WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Washington, March 21.—For Kansas: Forecast till 8 p. m. Thursday: Generally fair; colder Thursday morning and in eastern portion in the afternoon.

THEY are calling Coxey's Army of the Commonweal, the Army of the Commonwheel.

THE fall of Breckinridge is another instance of the truth that character is preferable to eloquence.

THE numerous revivals all over Kansas do not seem to have reached out and taken any Populists officials into the fold.

IF Walter Wellman writes a 3-column article before he starts for the north pole what may be expected when he comes back?

IT is fashionable to have appendicitis. Unfortunately, it is also fashionable to die of the surgical operation performed for it.

THE only people on the face of the globe who really want to fight and don't back down are the savages of Central Africa.

THE inventor of ice cream was a woman; this statement is not made with the intention of defeating the woman suffrage issue in Kansas.

RAVACHOL dead, Vaillant headless; Prendergast and Clyde Xanlox still lingering on. How much better they do these things in France.

SEVERAL hundred barrels of beer have just been dumped into the river at Tiffin, Ohio. This is another evidence that Ohio has lost her bearings.

IF this weather keeps up the March lion that is to go out next week will need horse clippers run over him to keep him from being sunstruck.

THERE is talk in Denver of having a lunacy commission to sit on Gov. Waite. Why a commission? Give the whole people a chance to sit on him.

THE further inquiry goes among the leading Populists of Kansas, the more it is apparent that Lewelling has been blue pencilled for governor. He's not in it with them.

WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT has bought the crown of France. Well, that's what crowns are coming to; falling into the hands of the descendants of garden truck peddlers.

GOVERNOR WAITE has been waiting all his life to explode so that the whole world might take note of his explosion; but like the firework that wouldn't work, he only made a loud fizz.

WE feel sorry for Ohio; so full of cranks, you know. A regular storm center for them. In Kansas the people are too hard headed and sensible to think of such a thing as the Coxey crankery.

INSTEAD of "a revolution has broken out in Michoacan" or "Sonora" or somewhere else, it will soon become a regular thing for the newspapers to announce a revolution in Colorado or New Jersey.

SOME people are affrighted at the thought of the government coining money, when they are perfectly indifferent to Tom, Dick and Harry "coining" it in the various forms of credit carried on by all the commercial institutions of the country.

IN order to suit New Yorkers, perhaps it would be a good idea to retire all the greenbacks, then burn up all the national bank notes and declare that nothing but diamonds and gold coin shall be legal tender. When you do your neighbor, be sure you "do" him good.

THE depression beginning in the high tariff year of 1873 lasted five years and millions of workingmen were then unemployed. This makes us think that the money question and our credit system have more to do with our present troubles than either high or low tariff.

STERLING BULLETIN: The letter on our first page from Hon. Ed. W. Hoch, of Marion, in reference to the Republican nomination for governor has the ring of honest and earnest conviction, and the sentiments expressed come with good grace from a man whose political life is an exponent of just such an ideal. The Republicans of Kansas are intelligent enough and wise enough and have sufficient judgment to choose whom they want for chief magistrate without the assistance of fixers and slate makers. There is enough material in Kansas for a thousand governors who would be preferable to certain ring candidates. Let the rank and file of the party speak their honest sentiments and the result will be a victory for decency and pure Republicanism.

THAT A CHANGE!

A few weeks ago the Republicans of Shawnee who favored Morrill for governor said: "We will hold our convention and elect the thirty-five delegates to the state convention and have the delegation solid for Morrill; it will give him a great start; Shawnee the largest delegation being for him, will pull into line a host of the others." That was the programme.

Now all is changed. The tremendous sentiment for Hoch in this county has almost literally scared the Morrill fixers to death. They are now scurrying here and there advocating a "divided delegation." They put it this way: "Let us be politic. Let us send up a strong delegation of good men uninstructed. Let about half of them be for Morrill, and about half for Hoch, a few for Martin and a few for Heizer." That's the Morrill programme now. They are afraid to fight for the Shawnee delegation. What weakness! What cowardice! They are doomed to defeat, and are simply struggling from out the overwhelming Hoch influence in this community. If they felt that there was even a ghost of a show here they would be in for a fight for the big Shawnee list of delegates.

