CHASTELARD.
A TRAGEDY. By ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE, author of "Atalanta in Calydon." 1 vol., 16mo. Price, $1 50.
OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
"The poem will live—and be read with Schiller's Mary Queen of Scots, and by blending this, and that picture some truer view may be gained of the probable character of that extraordinary woman."—[N. H. Palladium.
"A powerful drama, and, in the delineation of Mary Queen of Scots, gives probably the truest and closest representation of that evil woman which can be found in history or literature."—[Boston Transcript
"A poem of unmistakable power and beauty."—[Pittsburgh Chronicle.
"The poem is full of passion, intensest love and hate, something too intense at times; and the verse is nervous, fiery, smooth or rough as the speaker is, and so choicely worded as to please the most cultivated ear. The simple plot will carry the reader quickly through it, but he will turn again to linger over the fine passages which crown it."—[Hartford Press.
"Strength rather than delicacy is his forte—his verse is ragged rather than smooth; and he has more facility with images of horror than beauty. His thoughts are original, his range wide—he speaks the language of passion rather than of culture. The book is the most notable of its kind that has appeared for some time."—[Boston Post.

A SEQUEL to ALFRED HAGART'S HOUSEHOLD.—Messrs. TICKNOR & FIELDS publish this day:
MISS OONA McQUARRIE. A SEQUEL to ALFRED HAGART'S HOUSEHOLD. By ALEXANDER SMITH, Author of "A Life Drama," etc. 1 vol., 16mo. $1.
The story of "Alfred Hagart's Household," to which this new volume is a sequel, was received with general and warm commendation. As a simple story of domestic life, abounding in skilful sketches of character, bits of eloquent description and delicate humor, it has few equals in fiction. A few notices from leading journals are appended:
"'Alfred Hagart's Household' is a fragment—but it is a fragment of rare loveliness and significance."—[The Albion.
"A simple, charming sketch, such as a poetic and cultivated scholar can make of real, not imagined, people and lives."—[Hartford Press.
"It is full of wise maxims, quaintly uttered, and cannot fail to leave a healthy impression on the mind of every reader."—[National Intelligencer.
"A simple delineation of household life. It contains some exquisite touches of pathos, and is a pure, well-written, and altogether very readable book."—[The Methodist.

THE PILGRIM'S WALLET:
OR, SCRAPS OF TRAVEL GATHERED IN ENGLAND, FRANCE, AND GERMANY.
BY GILBERT HAVEN.
1 vol., 16 mo., $1 75.
"We do not know Gilbert Haven, further than that he is a distinguished clerical member of the Methodist denomination. Perhaps we ought to be ashamed of our ignorance; but we certainly are not ashamed of our admiration for a man who can go to Europe see that country and its inhabitants in a novel light, say little or nothing that has been said before, and make a fascinating story of his experience, full of wit, pleasant description, enjoyable analyses of life and manners."—[Hartford Post.
"Mr. Haven has hitherto produced nothing so sustained in interest from beginning to end as this volume. We doubt whether any book of travels by an American pen has ever been issued more brilliant in thought and style."—[Dr. Whedon in Christian Advocate.
