A. MILTENBERGER & CO.,

Our Country to the Rescue.

HEADQUARTERS FOURTH COUPEE ARTILLERY,
Columbus, Ky., Feb. 12, 1862.

By reference to the authority hereto annexed, it will be seen that I am authorized to raise twelve hundred Infantry, and two hundred Cavalry, for the purpose of being incorporated into a separate command with the Fourth Coupee Battalion of Artillery, in order to form a Legion, that will have within itself the power to consult an enemy, or defend itself against an invading foe.

I propose that this Legion shall consist of the Polonia Coupee Battalion of 12 brass guns now in the field, two Battalions of Infantry, of six companies each, and two companies of Cavalry. The Battalion of Infantry will each elect one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, and fill the usual Staff appointments. The company officers will be elected by their separate commands. In addition to the usual pay, each volunteer will receive a bounty of fifty dollars. The Cavalry companies will furnish their own horses.

The necessary arms will be furnished to the several commands, as soon as they report at these Headquarters. An opportunity here presents itself to those who wish, if, to enter the Confederate service, and be at once united with a separate command in the seat of war. It gives an opportunity to brave and patriotic citizens to rally around the banner of their country, in defense of their wives and children, and their firesides.

In order to complete the Legion, at as early a day as possible, I will receive Company, or Squads, and will furnish them with the means any transportation to join me here, or wherever I may be ordered. Captains of companies will muster in their own commands, and report at these Headquarters.

Fellow citizens—I am not influenced to raise this additional force in consequence of the reverses our arms have recently sustained, as they are trivial in any aspect presented, but I believe it the duty of every true patriot to swell the forces of defense, and bring them to the field, to defend the cause of our country and our God. Our ability to do so is amply sufficient. One united effort on the part of our countrymen will drive back, or annihilate a tyrannical foe, and conquer an honorable and civilized peace.

It is not to be expected that all can leave for the seat of war, but those who from compulsion are compelled to remain behind, can assist me in the laudable enterprise; and to such I am compellated to appeal for their assistance, as my present command demands my attention in the field.
