AN IMPROMPTU.

Shall I wish thee back again,
To this world of care and pain?—
Back from out that blest abode—
Back from Heaven!—back from God!
Call that voice from Heaven's own choir,
To fill this lone heart's poor desire?
Call that pure soul freed from pain,
Back to this "vale of tears" again!
Forgive us earthly thought, O God!
Aid me, thy child, to "kiss the rod;"
And calm my life, or tempest driven,—
O! teach me this—thy love is Heaven!

CASPER WILLIAMS.

BENNINGTON, VT., Aug. 20, 1859.

Anecdote of Washington.

In 1754 he was stationed at Alexandria with his regiment, the only one in the colony, of which he was the colonel. There happened at that time to be an election in Alexandria for members of the Assembly, and the ballot ran high between Col. George Fairfax and Mr. William Elgey. Washington was on the side of Fairfax, and Mr. Payne headed the friends of Elgey. In the course of the contest Washington grew very warm (for his passions naturally were powerful, though a wise regard to duty soon reduced them to proper command,) and unluckily said something to Mr. Payne, who elevated his shillelah, and with a blow extended our hero on the ground. News was soon carried to the regiment that their colonel was murdered by the mob. On the passions of the soldiers, who doted upon their commander, such a report fell at once like a flash of lightning on a magazine of gunpowder. In a moment the whole regiment was under arms and in rapid motion toward the town, burning for vengeance. During this time Washington had been liberally plied with cold water, acids and volatiles; and happily for Mr. Payne and his party, was so far recovered as to go out and meet his enraged soldiers, who crowded around him with faces of honest joy to see him alive again. After thanking them for such evidence of their attachment to him, he assured them that he was not hurt in the least, and begged them to return peacably to their barracks. As for himself, he went to his room, generously chastising his passion, which had just struck but a spark that had like to have thrown the whole town in a flame; and feeling himself the aggressor, he resolved to make Mr. Payne the honorable reparation of asking his pardon.—No sooner had he made this heroic resolution, than he recovered that delicious gayety which ever accompanies good purposes in a virtuous mind, went to a ball that night, and behaved as pleasantly as though nothing had happened. Early the next morning he wrote a polite note of invitation to meet him at the inn. Payne took it for a challenge, and repaired to the place in full expectation of smelling gunpowder. Washington rose to meet him, and offering his hand with a smile, began: "Mr. Payne, to err sometimes is nature; to rectify error is always glory. I believe I was wrong in the affair of yesterday. You have had, I think, some satisfaction, and if you deem that sufficient, there is my hand; let us become friends."

An act of such sublime virtue produced its proper effect upon the mind of Mr. Payne, who from that moment became the most enthusiastic friend and admirer of Washington.

Mary, Queen of Scots.

M. de Lamatine's "Mary Stuart" has been published from the original unpublished sheets. Here is his portrait of the Queen upon the foundation of the old chronicler, Pierre de Brantome:

But love, or even poetry, were powerless to depict her at this progresive period of her life; to paint that beauty which consisted less in her form than in her fascinating grace; youth, heart, genius, passion, still shaded by the deep melancholy of a farewell; the tall and slender shape, the harmonious movement, the round and flexible throat, the oval face, the fire of her look, the grace of her lips, her Saxon fairness, the pale beauty of her hair, the light she shed around here wherever she went; the night, the void, the desert she left behind when no longer present; the attraction resembling witchcraft which unconsciously emanated from her, and which drew towards her, as it were, a current of eyes, of desires, of hearts; the tone of her voice, which once heard, resounded forever in the ear of the listener, and of dreamy poesy, which distinguished this youthful Cleopatra of Scotland.

The writer is sixty six years old.

The Editor Ain't Dead Yet.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal gives the following account of "the death" of James Sparks M'Cormick:

"A few years ago, one James Sparks M'Cormick—an "Irish patient" and a writer of some ability, though a great demagogue in a small way—was prominent among the journalists of Cincinnati. He started the Weekly Citizen in '51 and '52 was proprietor of the Daily Sun, and before coming West had been, according to his statements, attached to the staff of the New York Herald. Some months since, intelligence of his death, while en route for Europe, was received in Cincinnati, and some, at least, of the papers of that city announced his disease in terms pathetic and complimentary. His life proved to be insured for $10,000 in Liverpool, for the benefit of his children; and the money, I think, was obtained by his executors and placed in trust for them. But in the meantime, almost before his funeral baked meats are over, Mr. James Sparks M'Cormick has "turned up" in Texas engaged in sheep raising, in connection with an old and confidential friend from Cincinnati!"