Will Mr. Morrill's county send a divided delegation? Will the fixers advocate a divided delegation whenever they hope to win? No, indeed! They will advocate the above plan where they feel their weakness—and they feel it in this county.

Let the Republicans of Shawnee who desire to shake off the rule of ring and the fixers, make a straight-out fight for the entire Shawnee delegation. They will win; are bound to. It's in the air and the hearts of the people. Any other course is but yielding to the Morrill manipulators. Let Shawnee assert herself, show her strength, her manliness, her repudiation of bad methods. Don't weaken when the battle is practically won.

THE other day the Journal criticised the TOPEKA JOURNAL for intimating that Major Morrill was a liar when he said he had not made promises to any one. The TOPEKA JOURNAL replies what we said and adds: "The Capital has often misrepresented the STATE JOURNAL and the Lawrence paper can claim the same sentiment, but nobody will be fooled." There was no attempt to "fool" any one. You accused Morrill of being a common liar, and in doing so you degraded yourself in the eyes of every decent man in the state. If calling you to account for such disreputable work is an attempt to "fool the people" then you may rely upon it that the JOURNAL will fool them every time you make a fool break of the kind. —Lawrence Journal.

The above is taken of course from the Topeka Capital. Now just keep up that kind of business, gentlemen. You may think you are helping your candidate, Mr. Morrill, but you are doing the reverse. The STATE JOURNAL has made no such accusations against Mr. Morrill. We have simply said what Ed Hoch says in his letter, and what thousands and thousands of Republicans are today shouting over this whole state. Mr. Morrill represents the old gang, the old methods, the professional fixers. He is as clay in their hands. He is tied to them. He can not shake them off. There is no question but that the campaign up to Ed Hoch's announcement was full of deals and schemes, which disgusted and made tired the Republican masses. Men who have liked Morrill personally, have during the past ten days turned against his candidacy once and for all. They are leaving his forces by hundreds. Why? Simply because of the gang of fixers who surround Mr. Morrill and have been making all kinds of deals and schemes in the interest of their candidate. It time necessary that Mr. Morrill be a party direct, but the men who are manipulating his campaign are men who hesitate at nothing in the way of promises and deals. That's the way they run things. Ed Hoch is the man who represents the opposition to this whole disgusting business and that is the platform on which he will win.

KANSAS PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Peckinpaugh of Hiawatha might easily be mistaken for Plato's man.

The young men at Ft. Scott are blistering their hands laying out tennis courts and fixing up old ones.

The farmers are everywhere planting broom-corn in anticipation of the Republicans sweeping the state this fall.

Paola has a veterinary dentist. When you hear a horse laugh there it is simply to show the filing in his teeth.

So many Newton young men are saving up money to get married on that one of the banks has had to buy a new safe.

The Young Men's Republican club of the state university met last night to formulate plans for the coming campaign.

The Abilene W. C. T. U. at its meetings drinks enough tea to float a ship, while it discusses "non-alcoholic medication."

At a spelling school at Emporia all the men went down on terminagari, and naturally enough a woman showed them what it was.

When a party of McPherson girls gets together they giggle so much that they disturb the peace of the whole town, says the Republican.

Prisoners in the Wichita jail amuse themselves by crying whoa to farmers' teams as they pass by, and laugh to see the drivers fall over the dash board.

An Arkansas City man has solved the neighbor's chickens problem. Some of the hens lay in his barn, and he takes all the eggs to pay for the ruined flower beds.

So many door keys have been left at the Iola Register office which the owners have failed to claim that the editor uses them when times are gloomy to jingle in his pocket.

A barrel was discovered on the topmost point of one of the Baker university buildings the other day, and it looked for a time like there wouldn't be any sermons preached Sunday.

