THE PROGRESS OF SCIENCE.
THIS DAY PUBLISHED BY
D. APPLETON & Co.,
No. 443 and 445 Broadway:
TWO IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC WORKS.
I.
HEAT, CONSIDERED AS A MODE OF MOTION.
Being a Course of Twelve Lectures delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain. By JOHN TYNDALL, F. R. S., &c. One Click vol. 12mo., with 101 Illustrations. Cloth, $2.
"The present volume appears at a very opportune moment. In nothing has the present generation witnessed such marvelous progress as in the elucidation of the nature, connections and laws of Forces. The Philosophy of Forces is now undergoing the same remarkable transition that Astronomy underwent in the age of Newton, and the new views have found a fit and able expositor in the gifted successor of Faraday, the young Professor of Natural Philosophy in the Royal Institution of England.
"The present work, published a few months since in London, and already translated into several languages, consists of twelve lectures delivered before the Royal Institution. The author, himself celebrated as a discoverer—an ingenious and fertile experimenter, a bold but disciplined thinker, a vivid, fiery, and imaginative speaker, and dealing with the most splendid generalizations and the grandest phenomena of nature, was listened to with the profoundest attention by crowds of the intellectual elite of London. The new views of the nature of heat, its connections with the other forms of force and the sub ime part it plays in the scheme of Nature, views which have but recently been adopted in the scientific world are here for the first time brought forward, and illustrated with a resource of experiment, a brilliancy of illustration, and a clearness and eloquence of style for which Prof. Tyndall is unequaled.
"The experiments are new and original, and so graphically described that they pass before the reader's eyes as if he were sitting in the lecture-room."—[Prof. E. L. Youmans.
"No one can read Dr. Tyndall's book without being impressed with the intensity of the author's conviction of the truth of the theory which it is his object to illustrate, or with the boldness with which he confronts the difficulties which he encounters. * * * * * *
Dr. Tyndall's is the first work in which the undulatory or mechanical theory of heat had been placed in a popular light, but we are sure that no one, however profound his knowledge upon the subject of which it treats, will rise from its perusal without a feeling that he has been both grappled and instructed in a high degree while reading its pages."—[London Reader.
"A marked and most encouraging feature of the more recent issues of the press, is the large number of works of a 'solid' and practical character. The one before us is among the most excellent and seasonable. It is made up of a series of brilliant lectures, delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain. The author attempts to bring the rudiments of a new philosophy within the reach of a person of ordinary intelligence and culture. He treats of heat in all its various and wonderful manifestations, its generation and consumption in mechanical processes; its conception as a molecular motion; its relation to ordinary matter; the constitution of the sun, possible sources of his energy, &c., &c. The author treats his subject with the hand of a master."—[Albany Evening Journal.
II
A SUPPLEMENT TO URE'S DICTIONARY OF ARTS, MANUFACTURES, AND MINES—Containing a clear exposition of their principles and practice. Edited by ROBERT HUNT, F. R. S., F. S. S. &c. One very large volume, royal 8vo. pp 1,096. Illustrated with 700 engravings. Cloth, $6; or in sheep binding, $7.
"This dictionary has long been considered a standard authority on the subjects of which it treats. The work, although announced as merely 'supplementary,' is really a continuation of and improvement on the original Treatise. It treats of much that was omitted in the latter; and corrects many of the errors which the progress of scientific discoveries has long brought to light. Its purpose is to furnish a work of reference on all points connected with the subjects in its design; to give the scientific student the most exact details of those manufactures which include the application of the discovery of physics or chemistry; to include as much science as may render the philosophy of manufactures at once intelligible, and enable the technical man to appreciate the value of abstract research. The work is a monument of industry and learning. Among the list of contributors are many of the savans of Great Britain. Many of the articles would, if published separately, form complete treatises on the subjects of which they treat. Altogether, it is the most valuable volume which has issued from the American press during a long time."—[Albany Evening Journal.

MESSRS. TICKNOR & FIELDS Publish This Day:
I.
HOSPITAL TRANSPORTS:
A MEMOIR OF THE EMBARKATION OF THE SICK AND WOUNDED FROM THE PENINSULA OF VIRGINIA, IN THE SUMMER OF 1862. Compiled and published at the request of the Sanitary Commission. 1 vol., 16mo. 75 cents.
This little volume is full of interest to the country, and contains such striking pictures as will serve to fasten upon the public mind those scenes and circumstances with which the Sanitary Service is associated, and which have become historical.
II.
AUSTIN ELLIOT.
A NEW NOVEL. By HENRY KINGSLEY, author of "Ravenshoe" and "Geoffry Hamlyn." 1 vol., 12mo. $1.25.
"Ravenshoe" and "Geoffry Hamlyn" have given to Mr. Kingsley a place of his own among novelists. Its intense interest of plot, rapidity and dash of action, and freshness and picturesqueness of style, no novels of the day exceed them. Of "Austin Elliot" The Saturday Review says:
"This novel is fully the best purpose of novels. It interests and amuses. The story is effective and impressive. The plot is new and not very improbable."

A TREAT FOR THE BOYS.
A New Book by the Author of "Father Brightshopes."
THE DRUMMER BOY.
A History of the Burnside Expedition in North Carolina, elegantly illustrated by Darley. A late member of the Sixth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers thus describes it:
"The newspapers swarm with anecdotes of brave little warriors, and the boys read and burn with enthusiasm, counting the months or years before they can be old enough to go. This book is just the one to put into their eager hands. It is in the main a very truthful book. Its young hero was modest and generous, full of confidence in himself and in his ability to conquer impulsive, he had never met. He found a wide difference between the camp and the fireside. Hitherto his virtuous efforts had been easy, for they won praise and esteem; now they were hard, for they met with ridicule or aversion. Sorely tempted and sadly failing, he was yet true to his blessed birth and training. He rose again; he struggled nobly upward from a downstream for go, alike to his Father and Mother; he built up the ruins of his boyish innocence a firm edifice of manly, Christian virtue."
Now ready at all the principal bookstores.

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, July 28, 1863.
ON the PETITION of BENJAMIN F. MILLER of New-York city, N. Y., praying for the extension of a patent granted to him the 23d October, 1849, for an improvement in the construction of Iron Bridges for seven years from the expiration of said patent, which takes place on the Twenty-third day of October, 1863, it is ordered that the said petition be heard at the Patent-Office, on Monday, the 5th day of October next, at 12 o'clock, m.; and all persons are notified to appear and show cause, if any they have, why said petition ought not to be granted.
Persons opposing the extension are required to file in the Patent-Office their objections, specifically set forth in writing, at least twenty days before the day of hearing; all testimony to be given either party to be used at the said hearing must be taken and transmitted in accordance with the rules of the office, which will be furnished on application.
The testimony in the case will be closed on the 21st of September, 1863; depositions and other papers relied upon as testimony must be filed in the office on or before the morning of that day; the arguments, if any, within ten days thereafter.
Ordered, also, that this notice be published in The Congressional Globe, Washington City, D. C., and The Tribune, New-York, N. Y., once a week for three successive weeks; the first of said publications to be at least sixty days previous to the day of hearing.