THE BANEFUL EFFECTS OF TOBACCO.—The terrible ravages which tobacco is making on the bodies and minds of the young, seems to be attracting the attention of medical men in various parts of the world. In a pamphlet just issued by Dr. Seymour, of London, on private lunatic asylums, and the causes of insanity of late years, the Doctor denounces with emphasis, as one of the producing causes, the immoderate smoking indulged in by boys and young men at the universities and "larger schools, now called colleges." The remarks of the Doctor are as applicable to the youths of this country as those of Europe. No one conversant with diseases can doubt that excessive smoking, especially in the case of young people, must be highly injurious to both mind and body. Its effect is to depress the circulation; the heart becomes weak, irregular in its action, and the pulse is scarcely felt. The victim becomes irresolute and nervous; his appetite fails, and his mind fills with imaginary evils. This may continue for years, but at length the smoker dies off suddenly; then examination has shown that the muscular structure of the heart is imperfect in its action; the left side is thin, and in some cases, in which sudden death has occurred, there has been found little more than a strip of muscular fibre left on that side.

A MATRIMONIAL FAILURE.—The Utica Herald tells an astonishing story, in effect as follows:

"Mr. Field is a clergyman in the village of Munsville, N. Y. For three or four weeks it was reported that he was to marry himself to a lady, perhaps young, a member of his church. All this time was spent by the lady in active preparation for the nuptials; dresses were made, cake and pastry were prepared; the day was fixed for the wedding, which rumor said was to take place on a Sunday, in the meeting-house. There was no wedding under that roof, but the Rev Mr. Field preached a sermon which caused the ears of his crowded congregation to tingle. He chose for his text the passage, "But they thought to do me mischief," and took advantage of the occasion to administer the discipline of wholesome truth to the tattlers of the village of Munsville. There is a mystery ranging about the affair; the clergyman declares that he never gave the slightest ground for a matrimonial idea to blossom in the mind of the disappointed spinster. The better informed portion of the population believe that the whole thing was a trap to catch a sunbeam, or what would have been a sunbeam in the vacant life of Miss Blank."

SOME FISH.—The Rochester Union speaks of a muscalonge taken at Clayton, weighing 51½ pounds, and measuring 4 feet and 7 inches in length!

Douglas Defeated Again.

How the Lecomptonites circumvented the Douglas men in this city, and secured an almost unanimous delegation to the State Convention, our readers all know, and they may also know that the circumstance has attracted no little attention abroad as an indication of the set of the political current. We have had, and probably should continue to have, some doubts as to the value of this indication, if it were not for an exactly similar demonstration in Terre Haute. At the County Convention that place last week, Mr. J. E. Cary, whose support of John G. Davis and Douglas made him a conspicuous mark for Lecomptonite abuse, was beaten for Auditor even worse than his compatriot A. H. Brown was beaten here. Now when it is considered that he was the head and front of the Douglas secession last year in the Seventh District, a most ardent and untiring popular sovereignty man, and that the Seventh District is the strongest Douglas District in the State, this defeat really lends some confirmation to the opinion that the Lecomptonites are going to carry the organization with them this year, as they did last.—Indianapolis Journal.

☞ Broderick, of California, is still pouring hot shot into the ranks of the Pro-Slavery Democracy. His remarks concerning Gwin are remarkable for their boldness. A correspondent of the Missouri Democrat says:

"At Yreka, in the extreme north, on the 26th, Broderick and J. C. McKibben were escorted into town from the Forest House, six miles distant. The escort numbered over one hundred persons, in carriages and on horseback. The city was full of people, and it is agreed on all hands that the meeting was the largest ever held there. This is the general reception of Broderick everywhere. At Quincy, in Plumas county, he said to the crowd:

I here accuse Dr Gwin of having been the PAID AGENT of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. (tumultuous cheering, and cries of "That's true!" and "By G—d we all know it!")

I also accuse him of having supported the Thirty Million Secret Fund Bill, when he knew that it was the intention to use that money as a corruption fund, in order to carry the next Presidential election; (great shouting, and cries of "Split on him! split on him!") to elect "Jimmy Buchanan" or Mr Slidell, of Louisiana, with whom he co-operated in the United States Senate.

These are the right sort of tactics to please miners and others, and will gain thousands of votes for Broderick's party. Truly, the Lecomptonites have a smart set of candidates.—Their candidate for Governor is Milton S. Latham, who looks to an election in 1851 to the U. S. Senate. He stands charged with having attempted to bribe a Judge of the Supreme Court, and to cheat his clients by the same act. The charge has been made repeatedly, and all the details of the transaction given, and the parties cognizant of the facts have been called upon to come out and deny it, if they can. They are mostly his friends, and of course would, if they could, come at once to his rescue. But as yet they answer never a word.

☞ A man by the name of D. A. Rush was arrested in Louisville a few days ago, for horse stealing, and on his person was found the oath taken by the gang of thieves and murderers, to which he belonged. The following is a verbatim copy. It is most horrible:

In the name of the Power above, and in the name of all his host of angels and ministers, whom I invoke to bear record of my words, in the name of him below, whom we fear and whom we hate, I swear.