Leavenworth Times: Beer sales at the Soldiers' Home canteen average $100 daily, excepting on Mondays. This Monday falling off is supposed to be due to the chaplain's Sunday sermons.

A burglar at LaCygne had the tables turned on him. He took off his overcoat and shoes before entering a house, but was scared away and so closely pursued by the man of the house that he had to leave them.

Sterling Bulletin: The first sermon preached in Rice county was by Rev. F. J. Griffith on April 3, 1871, in a farm house, four and one-half miles northeast of where Chase now stands. He then formed the first Methodist circuit, embracing the whole county, and ministered to it while living upon and attending to his claim.

Osage county has elected its delegates to the Republican congressional convention which meets next Tuesday at Emporia to nominate a candidate for congress to succeed Hon. Charles Curtis.

The Osage county delegation will vote for the renomination of Curtis. The following are the delegates elected: J. G. Ellis, Osage City; E. O. Williams, Arvonia; J. Farley, Melvern; G. W. Carpenter, Carbondale; B. F. Irwin, Scranton; W. R. Davis, Peterton; J. L. Williams, Osage City; W. C. Chatfield, Burlingame; E. G. Pepp, Burlingame; A. H. Dean, Barclay; Eph Roberts, Peterton; Robert Hill, Osage City; E. W. Hanship, Osage City, and Solomon Bower, Lyndon.

THE EMPORIA CONVENTION

The Call for the Fourth District Issued by Chairman Troutman.

A Republican convention for the Fourth congressional district will be held in the city of Emporia on Tuesday, the 27th day of March, 1894, at 3 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Republican candidate for congress from said district.

The several counties in the district shall be entitled to the following representation (including an equal number of alternates) in said convention, namely:

Butler	14
Coffey	10
Chase	6
Greenwood	10
Lyon	14
Marion	12
Morris	8
Osage	14
Shawnee	36
Wabaunsee	8
Woodson	6
Total	138

Credentials for the delegates elected from each county should be sent as soon as said delegates are chosen to the secretary of the committee at Marion, Kansas.

JAMES A. TROUTMAN, Chairman.
JOHN B. GREER, Secretary.

Postoffice Safe Blown Open.

ALMA, Kan., March 21.—The postoffice at this place was entered yesterday morning about 3 o'clock, the safe blown open and about $400 in stamps and about $15 in currency taken. Not being satisfied with the booty secured at the postoffice they immediately went to the residence of Postmaster Fred Crafts and tried to enter, but were foiled in their attempt.

Neal Dow's Birthday.

PORTLAND, Maine, March 21.—The birthday of Neal Dow was celebrated yesterday. The old temperance reformer was unusually bright, and said he was in the best of health. Congratulatory telegrams in large numbers were received from all parts of the world, and a message of thanks was cabled by General Dow to the Exeter hall meeting in London.

Residence of Chief Harris Burned.

TAHLEQUAH, Ind. Ter., March 21.—The residence of the chief of the Cherokee nation was burned last night. Nothing was saved. Chief Harris barely escaped, with his little babe, in his night clothes, his hands being badly burned. Loss, $4,000; insurance, $2,000.

Edison Asks for a Receiver.

NEWARK, N. J., March 21.—Thomas A. Edison, who is engaged in a controversy with the directors of the Edison United Phonograph Company, yesterday applied for the appointment of a receiver for the company, alleging its insolvency.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Boston chamber of commerce has passed a resolution requesting the president to veto the seigniorage bill.

General Wallace and survivors Third division army of Tennessee are to march over their route at Shiloh to dispute charges made in history.

The New York chamber of commerce has adopted resolutions urging President Cleveland to withhold his signature from the seigniorage coinage bill.

In four days seven and one-half inches of rain has fallen near Camden, Ark. The rivers and creeks are very high and washouts have suspended railway traffic.

A west-bound freight train on the Texas Pacific was wrecked near Santa. Brakeman James Magill was killed. Engineer W. S. Criss was fatally and Fireman Youngblood seriously injured.

