This is to certify that the undersigned, a resident of the city of New Orleans for a number of years, and now residing at No. 232 Erato street, had been for a long time afflicted with a Cancer in her breast. In order to have it removed, the undersigned applied to Dr. Warren Stone, who operated on it three different times without effecting a cure. Subsequently, I applied to DR. REYNOLDS, under whose treatment the Cancer was effectually removed, and a perfect cure was made. I take this means of doing justice to Dr. Reynolds, and in order that others, similarly afflicted, may avail themselves of his valuable services.
