STAND FIRM.

Kahuku plantation strike puts the issue before the people of the Territory in plain terms. It is the Thug against the Reputable Workman.

The strikers have no complaint on account of wages. They do not take issue with another race or nationality.

They merely demand that Japanese men, who worked their way up, gained the confidence of their employers, established homes, and in a large measure became permanent residents of the Islands — they demand that these reputable workmen shall be discharged.

The rough element among the strikers, to accomplish the ruin and to discredit these reputable men of their own race and nationality, but not of the same kind, trump up an imaginary grievance and call for their dismissal.

Every citizen and resident of these Islands sufficiently intelligent to understand the meaning of fair play and common decency will not only stand by, but will also applaud the management that returned a prompt and vigorous "NO" to such a demand.

As the Bulletin has pointed out from the start, the present labor agitation is a case of the Thug against the Honest Man. There is no racial division. The Honest Men among the American citizens and the Japanese residents should be found shoulder to shoulder in combatting the Thugs from among the citizens and the Japanese who have allied themselves to deceive ignorant and gullible, though well-meaning, workers.

Until the issue is decided—and Hawaii was never in a better position to meet it—the wage question cannot be discussed.

When the combined reputable element of the citizens and the Japanese prevails, as it must inevitably, then will be time to take up the wage readjustment and adapt the schedule to new conditions.

Honolulu can easily take first place for automobile owners among towns of its size.

Kahuku shows plainly that it is a case of the Thug against the Honest man without regard to race or color.

According to mainland authority, no Honolulu romance is complete without the man in the case is a wealthy sugar planter.

Senator Clay of Georgia is a good man to talk against the sugar tariff. There are no sugar plantations in his section of the South.

H. H. Rogers, dead, removes one of the financial dictators of America from the scene of action. Though Rogers has gone the system he created still lives.

Workmen who refuse to work and have received their wages, are depriving the law of the land if they attempt to remain on the premises of their former employers.

Col. Roosevelt has shot a "rhinoceros". While they were about it they might have called whether the beast was wearing an ivory toothpick on its nose.

Japanese at Ewa seems to have hit upon a very correct system for handling Thug Agitators. These individuals are giving the Japanese of the banner plantation a wide berth.

Agitators and shyster lawyers are responsible for a money loss of $50,000 to the Japanese laborers of this island. And these men on strike will never be able to make up the wages sacrificed in this unfortunate manner.

With the large number of film flam artists that float this way from the Coast, the people will learn sooner or later that there is nothing so safe as home investment and backing given home people who are helping to build up Hawaii, rather than take what they can squeeze out of it.

Pardons granted the officers who fought in and around Port Arthur may be significant of Russia's desire to secure all the experienced men it can muster in working out the ancient policy of an outlet to the Pacific through Manchuria. The first defeat has not checked Russia, though plans have been changed.

The present day definition for advertising reads something like this: "Telling a lot of people simultaneously what your name is, what your business is, how you do it, what you charge for it, and why others should have it." The Evening Bulletin reaches a larger lot of people simultaneously than any newspaper published in Hawaii. It is the place in which to profitably tell the people what you have.

HONOLULU'S AUTOMOBILE PURCHASING CAPACITY

Honolulu is one of the best automobile towns—of 40,000 inhabitants, and half oriental—in the world.

Every person coming here from abroad, and even from the busiest centers of the mainland, is impressed with this fact. Residents are more firmly convinced when they return from their travels. Private motors have steadily increased, and the automobile hack has become quite the proper thing, a remarkable growth in this line having taken place in the last twelve months.

The auto is also making rapid headway in the heavy trucking of the city and country. Delivery automobiles are very much in evidence of late in this city, and on the Island of Maui and Kahului railway interests have established a line of auto trucks to take care of the shipments of the pineapple growers and canners of Haiku, pending the time when the development of the industry and increasing number of homesteaders will justify the extension of the Kahului railway.

Increase in the number of automobiles is apparent to any Honoluluan who stops to take notice, but the record of shipments from the mainland is most impressive confirmation of appearances.

Statistics published by the Department of Commerce and Labor show that during the twelve months ending with December, 1908, there were shipped to this Territory, practically all coming through and largely to Honolulu, 139 automobiles valued at $292,926. For the same period ending with December, 1907, the shipments were 150 machines valued at $244,751. This suggests that our people in 1908 bought less machines, but more elaborate ones.