The basis of Democratic unification in Texas has been accepted by Governor Hogg and Judge Clark. The main point at issue was the indorsement of Cleveland and the administration, which the Hogg Democrats conceded.

Representative De Armond has introduced a resolution in the house, amending the constitution so as to empower the president to veto any one or more items of an appropriation bill.

TRIED TO KILL HIM.

Madeline Tried to Shoot the Colonel.

Completely Broke Down in Court Yesterday.

GAVE UP HER BABIES

And Placed Them in a Coffin for His Sake.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—When the shrill voice of the bailiff cried adjournment in the bare old circuit court room yesterday afternoon, the veiled face of Madeline Pollard was buried in her arms on the rough board top of the witness box behind which she had sat for three days. The only sound which had broken such a silence as seldom falls on a court room was a sobbing that seemed to come from her inmost heart. Three jurors were fumbling in an uncertain way with their handkerchiefs; the judge was staring toward the ceiling abstractedly. Even the lawyer whose cross-examination had led up to this passage, wore a look of unwonted gravity on his fatherly, benevolent face, with something remarkably like moisture about his eyes. If there was a man among the curious hundred in the court room unmoved, he was inconspicuous in the majority of sympathetic faces. Madeline Pollard had been telling the most tragic episode of her unhappy life.

During the cross-examination late yesterday afternoon Miss Pollard was asked if there had been any conversation between her and Mr. Breckinridge in regard to the marriage of the defendant to Mrs. Wing.

"I asked him if it was possible that he was paying attentions to Mrs. Wing, as I had heard. I knew she was a worthy woman, and I knew she had stopped with him twelve days and nights, which I could not believe a worthy woman would do. Then he maligned her; maligned her in such terms that I could not believe he intended to marry her. He said he had been engaged to her when he was in the army, and would never marry her."

"Did you stop with Colonel Breckinridge at the Hoffman house, New York, registering as his daughter?"

"I did, May 17."

"Did you occupy a room next to his?"

"I did."

"Did you threaten to shoot him in that room?"

Very faintly: "I did."

For the first time during the case Judge Jere Wilson warmed up to the old time fire which had been expected of him and eagerly anticipated. He faced Mr. Butterworth putting to him categorically question after question designed to bring out the fact of Colonel Breckinridge's secret marriage in New York. This marriage was admitted by Mr. Butterworth who said it was not in question.

The story of the attempt to shoot Colonel Breckinridge in New York was told by Miss Pollard as follows: (This was the day following his secret marriage to Mrs. Wing.) On Saturday he came to tell me with a great flush of triumph that a company had been formed to infuse Mr. Whitney and Mr. Fairchild and all the prominent capitalists with a capital of $30,000,000 for some sort of railroad scheme. He was to represent them, and might have to go to Europe right away, went out, and came back next day near noon, saying, 'Madeline, how soon can you get ready to marry me? I may have to leave tomorrow for Europe, suddenly.' I said, 'Within, I can marry you right away.' After he had gone again, I found a revolver in his traveling sack and it awakened my suspicions because he had told me so many lies. I had telephoned to Mr. Whitney and Mr. Fairchild, and found that they had not seen him and did not expect to; had found there was no private car on the track where he said there was one waiting for him. He acted so queer, too."

Mr. Butterworth: "Did he act as though he was in his right mind?"

"As much so as he has any day since then." [Laughter.]

Continuing: "He acted so queerly, my suspicions were aroused. I am not surprised now, considering the position he was in. I was in a delicate condition then. I said: 'Are you going to keep your solemn promise to marry me? If not, I'm going to shoot you and myself with the revolver I found in your bag.' He said: 'My darling, I am going to marry you, and that on the last of this month.' After that he wrote me a solemn letter, renewing his promise to marry me."

Mr. Butterworth, interrupting: "Have you that letter?"

Miss Pollard raised her arm impressively, while every man in court leaped forward to catch her reply.

"He took it away from me," she said, "on May 17, with the vilest, vilest lie."

After the letter was written, and before May 17, Miss Pollard continued, Colonel Breckinridge had sent her flowers, had talked to her of their future married life together.

