LITERARY ITEMS.

The volume of Klopstock's correspondence, edited by Lappenberg, contains all the letters written by, or addressed to, the poet which have not as yet been comprised in any collection. Such an assemblage cannot fail to be interesting, as Klopstock's acquaintance embraced all the literary notabilities of his country. The general impression is very favorable, although there is no effort to shine, and the laborious bard of the "Messiah" was not the man to shine without an effort. Some of his earlier letters are amusingly sentimental; in later life he appears very unaffected and cordial. One particular epistle signed "G." is a standing puzzle to the critics, who cannot determine whether to attribute it to Goethe or not.

The Rebellion Record approaches its completion. Its late issues have been largely devoted to the Rebel official reports of battles, &c., which are exceedingly important to a correct comprehension of many engagements. Vol. XII. soon to be issued, will probably finish the series; so the work will contain somewhat fewer than 10,000 pages. The Record was commenced in May, 1861—before anything like a battle had been fought. Since then 290,000 monthly parts and 41,000 volumes have been issued. It includes 154 steel plates, beside other illustrations. No other so complete a collection of official documents, correspondents' reports, &c., elucidating the progress of any great war was ever published; and its pages are still open. Its publishers have been changed, but Frank Moore has been editor throughout. He has sensibly lightened the labors and lessened the probable errors of all future historians of our country.

Mr. Charles Allston Collins's Report on ephemeral literature, in the Catalogue of the British section of the Paris Exhibition, gives some interesting details respecting the collection of English periodicals in that vast show: "In each department, the whole of the literature which refers to the subject treated will be found. In the religious department, e. g., all forms of religion are represented. Here are Church of England Publications, Roman Catholic periodicals, and religious journals of all kinds. Baptists, Methodists, Independents, even of the followers of Swedenborg and Lady Huntingdon, have specimens of their literature here. The same principle applies to each one of the classifications in medicine, philosophy, political economy; all sorts of antagonistic factions have contributed the organs which contain their opinions. Homeopaths, Allopaths, Vegetarians, Teetotalers, Slave Emancipators, Spiritualists, are all exhibitors in this department. Children, even, have a literature of their own, and are richly provided with periodicals published for their exclusive benefit. Some of these are addressed to mere infants. There is an Infant's Magazine, a Child's Own Magazine, a Child's Friend, and some others, obviously intended for the youngest of literary students. There are nearly fifty magazines and other periodicals, kept up exclusively for the benefit of boys and girls. Many, indeed, are the curious and interesting particulars which are brought to light by such a collection. Few people, probably, know that many of our different trades are represented by their own newspapers. There is a baker's journal; there are exclusive newspapers published for the benefit of the grocer, the oilman, the draper, the ironmonger, the chemist and druggist. There exists, moreover, a Pawnbroker's Gazette and a Journal of Gaslighting, and an Anti-tobacco Protest periodically issued. Curiously organized systems for the distribution of periodical literature are revealed also in the course of such investigations. Numerous associations for the publication of serials intended to improve mankind are in existence in various parts of England. Institutions such as the Wesleyan Conference Society, the Young Man's Christian Association, the Army Scripture Reader's and Soldier's Friend Society, the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, the Religious Tract and the Peace Societies, send out all sorts of Sundays at Home, Heralds of Peace, British Flags, Christian Sentinels, and Jewish Intelligencers. And then for the practical work of disseminating such periodicals there are such bodies as the Book Hawking Society, by means of which people are supplied with cheap literature at their own houses. And here seems the proper place to make some brief mention of a little-known publishing agency called the Number Trade, some of whose publications are included in this collection. It is represented by some three or four houses, and is somewhat peculiarly constituted. They seek no publicity for the works they issue, which are mainly republications, elaborately got up and illustrated, of standard works. They never advertise, and intrust the sale of their publications exclusively to certain persons, who act as a kind of commercial travelers to the trade, and who carry specimens of the Number Trade about with them, soliciting subscriptions in every town in Great Britain."

GREAT SOUL IN A SMALL BODY.
MATHUSHEK PIANOS.
By a recent invention of Mr. Frederick Mathushek (THE NEW PATENT EQUALIZING SCALE WITH LINEAR BRIDGE), the power of the piano is so greatly increased that an instrument of little more than HALF THE USUAL SIZE, and LESS THAN ONE-THIRD THE WEIGHT, is in tone, volume, brilliancy, and all other respects, equal to that of the best full-sized pianos. This is demonstrated in the COLIBRI PIANO, four feet nine inches long, two feet eight inches wide, yet having seven full octaves. THE ORCHESTRAL PIANO (ordinary size), by the same arrangement, equals a Concert Grand. The peculiar construction secures the greatest durability and longest continuance "in tune." The New-York Weekly Review, the leading musical authority in this country, says: "The Colibri Pianoforte can speak with such power and sonority that we must look at the thing in order to believe it possible. . . . Throughout the scale the tone is even, very full, generous, brilliant and melodious."
Musicians, amateurs, and those desiring to purchase, are invited to call and examine. Send for Illustrated Circular showing the features of the invention, and the reasons for its excellence. BARLOW & DOEHLER, No. 594 Broadway and No. 8 Fourth-st.

"HAZELTON BROTHERS," PIANO-FORTE MANUFACTURERS, would call the attention of musicians and the public generally to the many and great improvements in the construction of their Pianos. Their "EUPHONIC AGRAFFE TREBLE" has been tested by the highest musical talent in the country, and conceded by all to possess power, brilliancy and sweetness in the highest degree. THE STODART

These magnificent instruments, which have stood the test of forty years, have lately been greatly improved by the gradual addition of all modern improvements of any importance, until they have now reached the highest point of merit.
For beauty and sweetness of tone, and extreme durability of manufacture, they stand unrivaled.
Parties desiring a really fine instrument, upright, square, or grand, will find it of great advantage to call on us before selecting elsewhere.
