BURT NORWOOD.

Dr. T. J. Pugh brought to the Eagle office yesterday two boll weevils from Edna, Jackson county. Dr. Pugh killed these weevils by an application of gasoline and glycerine, which he says, used as a spray, would be a dead shot for the pests. He thinks syrup would be better and cheaper than glycerine, and that both are harmless. He says the gasoline will get in its work before it evaporates.

John M. Caldwell gives notice that he will not be responsible for stock getting out of his pasture and being taken up while persons leave the gate open, and he desires to ask all who use the pasture to please be careful and close the gate. 59

Owing to the necessity for his departure in pursuit of the Free Baptist College work before next Sunday, Rev. A. M. Stewart announces preaching at that church Thursday night, followed by baptism. 57

The boll weevil question got a fresh impetus yesterday, owing to the discovery that they are working on the wild flowers in some localities with as much vigor and destruction as mark their attacks on the cotton.

Daylight yesterday morning revealed that the fire in the Stoddard building was quite as destructive as it seemed in the smoke and shadows of the night. Jake Wymola, when seen by the reporter, said he was unable to give an estimate of his losses, and did not know the origin of the fire. He had $2500 insurance on his stock and fixtures, and lost his fixtures and case goods. Beyond blackened walls, partially burned floors, smashed skylight in the photograph gallery above, and a general soaking from torrents of water, the building was uninjured. The damage to the building is estimated at $500, fully covered by insurance. The Eagle cannot refrain from again complimenting the fire boys on their good work and the waterworks people on the good pressure they gave. Without these favorable conditions, a great destruction of adjoining property would doubtless have resulted. Ed Pochila, who had recently moved his sausage stand to the C. W. & B. V. saloon, was also burned out.

John Windsor was here yesterday from Madison county and reported that the people of his part of the county are very much interested in the boll weevil question and will hold a meeting at Bundick Prairie Friday night to discuss the question and endeavor to devise means to get rid of the pest. Mr. Windsor got all the information he could on the subject including Prof. Mally's speeches.

Dean Hearne has returned from St. Louis, having graduated as an optician and watchmaker from the St. Louis Watchmaker's school, where he spent several months in study and practice. The Eagle congratulates Mr. Hearne on the pair of diplomas he has earned, having received one on each branch of work.