Miss Pollard then related the visit to Major Moore, chief of police of Washington, which did not differ from Major Moore's testimony.

Mr. Butterworth then asked: "Had not Colonel Breckinridge often endeavored to break off the relations with you, and had he not promised to give you $125 a month if you would go to Germany?"

All this she denied, declaring he had importuned her to stay by protestations of his love, which she wished the court could have heard.

Mr. Butterworth asked if it had not always been in her power to ruin Colonel Breckinridge, to which she replied with emphasis: "I had that power, but I never made a threat to him in my life. I never pressed a thumb screw on him until he had it in his power to keep his promise to me and broke it."

When she was asked what were the things which Colonel Breckinridge

LOUIS KOSSUTH DEAD.

Hungary's Patriot—Statesman Expires in His Son's Arms—Honors by the Diet.

TURIN, March 21.—Louis Kossuth died at 10:55 o'clock last evening. The end was extremely painful. He showed signs of consciousness until the last. He expired in the arms of his son and died pressing the hand of the Hungarian Deputy,

Louis Kossuth.

Karolyi. The members of his family and a few of his intimate friends stood around the bedside of the dying patriot. Nothing has yet been settled in regard to the details of the funeral. The municipal authorities of this city have offered the family to allow the remains to be buried in the Pantheon here.

LONDON, March 21.—A dispatch to the Standard from Buda Pesth says that the Hungarian government and the members of the National party in the Diet have arrived at an agreement regarding the honors that will be shown Louis Kossuth, now that he is dead. By reaching this agreement the fall of the ministry is averted.

TO BLOW UP THE KING.

Conspiracy to Murder the King of Corea Discovered.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—The Japan Weekly Gazette of March 3 says: Corea appears to be constantly threatened with disturbances. The latest is a bold attempt to blow up the king and his ancestors. The conspirators had prepared to destroy the central government office on February 8, the Corean New Year's day, when the king and ministers would appear there in state, but were betrayed by one of the conspirators.

Twenty-seven of the plotters were arrested, including the informant, and it is proposed to put them to death at once and expose their heads to public view.

PRENDERGAST HANGS.

Nothing But a Reprieve From the Governor Can Save Him.

OTTAWA, Ills., March 21.—The motion for a supersedeas in the case of Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison of Chicago, was today denied by the supreme court.

With the receipt of the news from the supreme court there was a rush of reporters to the jail. One at a time they were allowed to see the assassin.

"I am in a state of grace," he said, quietly. "I need no more spiritual advice and I do not want to see a priest."

"Are you surprised?"

"Of course I am. I was confident that owing to the circumstances I would obtain the supersedeas. I am very disappointed."

"What will be your next move?"

"I want to see my lawyers."

Prendergast showed emotion, but he was quiet and without demonstration.

The only hope for Prendergast now is a reprieve by the governor, but as he is now in Mississippi and the lieutenant governor is not at the state capitol, the assassin's chances for life beyond Good Friday are very slim.

DEATH OF COL. SELLS.

An Honored Citizen Passes Away at 8:45 Last Evening.

HIS END WAS NOT UNEXPECTED.

At his home in the Chesterfield hotel, William Allen Sells Tuesday night at 8:45. The end was not unexpected as his health has been poor all winter, and his condition during the past week has been such as to convince his relatives and friends that the end was a matter of only a short time.

Mr. Sells suffered a relapse last Friday night, and all day yesterday he had been sinking. Mrs. Sells and Mr. and Mrs. William Sells, Jr., were at his bedside when he passed away and he died in his son's arms. The end was peaceful and came without a struggle.

A complication of Bright's disease and pneumonia was the cause of Mr. Sells' death. It is said that the exposure and hardships of the circus life, which he followed for more than a dozen years, were responsible for the failure of his health. Dr. Mulvane, who has been his family physician for years, attended Mr. Sells up to a week before his death. He gave them no hope of recovery, and Dr. Menninger and Dr. Righter were called into consultation, but they pronounced Mr. Sells past all medical aid.