I swear that from this moment to the end of my life, I devote myself, without any reserve to the fancy reform, that I will never leave it without the permission of my Captain; that in sickness or in health, in adversity or in prosperity, I will never leave, quit or resign without the consent of my Captain; I will obey my Captain, even unto death, in all transactions; I will be bound by the laws he has established, and in all my I will in strict conformity with the regulations he has made; and I invoke these powers, in the event of my failing to fulfil this, my oath, to shower down all the to which human nature is susceptible; may all the maladies in which lingering wretches who crave to die still exist, be my fate; may my days be restless, my nights sleepless, the pains and agonies of hell goad me on to desperation, my limbs wither from my body, my body paralyzed with sickness, my breath tainted, my eye balls sightless, my soul damned, if I fail in anything I have sworn; but all I implore that power to shower upon me ten thousand times the miseries that mortals ever imagined, if I, by word, thought, deed or design betray one of my brethren of Captain, or raise my hand or voice to witness against him in a court of justice, may my tongue rot from its root to the lip, and leave me a speechless liar, if I am in this guilty; but I swear to state all that is false, unless the truth can benefit the prisoner; to this all and every part I swear; to every word and sentence I swear, by him above, by him below, by all that rules, by all that serves, I swear.

RE-SUSCITATING THE DROWNED.—At this season of the year it may be well to republish the following rules for resuscitating the recently drowned:

1. The moment the drowned person is taken out of the water, let the body be turned upon its face, with one of the wrists placed under the forehead.
2. Let the body remain in this position ten or twelve seconds.
3. Then turn the body over on its right side rather more than half way over; then turn immediately back on the face; then rotating it briskly, completing fifteen or twenty rotations per minute.
4. Rub the limbs upward with the hand or handkerchief, until they are thoroughly dry and warm; and then sprinkle cold water on the face.
5. Use irritation with snuff or a feather to the nostrils.
6. Let all the wet clothes be removed and dry ones substituted.
7. Let the limbs and body be slapped with the hand briskly.
8. As soon as the surface is warm, let it be sprinkled with cold water, immediately using the friction upward.

Extracts.

LISTENING TO EVIL REPORTS.—The longer I live, the more I feel the importance of adhering to the rules which I have laid down for myself in relation to such matters:

1. To hear as little as possible of whatever is to the prejudice of others.
2. To believe nothing of the kind until I am absolutely forced to it.
3. Never to drink into the spirit of one who circulates an ill report.
4. Always to moderate as far as I can, the unkindness which is expressed toward others.
5. Always to believe that if the other side was heard, a very different account would be given of the matter.—Cecil's Life of Simeon.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME OF IOWA.—The following is taken from an old newspaper. "Toolesborough is situated just above the mouth of the Iowa river. By the way, do you know the signification of the word Iowa? Presuming that at least some of your readers may not, I will tell you. Many years ago, perhaps, kind reader, before you or I were born, and before the 'pale faces' had taken possession of the fertile lands west of the Mississippi, one converted them to his comfort and profit, a tribe of Indians encamped on the bluff overlooking the Iowa river, where now stands the town of Toolesborough. The chief of the tribe coming in view of the river unexpectedly, was struck with rapture at the surrounding grand and picturesque beauty, and in his native dialect, exclaimed—'Iowa—Iowa'—(beautiful, beautiful.)

"Hence the name of the river, and afterwards to all that portion of the Louisiana purchase now forming the State of Iowa."

☞ A Virginia negro boy, who professed to be dreadfully alarmed at the cholera took to the woods to avoid it, and was there found asleep. Being asked why he went to the woods he said:

'To pray.'

'But,' said the overseer, 'how was it you went to sleep?'

'Don't know, massa, zactly, responded the boy, 'but I suspect I must have over prayed myself!'

Fever and Ague.