There is no doubt, however, that the prosperity of the past year has had its effect in the automobile industry.

The number and value of the automobiles Hawaii has purchased from the mainland during the eight months ending with February, 1909, is nearly as large as for the twelve months ending with December, 1908. The exact figures follow:

Automobiles shipped to Hawaii from the mainland:

Eight months ending February, 1909, 128, valued at	$284,045
Twelve months ending December, 1908, 139, valued at	292,926
For month of December, 1909, 18, valued at	45,383
For month of February, 1908, 3, valued at	8,400
For month of February, 1909, 26, valued at	54,985

These figures show that Honolulu has a right to be called a good automobile town and Hawaii a good automobile Territory. The people are clearly buying more expensive machines and more of them.

Incidentally this brings up the purchasing capacity of the people of these islands. The same tables from which the automobile record is taken, show that the Territory of Hawaii during the twelve months ending with December, 1908, shipped to the mainland markets merchandise valued at $41,627,448. And during that period Hawaii received from the mainland, or in other words purchased from mainland markets, merchandise valued at $15,214,243.

For the eight months ending with February, 1909, our shipments of merchandise to the mainland were valued at $22,639,408, and our shipments from the mainland were valued at $11,057,287.

These figures demonstrate a great many things which may be epitomized in the statement that the Territory of Hawaii has a surplus of sales over purchases, and therefore the purchasing power of its people who invest in automobiles is very materially increased.

In other words, the people of Honolulu and the Territory of Hawaii have the money to spend, and the automobile is absorbing a large share.

NEWSPAPER BEST FOR REAL ESTATE MEN.

"Advertising is the life of the real estate business, and newspaper advertising is the best medium that can be employed," said J. R. Dunphy, a publicity expert, formerly on the advertising staff of the Spokane Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Wash., to the students of the Spokane Y. M. C. A. real estate course. Continuing, Mr. Dunphy said in part:

"A real estate business without advertising is like a man without life and an engine without steam. It is necessary to have a good location for your business, a good office organization, good property to sell and such other equipment as is needed for the proper handling of customers, but more important than all of these is that influence which brings you in contact with the buyer and renders the above organization valuable.

"Newspaper advertising is the source of the greatest benefit to the real estate man in his local field. It reaches a greater number of people at a smaller cost than any other medium. It reaches readers in their homes when they have time and inclination to give it careful thought and attention.

"Since every one must have a place in which to live, the real estate man can look upon every individual in the community as a possible prospect. The problem that confronts him is how best to reach the entire community at the very least cost. This he finds he can do better and cheaper through the newspaper than in any other way.

"To substantiate the truth of this statement the experience of many well known firms of my own acquaintance could be mentioned. However, many of them did not at first realize this fact, and it was only after having expended large sums in other ways, such as addressing letters and pamphlets directly to the general public and conducting a house to house canvass by personal solicitors, that it finally became clear to them that the general character of their business rendered such methods impractical."

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL IS BADLY CROWDED

Model Manual Training Institution, Says Governor

"The best school in the islands in respect to manual training — one upon which the other schools might very well be modeled, if we had the money." This is Governor Frear's estimate of the Boys' Industrial School at Waialee after his inspection of the institution yesterday.

But the failure of the Legislature to appropriate money for the erection of a new dormitory leaves the school very much crowded, so much so, in fact, that it is impossible to send any more boys there at present, although Judge Whitney of the Juvenile Court says he has a number now who should be sent there.

The beds are crowded together, and every one is as full of boys as it will hold. "They have to climb in over the footboard or the headboard or any other way to get in," said the Governor this morning.

Governor Frear says the school is a real industrial school where the boys are being taught useful trades. It is to a large extent self-supporting, and will become more so from year to year. A good-sized crop of cane is raised and sold to Kahuku plantation, and this goes a long way toward defraying the running expenses of the school. In addition to this minor crops are grown, such as peppers.

The resignation of Principal Gibson, which was tendered at the time of the visit of the Legislature, has not been accepted, and Governor Freer stated this morning that he hoped Mr. Gibson could be induced to stay on. He will remain for a while, anyway.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better." JOHN J. LEITZ, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies." VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy." A. F. PEELER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm." EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments." J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.
