LATEST FROM SAMOA.

Return of the Deposed King Malietoa.

A Samoan Times extra of Aug. 12 describes the return of King Malietoa from exile, in the Germany on Friday, 2d inst., to the Mayor and Consuls, after one in July. The ship reached Apia on the 11th, and the preparing of plans were six days. All the Mauga, Malietoa's fort, flag, an identical one pulled down by the Germans two years ago, and another, A by a native and [illegible] on McArthur & Co.'s flag-staff to welcome the old King. At the same time three cheers were given, at the call of the well-known newspaper correspondent, Julius Pagel, "Hip Yaga-hoo!"

Malietoa and his fellow-exiles landed just before dark, in company with Dr. Stuebel, German Consul, who had reported the Wolf to meet them. Malietoa was heartily greeted on landing by a host of natives and a few Europeans, and escorted to a house prepared for him, and the meeting was not only friendly and cordial, but affecting and pathetic. Malietoa, Mataafa and several chiefs were entertained at dinner that evening in the mess-room of McArthur & Co., yesterday, on the invitation of that firm, Mr. Thomas and Mr. Cooke, proprietor of the Times. After dinner the general conversation that ensued was not shared in by Malietoa and Mataafa, who were soon deeply engaged in private communications, according to the Times report, which adds:

"It was clearly manifest that there was no feeling of rivalry between them at all, and that whatever developments in Samoan politics may take place the relations between the two men will be of a most amicable nature."

During the evening Mr. W. Blackman, U. S. Vice-Consul, made his appearance, and offered his congratulations to Malietoa on his return to Samoa. Malietoa was dressed in a long blue coat of European cut. He looked thin and careworn, but was evidently delighted at being once more in his native country. He had the option of proceeding in the Wolf to his home in Savai, but he preferred to land at Apia before going home.

The merchants of Apia have had a meeting to consider means of getting rid of the Chilean and Peruvian currency. Money is the best important drain on the Pacific to return this worthless coin.

Serious accidents from fishing with dynamite are reported.

The U. S. Vice-Consul has opened a register for American citizens, also births and deaths occurring in their families.

Affairs have occurred from black boys on the German plantation attacking Samoans. In the last case the German Consul says there would have been no trouble if the Samoan, who was hacked severely with axes, had not been carrying a gun.

A humorous correspondent of the Times describes a fracas between the British consul in uniform and a German merchant.

The British naval ships Lizard, Opal and Egeria were all at Apia Aug. 8, but left shortly afterwards for different points. The Egeria is surveying. The others were to meet afterwards at Earlier in the Orlando at Pago Pago, but the flagship met with an accident to her machinery that compelled her to go to Sydney.

A dinner was to be given to Admiral Kimberly at the Tivoli Hotel on Aug. 9.

The Germans are reported to have made 500 native adherents at Tutuila.

The Times prior to the return of Malietoa advocated the restoration of the laws under him as future he were away, and pending the ratification of the Berlin treaty. Malietoa's recognition and protection by the three Powers.

Latest news from Tahiti says troubles are threatening at Tahiti. Queen Pomare left Paris Nov. 15, for a tour of business to trade regularly between Tahiti and Honolulu via Kanaka, to connect at Honolulu with the steamers to and from San Francisco and Australia.

Vice-Consul Blackman has satisfactorily distributed the presents to the value of near a thousand dollars, and nearly four thousand in coin, to Stewart and head men of the districts, in recognition of their assistance in the saving during the hurricane.

H. J. Moses, the well-known American merchant, has bought the United States Consulate for Tahiti.

DEATH OF A HAWAIIAN CONSUL.

At Funchal, Madeira, on July 19, 1889, died Mr. E. Ayres, aged 70 years, a native of Honolulu, Oahu, Sandwich Islands, and a prominent merchant of Madeira. He was Hawaiian Consul-General for Madeira, Portugal, and Consul for the Hawaiian Consulate-General in London. The funeral was attended by all the Hawaiian and consular representatives.

BASEBALL.

The Kaiulanis Again Beaten by the Stars.

The game on Saturday between the Stars and Kaiulanis was fairly well attended. There was not much interest taken in it, for it was a foregone conclusion that the Stars would easily win it, and they did by a score of 19 to 4. In only one innings were the Stars whitewashed. Hodek was pounded for fifteen base hits, while the Kaiulanis only hit Baldwin safely four times.

The Kaiulanis have played their eight games and lost them all. It is to be hoped they will get a better team next season or else stay out of the league. In the eight games they have played they have a total of 30 runs, 36 base hits, and 115 errors, while their opponents have the following totals: runs 178, base hits 127, errors 57. This will show at a glance the miserable work they have done. Following is the score of Saturday's game:—

SUGAR MATTERS.

A Philadelphia despatch of Aug. 24 says:

"The extensive plant of the Spreckels sugar refinery at the Reed street wharf is to be duplicated after the present buildings are completed, about the 1st of September. This addition, it is announced, will give the doubled refinery a capacity for producing 4,000,000 pounds of sugar daily. It will also increase the amount of capital invested to about $4,000,000 or $5,000,000. The contract cost of finishing the first set of buildings and improved and costly machinery is estimated at $1,500,000."

A New York despatch of August 7th speculates as follows in the same connection:

"It was reported yesterday that a secret agreement had been made between the Sugar Trust refineries and the outside refineries regarding the output of refined sugar.

"It has been well understood since the formation of the trust that an agreement existed whereby the trust insisted about 75 per cent. of the output and the outside refineries the remainder. According to report a new arrangement has been made which the outside refineries demanded on account of the growing consumption.

"By this outside refineries are to have 80 per cent of the output and the trust 70 per cent. The outside refineries are to so apportion their outputs as to enable them to admit the new refinery of Claus Spreckels, which is expected to start October 15th, to a share of the allotment.

"It is stated that Claus Spreckels met a Sugar Trust officer in Germany recently, where an arrangement was made satisfactory to him. Claus Spreckels, it is reported, is to build another refinery in Philadelphia at a cost of four to five million dollars.

"The general impression is that when this refinery is completed Spreckels will begin a war on the Sugar Trust, which he has always threatened, but which the trust has so far avoided."