from which [illegible] the globe, in the [illegible] the system [illegible] of vegetable [illegible]. This vitiation, it evolves by the action of the sun's rays, and then with the water evaporated. While the sun is below the horizon, the vitiated matter rests in the lungs, and in the morning, when the sun rises, and the lungs are expanded, there it acts as an irritating poison to the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. Are they become torpid and fail to secrete properly the bile from the blood, then the bile accumulates in the circulation, and produces violent constitutional disorder. The stomach, the kidneys, and the bowels sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the instinct of your organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious poison, concentrates the whole blood of the body in its external excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with concentrated violence. This is the Chill. But in this effort it fails. Then the Fever ensues, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through the other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the five or seven stages of Fever and Ague. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not promptly removed.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and strengthens the liver to expel it from the system. And, as the chill and all those forms of this afflicting disorder are perfect cleansings, and thus keeps the system free from the attacks; keeps the system free from the disease, though exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from, the great variety of affections which are induced by this pestilential influence, such as Remittent Fever (Chill Fever), Bloody or Mucous Ague, Periodical Hemorrhage of Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spleen, Hysterics, Colic, Dropsies, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, full of water, when nothing from this cause, will be found to remove or lessen the intolerable pain, like "Ayer's Ague Cure" removes the cause of it, a prompt cure ensues, and even the disease. This accomplishes by strengthening the excretories to expel the virus from the system, and those organs by degrees become healthy if do this their office in a sure and easy manner. Hence arises what we term acclimation. They may accomplish the same end, or cure this disease, by a long course, or a sacrificial one, and expel the poison, which "Ayer's Cure" does it at once, and with safety. We have no reason to believe this fever and ague is a more remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the malarious infection, than any other which has been discovered, and is a great and important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.

JOY AND GLADNESS!

HAS BEEN BROUGHT TO

MANY HOMES AND FAMILIES.

SINCE THE INTRODUCTION OF THAT World Renowned medicine, Dr. MANN'S AGUE BALSAM, in the Western country, and especially the past season—it has brought health and happiness into more families than any remedy on record. The question would naturally arise—why is this? Because it does in all cases, in the shortest time, arrest chills, fever and ague in its worst forms, and in all cases performs a speedy cure. Persons residing in malarious districts using this Balsam, occasionally during the sickly season, need have no fears of an attack of ague. It is therefore highly recommended as a sure preventative, if used in small doses daily during that particular time when this class of diseases prevail. For want of space we can only offer a few of the many evidences in its favor.

BUCYRUS, O., Feb. 26, 1858.

DR. S. K. MANN, GALION, OHIO—GENTS:—We are at a loss to find language sufficient to portray to the public the great esteem in which your celebrated Ague Balsam is held in this community. The fact is it never fails to cure ague in its worst forms and we can sell nothing else. Yours, &c.,

HOLBERT & TAYLOR, Druggists.

CORYDON, Mich., Oct. 20, 1858.

Messrs. S. K. Mann & Co.—Gents: Having procured a supply of your Ague Balsam and testing it thoroughly in many severe cases of long standing, where all the popular remedies of the day had failed, I found in all cases your Balsam effected a safe and speedy cure. It is just the medicine we want here in the South. Yours,

JOSEPH BUCHANAN, Druggist.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23, 1858.

Messrs S. K. Mann & Co.—Gents, I have at our house, in St. Louis, sold your Ague Balsam some three years, and have carefully observed its effects, and in candor must say, I do not believe it has an equal in the history of medicine; for, to my personal knowledge, it cures permanently every case, and I have known it used after all other remedies had failed, with the same happy result. I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the greatest discovery ever made in intermittent remedies, and a perfect triumph over chills, fever and ague.

Truly yours,

Of which we will have

KIRBY'S COMBINED AMERICAN HARVESTER—which for lightness of draft, cheapness and great durability is unsurpassed by any machine in use. Upon examination any one will see at a glance the many advantages claimed for it.

RUGG'S SQUARE DRAFT REAPER AND MOWER—Has been fully tested in this market and receives the warmest recommendations from all who have used them. All side draft is obviated as the cutting is done in front of the horses.

DAVIS' COMBINED HARVISTER—Will give entire satisfaction to all who may purchase. You cannot choke it—is light draft and easily adjusted to read or mow and does either to the most successful manner.

REED'S & MANNY'S—Combined machines are too well known in this community to need more than a notice of the fact that we have sold of these, for three years past, as many as of any other and that all have proved entirely satisfactory.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION,

Philadelphia.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Purulent and Epidemic diseases.

The Howard Association, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Secret diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, an Honorable Act worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases, in all their forms, and to give Medical Advice Gratis, to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition, (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.,) and in cases of extreme poverty, to furnish Medicines Free of Charge. It is needless to add that the Association commands the highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The directors of the Association, in their annual Report upon the treatment of Secret diseases, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of their Surgeons in the cure of Spermatorrhoea, Seminal Weakness, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Syphilis, the Vice of Onanism or Self-Abuse, Diseases of the Kidneys and bladder, &c., and order a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves, with renewed zeal, to this very important but much despised cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhoea, or Seminal Weakness, the Vice of Onanism, Marital Excesses, or Self-Abuse and other Diseases of the Sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon, will be sent by mail (in a sealed letter), FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of Two Stamps for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of Sexual diseases, diet, &c., are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution, and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last year, are of great value.

Address, for Report of treatment, DR. J. SKILLIN HOUGHTON, Acting Surgeon, Howard Association, No. 2 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

By order of the Directors.
EZRA D. HEARTWELL, President.
GEO. FAIRCHILD, Secretary.