Mr. Sells was less than 58 years of age, having been born September 24, 1836, at Cleveland, Ohio. He was the second of eleven children, three brothers and seven sisters. In 1863 Mr. Sells became convinced that fortunes were to be made in the circus business. He induced his brothers, Ephraim, Peter and Lewis, to embark in the enterprise, which resulted in the celebrated Sells Brothers' circus, a branch of which is still in existence. He was the most active worker of the four brothers in the success of the enterprise, and the result was that after twelve years he had acquired an independent fortune.

In 1881 Col. Sells moved to Topeka. He purchased the old Tefft house and transferred it into the Windsor hotel (now the National.) Mr. Sells then retired to his farm south of the city and lived there for two years. In 1883 he built the Chesterfield hotel, which has since been his home. Col. Sells has built several other handsome blocks in the city and has been a public spirited and progressive citizen.

Col. Sells leaves but one child, William, or "Willie" as he is commonly called here in Topeka where he has grown up. He was devoted to his wife, son and little grand son and his home life was remarkable for its simplicity and happiness. He never allowed the great cares of his business to enter there. As a business man Col. Sells was a hard worker and a "hustler" as the large fortune he has accumulated bears testimony, but no one ever cast a suspicion of unfairness on his business transactions.

Mr. Sells was appointed chairman of the board of police commissioners last spring by Governor Lewelling, but with that exception he never held nor sought office. Mr. Sells was a member of no church, although he had been brought up in the Presbyterian faith at Columbus, O. The only organization of which he was a member was the St. Ausnias club. It is probable that the pall-bearers will be chosen from his old friends in this organization.

His son, William Sells Jr., to whom the larger part of the fortune will fall, has followed in his father's footsteps by adopting the circus profession.

The time of the funeral has not been set. It will be deferred until the relatives at Columbus arrive in the city. Each of Mr. Sells' brothers will attend, and also several sisters. His sisters are: Mrs. E. E. West of Kansas City, Kas.; Mrs. Willis Cobb, of Columbus; Mrs. J. M. Holt, Mrs. B. F. Greene, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Colby, all of Columbus. Col. Sells' mother, now 81 years of age, still lives at Columbus, but will be unable to make the journey to Topeka.

COL. SELLS' FORTUNE.

He Estimated His Wealth at $800,000, Some Time Before His Death.

Col. W. A. Sells was one of the wealthiest men in Topeka, his estate being valued at $800,000. He considered himself worth that amount. He owned nine farms in Shawnee county, and was the owner of a ranch of 4,000 acres in Kearney county. Among the pieces of Topeka property owned by him at the time of his death are: The Chesterfield hotel; the two story stone front on the opposite side of Kansas avenue; the old John P. Cole corner, at Second and Kansas avenue; several lots on Kansas avenue between the Chesterfield and Second street; the old Sells residence on Tenth street, three doors west of Hobart's drug store. Col. Sells also owned the large residence at the corner of Fourth and Topeka avenue, ten lots in Throop's addition and several other smaller residences in other parts of the city.

He had other property, both real and personal, which brings the value of the estate up to the figures given by himself, $800,000.

HARVARD-YALE UMPIRE.

Nick Young Will Appoint Him Without the Student's Knowledge.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 21.—Under an agreement entered into by the representatives of Havard and Yale at a recent baseball conference at Springfield, an umpire will be appointed by Mr. N. E. Young, president of the National league for each champion game between the collegians during the summer.

His nominee will be then approved by a graduate from each college. The under graduate managers and the players are not to know who the umpire is until he puts in an appearance upon the field.

BEER OVER THE BAR

Must Be Sold To a Colored Man in New York State.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 21.—Thomas Fortune, the colored speaker, has won his case against Saloon-keeper James Trainor, of New York, before the court of appeals. Trainor had refused to sell Fortune a glass of beer over his bar.

Fortune was ejected after some argument, sued Trainor and was awarded $1,015.24 damages and costs. Trainor appealed with the above result.
