PUNAHOU DRAMATIC CLUB IN GOOD PLAY

Under the able direction of Miss Elenore R. Cowan the Punahou Dramatic Club intends to show the play-going public of this city what it is capable of producing when the curtain rises Saturday evening in C. R. Bishop's Hall, Punahou.

Oahu College offers to all its students a course in oral expression, where ease in speaking before an audience, acting, and the fundamentals of distinct speech are taught. Miss Cowan, the head of the department, is the dramatic club coach. She has had a wide and very successful experience in this line of work in that most critical of American cities, Boston. She has taken the utmost care and pains in selecting her cast and has been giving them a most rigid course of training. Several evenings ago the entire performance was rehearsed for the first time, and those who were present on this occasion predict that the performance will outclass any performance ever produced by a school organization in this city.

Besides comprising several well-known and talented amateur actors of the city, the cast also contains a number of students who will make their appearance before the footlights for the first time. Many pleasant surprises are in store for the friends of the school, as Miss Cowan has succeeded in bringing to light several talented and promising young actors.

By the manner in which the tickets for this performance which have been in the hands of students for the past week have sold it appears as if there will be a crowded house when the curtain rises Saturday evening. Tickets may be had at the Bergstrom Music Co.

A bunch of natives who were run in for gambling were up before Judge Andrade this morning. Cecil K. Quinn defended the accused who were found guilty and fined $10 each. Quinn at once noted an appeal and the case will go to the higher court.

INCOME TAX MEANS WORK FOR DRAKE

Internal Revenue Dept. To Handle All Collections

There is plenty of work in sight for Walter F. Drake, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Hawaii, and for all the other lucky men in our midst if either the Cummins or the Bailey income tax amendment to the Tariff Bill goes through.

Both these amendments propose putting the working of the income tax law on the Internal Revenue Department. It will be up to this department to collect the taxes and to find out from whom income taxes are due, and how much.

This will virtually double the work of the department, and will undoubtedly prove to be harder and more difficult work than the collection of Internal Revenue licenses.

The Cummins amendment, which in this particular is about the same as the Bailey amendment, says in part:

"It shall be the duty of every person of lawful age having an income of more than $5000 . . . to make and render a return . . . in such form and manner as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, to the Collector or Deputy Collector of the district in which he or she resides or the income of his or her income . . . The Collector or Deputy Collector shall examine every return to be verified by the oath or affirmation of the person rendering it . . . If the said Collector or Deputy Collector has reason to believe that any return understates the income reported therein, he may increase the amount, subject to the same penalties provided and in case any person having a taxable income shall wilfully neglect or refuse to make and render such return, it shall be the duty of said Collector or Deputy Collector to ascertain and to correct such return from the best information he can obtain, either by the examination of such person or by any other evidence, and to add to the tax as a penalty to the amount of the tax, in all cases of wilful neglect or refusal to make or render a return, and in all cases of a wilfully false or fraudulent return to add 100 per cent as a penalty to the amount of the tax so assessed to be paid. . . . Any person aggrieved by the decision of the Collector or Deputy Collector in relation to the taxes shall be entitled to appeal to the Collector of the District, and his decision thereon, unless reversed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, shall be final."

In Hawaii, particularly, where there are many large incomes of individuals and corporations which would be subject to this income tax, the duties of the Internal Revenue Collector will be greatly increased by the passage of the law, and the staff of the office will probably have to be increased considerably.
