IVES' PATENT LAMPS—PARIS, 1867.

Our several inventions are protected by Letters Patent in all the important European countries, and (space having been selected) our Lamps will be exhibited at the PARIS UNIVERSAL EXPOSITION OF 1867.

In anticipation of the demand then expected, we have determined to establish their manufacture in the several countries under the personal supervision of one of our partners, who will go from here early in January with tools, patterns, etc., necessary for the business.

With the view of immediately acquiring additional capital for the successful prosecution of the business abroad, we propose to dispose of a part of our interest in the patents for each country, and believe we can offer satisfactory inducements for investment to any one who will call and examine our improvements and the rapid growth of our business here, where our Lamps have been in use nearly two years with universal satisfaction, both in city and country. [See testimonials in circular.]

To Americans visiting the great Fair this affords an unusually favorable opportunity for a safe and lucrative venture, in which pleasure and profit may be combined, especially to any who contemplate a long stay abroad and would like an active interest in a good business in one of the central cities. In no place is manufacturing more profitable than in Europe, the market of the world; and as the introduction of Petroleum is so constantly increasing, the best Lamps should follow wherever it goes.
